Pearson Again Defends Action In Norman Case

(See Also Pages 2 and 16)

OTTAWA (CP)—For the second time in two days, External Affairs Minister Pearson has used a newspaper's editorial page to defend his handling of the Herbert Norman case.

He sent a letter to the editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail Friday after an editorial in the newspaper's Friday edition said Mr. Pearson had "completely reversed himself" on the question of whether official Canadian information on Mr. Norman had gotten into the hands of the United States Senate internal security sub-committee.

Mr. Pearson, who told the Commons twice last week that this had not happened, wrote that he had relied for those statements on RCMP assurances that two security reports sent to Washington had not been passed on to the sub-committee.

The minister's letter said that not until after his Commons statements did it become apparent that Robert Morris, sub-committee counsel, had used information from an RCMP report of Oct. 17, 1950.

Mr. Pearson, in another letter Wednesday to the editor of the Montreal Gazette, said that that report fell into the sub-committee's hands and was used by the sub-committee to brand Mr. Norman as a Communist.

The report of Oct. 17, 1950, referred to a 1940 statement by an RCMP secret agent in Toronto that a "professor Herbert Norman" was then a Communist.

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday that a later RCMP report on Dec. 1, 1950—relayed like the first to a U.S. security agency—said the agent's information was a case of "mistaken identity or unfounded rumor."

Mr. Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, committed suicide April 4 in Cairo after the sub-committee had revived its 1951 allegations of Communism against him.

Questions U.S. Handling of Reports

The minister's letter to the Globe and Mail, replying to one question raised in the newspaper's editorial, said he does not know how the sub-committee got the first RCMP report, or whether it received the second report discrediting the first.

He added that, if the second report did in fact reach the sub-committee, Senator William Jenner and commitee counsel Morris "for obvious reasons did not use it or make it public."

Mr. Pearson's letter to the Montreal Gazette was in reply to three editorial page columns by Arthur Blakely, Gazette Ottawa correspondent, earlier in the week.

In a further column in the Gazette's Friday issue, Mr. Blakely said his three columns were not intended as an attack either on Mr. Norman's memory or on Mr. Pearson's integrity.

He said they were written "for the primary purpose of drawing public attention to the fact that for a period of some six years Parliament had been deceived and misled with respect to the accuracy or otherwise of statements which a U.S. senate sub-committee had made about Mr. Norman's Communist associations and sympathies."

Another development Friday in the fast-moving Norman case was an interim reply by the U.S. state department to Canada's diplomatic note of last week.

Canada's note said the Canadian government would reserve the right to withhold the customary supplying of security information on Canadians to United States agencies unless the United States administraton could give assurances that

The United States state de- the information would not be given to congressional groups. partment replied that the matter "will be pursued vigorously." A state department press officer said that the FBI, among other executive agencies, had been notified of Canada's request.

DISCREDIT LETTERS

The external affairs department issued another statement here and in Washington dealing with a side issue: publication by the New York Daily News of the purported texts of two notes written by Mr. Norman just before his suicide.

The department described the published texts as "complete fabrications" which bore no relation to the notes written by Mr. Norman. It said it holds the original notes and declined to make them public. They were "purely personal in character."

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday he had concluded, on the basis of a 1950-51 Canadian security investigation, that Mr. Norman as a student in the 1930s had had "ideological beliefs which were close to some brand of communism" but had voluntarily abandoned them by the time he entered the external affairs department in 1939.

Jordan Army Chief Quits; New Crisis

Officer Firings Blamed for Action

AMMAN, Jordan (CP)—Maj.-Gen. Ali Hayari, who took over as Jordan's chief of staff only two days ago, has submitted his resignation, it was officially announced today. A new government crisis appeared brewing in the Arab kingdom.

Informed sources said Hayari resigned because King Hussein and others had, without consulting him, fired 60 officers and replaced them with Bedouins.

The source said Hayari's deputy, Maj-Gen. Habbes Majali, would succeed him in office. Majali became deputy chief of staff at the time Hayari became chief.

The new government was believed worried that the shift of army officers had placed too much power in the king's hands and that he would crack down on political parties.

HELD JOB FEW DAYS

Hayari, described by his friends as a career soldier with little interest in politics, took over the top army job only Thursday, and apparently firmed up Hussein's control over the restive kingdom. He replaced Maj.-Gen. Ali Abu Nuwar, a pro-Egyptian soldier-politician who was driven from the country to Syria last week. Several high officers accompanied Nuwar.

The new chief of staff was sent Friday to Damascus to ask Syrian authorities to extradite a group of the Jordanian dissidents. But an official spokesman reported that, on arrival, Hayari telephoned his father-in-law, Sedky el Kassem, to present his resignation to the government.

U.S. Encouraged By Russ Reaction In London Parleys

WASHINGTON (UP)—Harold E. Stassen said today that the United States and Russia are engaged in "the most serious" disarmament negotiations of the past 11 years.

He said, however, that "still many, many problems remain" to be resolved before even a real start can be made on disarmament.

Stassen, President Eisenhower's disarmament adviser, flew back from London, where he has been negotiating with representatives of Russia, Britain, France and Canada since March 18.

Stassen planned a meeting at the state department this afternoon to report on the London talks to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In advance of the conference, Stassen declined to say whether he is optimistic or pessimistic about the eventual outcome of the talks.

But other administration officials said there are "encouraging" signs that the Soviet Union may be willing to make a start on disarmament. They said the Soviets for the first time seem to be willing to work on the matter for other than immediate propaganda advantage.

Dulles was reported anxious to learn immediately what Stassen has found out in negotiations with Russia on the critical disarmament problem.

Russ Hint 'Open Skies' Agreement

Authorities from President Eisenhower down have been saying for the past week that the outlook for disarmament is better now than ever before. But they also have cautioned against expecting too much progress too quickly.

Eisenhower told a news conference this week that the atmosphere "is better" than it has been at similar sessions held by the UN disarmament subcommittee.

One of the big reasons for optimism here is a hint from Soviet negotiator Valerian A. Zorin that Russia may be ready to open a significant part of its territory to Eisenhower's "open skies" aerial inspection plan. Previously, the Soviets balked at this.

The United States this week agreed to accept a limited version of the Eisenhower plan if Russia would expand its counter proposal. That called for testing the plan in a 1,000-mile belt running about 500 miles on either side of the iron curtain. The United States has rejected this because it would not open enough of Russia to the inspectors.

Zorin hinted in London Thursday that the limits of the zone might be expanded through "negotiations" between East and West.

U.S. Ahead in Nuclear Race

Experts here called the remark "encouraging." They said it could lead to an agreement after the London talks resume Wednesday, but they pointed out that this would be only a first step on the long road toward effetcive disarmament.

American authorities said one basic reason for thinking Russia may at last be ready to make concessions to end the arms race is that Russia is suffering too heavy a burden in attempting to match U.S. nuclear weapons production.

U.S. officials believe Russia's bosses would prefer to spend the money on non-military projects that would help calm any discontent among Russians with their standard of living.

In addition, officials said, the Soviets have indicated that they know they are lagging behind the United States in nuclear weapons production and therefore are sincerely fearful of getting into a nuclear war.

City Streets Jammed With Easter Shoppers

Sunny skies and the warmth of spring caused several traffic tieups in the city today as motorists and shoppers by the thousands jammed downtown streets.

City police reported traffic heavy, particularly around department store parking lots, where incoming and outgoing motorists kept traffic in a snarl during the forenoon.

Along downtown streets, metered space was at a premium as drivers vied for parking slots, and pedestrians, out in droves for late shopping before the holiday week-end, crowded over cross-walks to make intersections hazardous.

Police said at press time they had encountered no real traffic problems nor accidents, but expected to be busy until shop closing time directing downtown traffic.

The business section today offered a strange contrast to Friday, when it was practically deserted. On the other hand, the highways and byways of the Saanich peninsula and the Sooke area were jammed with cars Friday afternoon and evening.

Gardeners had a field day Friday and were ready for another gainful day today. Small boys found plenty of wild flowers, and motorcyclists who were out in force described the holiday as "cold, but still fun."

A few brave souls even went swimming in some of the sheltered lakes.

The travel peak noted Thursday, when TCA had six extra flights between here and the Mainland and the CPR ran an extra round-trp sailing between Nanaimo and Vancouver, will be divided between Sunday and Monday, according to airline and shipping spokesmen.

Special servcies have been arranged in all city churches, and three separate sunrise services have been scheduled. (See Page 18 for detals.)

Only blight noted on the weekend to date has been reported by the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The fine weather that sent Victoriains out in droves to enjoy nature also roused the wood ticks. Five persons reported at the hospital's emergency ward to have the pesky mites of the bush removed from various portions of their anatomy.

EASTER BONNET WEATHER PROMISED FOR SUNDAY

Easter Sunday should be sunny and fairly warm, weatherman William Mackie predicted today.

Peak temperatures will be about 58 degrees, he said, but winds are not expected to gain strength until Sunday afternoon, when they will reach a velocity of about 20 miles from the southwest.

There will be high cloud, he said, but it likely will be thin enough during the day for the sun to shine through.

Easter Rituals Nearing Climax For World Pilgrims in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Pilgrims of all Christian faiths converged on the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in the Old City of Jerusalem today as the Easter Holy Week approached its climax.

Some of Christianity's most ancient rituals will be observed within the walls of this ancient city when events in the life of Christ are re-enacted by Roman Catholics, Greek Orthodox believers, Protestants, Copts, Armenians, Syrians and Ethiopians.

The greatest tension in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is usually felt on Holy Saturday during the "holy fire" services conducted by Greek Orthodox and Armenian rites.

WILD EXCITEMENT

The appearance of fire spurting from two openings on either side of the chapel over the Holy Sepulchre touches off exuberant emotions and wild cheering and excitement.

The patriarchs of these two rites enter the tomb, which is then sealed by the Moslem warden of the church.

The two prelates spend hours in prayer inside the sealed tomb while the congregation in the unlighted church watches with growing intensity the two openings where the fire is to emerge.

Suddenly the cry "He is risen" pierces the air at the sight of the fire.

Within a few seconds lights glow and the rotunda is soon ablaze with the flickering "resurrection fire" in nooks and crannies of the church.

BLESSES FIRE

Near the stone of unction where Christ's body was prepared for burial Roman Catholics hold their service in the course of which the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem blesses the holy fire.

On Good Friday thousands of persons packed the courtyard in front of the church where the scene of Jesus washing his disciples' feet was repeated.

Benedictus the First, new Greek Orthodox prelate in the Middle East, officiated at the service for the first time.

Queen to Celebrate 31st Birthday Sunday

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth will quietly celebrate her 31st birthday Sunday with her family at Windsor Castle.

It has become the custom for the Royal Family to celebrate personal anniversaries as unobtrusively as possible.

The Queen and Prince Philip usually attend Easter Day service at St. George's Chapel, Windsor. After Prince Charles and Princess Anne wake their mother Sunday with a birthday hug and whatever gifts they manage to buy with their pocket money, the whole family probably will go to church.

JEWELRY FROM PHILIP

Prince Philip's customary birthday present is a piece of jewelry, often something he designed himself. The Queen's favorite stone is the sapphire.

The Easter holidays will give the Queen a chance to rest before she leaves next month on another state visit—her third in the last year—to Denmark.

It has been a busy 30th year for the Queen.

She has played hostess to young King Faisal of Iraq, who paid a state visit to Britain, made history by opening the first nuclear power plant in the world supplying commercial electricity, and paid state visits to Portugal and France.

Like any young mother with school-age children, she now is beginning to make plans for their future education.

Lately, she and Prince Philip have visited a number of English private schools and there has been some speculation about which will be chosen for the future king.

U.S. Star Wins Boston Marathon

BOSTON (UP) — Skinny schoolteacher Johnny Kelley won the 61st annual Boston A.A. marathon today, the first American victory in 12 years.

The 26-year-old Kelley of Groton, Conn., plodded the 26 miles 385 yards from Hopkinton to Boston in 2.20.05.

The time was a new record for the route because the course was remeasured and lengthened by 1,187 yards this year to conform with Olympic standards.

Draws Protest

LONDON (AP) — Governor Averell Harriman of New York State was accused today by a member of Parliament of "making mischief" in the Mediterranean by inviting Archbishop Makarios, Greek Orthodox leader of the Cyprus union-with-Greece movement, to visit New York.

Paul Williams, leader in the right-wing bloc of Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative party, said the invitation "casts doubt on the wisdom of the Makarios release."

Manchester U. Wins League Soccer Title

LONDON (AP)—Manchester United crushed lowly Sunderland 4-0 today and captured the English Soccer League championship for the second straight season.

It was the first step in Manchester's bid for the unique soccer treble of success in the English League and cup competitions and the European Cup. Manchester will play Aston Villa in the final of the English Cup May 4 and on Thursday tackle Real Madrid in the second leg of the European Cup semifinals.

Madrid won the first leg in Spain 3-1. The match is decided on aggregate goals after home and away matches. Fiorentina of Italy already has reached the European Cup final with a victory over Red Star of Belgrade.

Manchester's victory over Sunderland boosted its total points to 59 from 39 matches. United still has three games to play but closest challenger Preston managed only a 0-0 tie against Blackpool. Even if Preston wins its remaining two matches it can total only 58 points—one less than the total already reached by Manchester.

A crowd of 58,489 saw Manchester United lead Sutherland 1-0 at half time on a goal by inside forward Billy Whelan. Whelan, halfback Duncan Edwards and centre froward Tommy Taylor rammed in three more goals in the second half.

Norman 'Notes' Labelled 'Complete Fabrications'

See Page 16

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Canadian Embassy Friday described as "complete fabrications" the purported texts published in a New York newspaper of two notes written by Canadian Ambassador E. Herbert Norman immediately before his suicide in Cairo.

An embassy statement said the texts published by the New York Daily News "bear no relation" to the notes written by Norman to his wife and to Swedish Minister Brynolf Eng, a close friend.

The originals, the statement said, "are in the possession of the Canadian Department of External Affairs."

The statement, issued by R. A. Farquharson, embassy press officer, was made here on instruction of the Canadian government in Ottawa.

The purported note to Eng as printed in the Daily News recorded Norman as saying "I cannot bring myself to tell you the true reasons that impel me to commit suicide."

This sentence had been interpreted as indicating that Norman had killed himself for some reason other than the publication last month of an accusation made before hte United States Senate internal security sub-committee that Norman had been a Communist.

The sub-committee has been involved in a bitter international controversy since the diplomat jumped to his death from a tall building.

The embassy statement said:

"The New York Daily News on April 18 published two letters purporting to be addressed by Mr. Norman, the former Canadian ambassador to Egypt, before his death and Mr. Eng, the Swedish minister in Cairo. The texts of these two letters printed by The Daily News bear no relation to the texts of notes addressed to his wife and Mr. Eng, the originals of which are in the possession of the Canadian department of external affairs.

"The original notes to Mrs. Norman and Mr. Eng were purely personal in character. The only conclusion which can be drawn is that the texts of the letters printed by The Daily News are complete fabrications."

The Daily News commented as follows:

"The Norman suicide letters, which were published last Thursday in The News, were cabled from Cairo. They were translations of Arabic copies made of the letters while the Cairo police were holding them during their investigation.

"They were obtained by The News correspondent in Cairo, Reynolds Packard.

"In his cable containing the letters, Packard said: 'The following texts are translations back into English from the Arabic translation of the original English of Norman's letters.'

"Minor errors, but only minor, might arise from a double translation.

"The Canadian government has not seen fit to offer its own version of Norman's letters in support of its claim of fabrication."

As published in the New York News the letters read:

To Mrs. Norman:

"Dear Wife: Farewell to you, my beloved, and to my family. I wanted so much to tell you all about my troubles during these last few days of my life because I think of you as my spiritual partner but I finally decided to bear them alone and not distress you.

"NO MORE FUTURE"

"I also wanted to tell you before going out this morning of my intention to commit suicide but I changed my mind at the last minute feeling it would be better for you to learn of my death—afterwards. I have no more hope in life, no more future. Please forgive me my love, for ending my life like this. I feel I don't deserve even to kiss your feet.

"Farewell my beloved. Best wishes to my family.

"Herbert"

To Eng:

"I wanted to spend some time with you during these last few days of my life and tell you what has been worrying me but am afraid that even in this letter I cannot bring myself to tell you true reasons that impel me to commit suicide.

"I have decided to die near your home. I know this may cause you some trouble and I am sorry but you are my best friend. Farewell.

"Sincerely,
"Norman"

Mad Bomber Ruled Insane

NEW WALSH CHARGE

Two Other Top Diplomats 'Linked' to Reds

LABRIEVILLE, Que. (BUP) — Former Communist labor leader Pat Walsh flatly stated Friday Herbert Norman was a Communist, and so are two other high-ranking Canadian diplomats.

Walsh said that Canada's ambassador to Egypt, who killed himself April 4, and the two other diplomats are known to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police as "the unholy three."

"External affairs minister Lester Pearson calls them 'my Asiatic advisers' and has been defending all three for years in spite of pressure from (justice minister Stuart) Garson," Walsh charged.

He said he got his proof while working as a paid undercover agent for the RCMP and claimed Norman committed suicide because Pearson wired him that Walsh was bringing out the RCMP file on Norman.

"Norman jumped just a week after I had written to Pearson about the file," Walsh said.

Walsh added that he is now going to press for the recall of the two other diplomats to face a public investigation. He said if the men were not recalled he would "reluctantly bring out my files for the public to see."

Tumultuous Applause For Bennett in East

1,800 Attend Razzle-Dazzle Rally; Premier Parries Vigorous Hecklers

(From Times News Service)

TORONTO — Premier Bennett Thursday night launched the Social Credit "On to Ottawa" campaign by picturing a giant tidal wave sweeping from the west to rescue Canada from the bondage of a tired old government.

The Socred rally in the 2,500-seat Massey Hall was attended by 1,800—far short of the 3,500 overflow crowd expected.

Premier Bennett's fiery speech was interrupted 47 times by applause.

He described Canada as a nation writhing and struggling under a strange experimental rule.

Premier Bennett, described in his introduction as a "man's man and an outstanding Canadian," was the featured speaker in the Social Credit movement's first campaign for votes in eastern Canada.

The razzle-dazzle meeting, featuring a society orchestra and bagpipes, was halted after three hours so the audience could get home before the start of the Good Friday holiday.

"We believe the time has come for action that will reject impractical political theories, excessive taxation, government meddling and autocratic acts," Premier Bennett said.

He received a tumultuous burst of applause when he said destiny backs the Socred movement.

"The 20th century belongs to Canada—but Canadians must earn the right to it," the premier said.

Premier Bennett demanded reform in the Senate, terming it the "best old age pension in the world."

Discarding his prepared text, he appealed for the women's vote.

Pleads for Women's Votes

"If we get support of the women, we will win," he said. "Women do the work, men only do the talking. Women won for us in British Columbia. They'll win for us in Canada."

The premier was his usual effective self in handling hecklers. He shrugged off more than a dozen during his 35-minute address and several times invited opposition from the audience.

"If you haven't suffered enough under Liberal rule, it's your God-given right to suffer some more," he shouted. "We never play one religion against another; Ontario against Quebec or East versus West."

Although he delivered a blistering attack against the Liberals, Premier Bennett almost ignored the Progressive Conservatives and CCF.

"Nobody shoots at a dead duck," he grinned.

The rally featured the unveiling of the Social Credit election platform. It was especially enjoyed by senior citizens who made up most of the audience.

Premier Bennett, the opening speaker, outlined the platform and said "Social Credit will restore the two-party system to Canada."

$100-a-Month Pensions Planned

The party platform included these promises should a Social Credit government be elected:

1. Old age pensions, due to rise July 1 to $46 monthly from $40 for all 70 and over, would be raised to $60 monthly. An additional $40 a month would be split with provinces accepting, bringing pensions to a possible $100.

2. Mortgage funds would be made available at low interest rates and for low down payments, with interest charges on mortgages exempt from income tax.

3. Employees would be permitted to transfer pension plans from one job to another without losing contributions.

4. A parity price for agricultural products would be set up and surplus farm commodities sold to countries for their own currency if necessary instead of insisting on dollars.

5. The basic individual income tax exemption would be increased to $1,500 a year from the present $1,000.

Other points in the party platform—the finishing touches were added by top party officials for the approval of 400 delegates from all provinces but Prince Edward Island—included:

1. A national health plan to meet the standards of all provinces.

2. Low-interest loans for small businesses and farmers.

3. Federal financial assistance for arterial highways.

4. "Selective" immigration to bring much-needed people to Canada.

5. Joint federal-provincial development of Canada's natural resources.

6. Development of the vast northland to make it an integral part of the nation.

Cut Income Tax by 30 Per Cent

National leader Solon Low said a social Credit government could reduce income taxes by 30 per cent.

"A Social Credit government will return to the Canadian people the excess money that has been extracted from their earnings," he said.

"We will do that by reducing taxation to the point where government income matches most carefully-planned and efficiently controlled government spending.

"If the policy of matching revenue with expenditures were a part of the national government's fiscal policy at this time, it would be possible to reduce present income tax by at least 30 per cent."

Alberta's Premier E. C. Manning delivered an effective if anti-climatic address. He traced the history of the Socred government in Alberta.

He rapped the Liberals for "appalling lack of leadership," and accused Immigration Minister John Pickersgill of a "bungled and befuddled policy."

Attorney General Robert Bonner, chairman of the national organizing drive, said he was pleased with the turnout on a rainy night.

Mr. Low told a reporter he was returning to Ottawa and would announce plans for a national campaign tour next Monday.

Mr. Low has said he expects to have more than 160 candidates in the running next June. Social Credit had 71 in 1953.

Premier Bennett left for Montreal and Quebec City where he said he would call on Premier Duplessis of Quebec, if the premier was home, Monday or Tuesday.

TORONTO WELCOMING COMMITTEE, led by national Socred leader Solon Low and Mrs. Low, turned out at Malton Airport to greet Premier W. A. C. Bennett. Placard-bearing party boosters also were on hand as premier arrived for big party rally at Massey Hall Thursday night.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

Sargent Browning

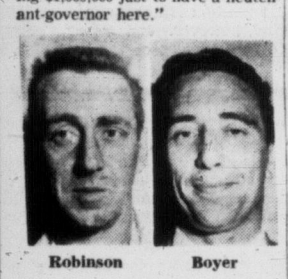
Mrs. Laurie Browning, 1011 Redfern: "It certainly should be rebuilt, just as it was, or at least on the same lines. It was a terrible shame, wasn't it?"

James Fraser, musician, 3350 Doncaster: "I think it should be rebuilt but I'll leave the architecture to the men who know. Personally, I'd like to see them keep the same style."

Fraser Lea

Mrs. R. V. Lea, 1737 Adanac: "Definitely, it should be rebuilt. A nice Spanish style would be lovely don't you think? Get away from these old-fashioned homes in Victoria."

Jack Robinson, electrician, 1319 Vimy: "No I'm against rebuilding. I think the point has come where Canada is on her own. If Britain wants to have a representative here, that's fine, but why should we sink money into a Government House? I'm not in favor of spending $1,000,000 just to have a lieutenant-governor here."



Robinson Boyer

Arthur Boyer, salesman, 3912 Cumberland: "I do think it should be rebuilt, and any style they choose is okay by me."

41 Escape Death as Pilot Crashlands Crippled Airliner

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Ambulances moaned and fear froze in a thousand throats as a crippled and darkened airliner floated to a landing here Friday night.

Thirty-eight passengers, assailed by two hours of anxiety, buried their faces in pillows.

But all 41 persons aboard the Braniff Airways plane escaped injury as the trembling craft tilted on its nose and skidded the final few feet to safety.

Pilot R. O. Mittendorf wore a big smile as he emerged from the plane. Susie Brock, the stewardess, wept with relief. And Bert Bathaway, a passenger, shouted: "Everybody's happy—it was the most beautiful landing I've ever seen."

The plane, a two-engined Convair 340, began its flight at Corpus Christi, Tex. Shortly before 9 p.m., just after the craft took off from Oklahoma City for Kansas City, the nose wheel jammed.

"We knew we were in trouble as soon as we took off," said Mittendorf, a veteran of 16 years of flying with Braniff. "A signal light indicated something wrong."

Passengers were informed. While the plane circled and circled, the word got out in Oklahoma City.

"We watched a big traffic jam develop at the field," Jack Mayfield, a passenger, said. "People had come out to see us come down."

Then Mittendorf received instructions to bring the craft back to Dallas to attempt a landing. Fire trucks, ambulances and police cars lined up along 7,000-foot runway, waiting.

Aboard the plane, 22-year-old Miss Brock, served coffee and hot chocolate.

"That's a part of the training they give you," she said later, dabbing tears from her brown eyes.

There was no panic among the passengers, men or women. Three aircraft plant employees even went to sleep.

Mittendorf made two passes over the field "to give ground personnel a chance to get a look at the plane."

Just before the wheels touched he cut all engine power and switched of all lights to lessen the possibility of fire.

For several thousand feet the plane rolled on two wheels, while ambulances and fire trucks screamed in pursuit. Then it nosed over, its tail tilted toward the sky.

An hour later Mittendorf taxied another Convair—with 58 passengers aboard—out to another runway, and took off for Kansas City.

Brooklyn Subway Crash Injures 77

NEW YORK (UP)—Seventy-seven persons were injured Friday night when a subway train slammed into the rear of a second stalled train in a Brooklyn tunnel.

Eight of the injured were hospitalized. Two were in serious condition. Motorman William Hoke, 46, was pinned in the seat of his cab for an hour and a half before being extricated by police and fire rescue workers with acetylene torches.

The injured, including 13 children, were treated at four hospitals, most of them for cuts, bruises and shock.

Momentary hysteria spread through both trains in the darkened tunnel after the crash, which jolted most of the 300 passengers in the two trains from their seats.

There Shall Ye See Him

And when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him.

And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted.

And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.

But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.

And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.

Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils.

And she went and told them that she had been with him, as they mourned and wept.

And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.

After that he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country.

And they went and told it unto the residue: neither believed they them.

Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen.

And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature . . .

So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God.

—From the Gospel according to St. Mark.

The Offer Stands

PREMIER BENNETT HAS stated his belief that the federal offer of funds for development of Columbia River power is merely a piece of political propaganda. It is to be hoped, for the sake of the province, that this will not be his only reaction.

It is true that the manner of presentation of the offer was discourteous. It was made in the form of a public statement by Fisheries Minister James Sinclair. It is obvious, too, that publication was timed with political effects in mind.

But the matter cannot be left there. Mr. Sinclair's announcement was followed by a statement in Parliament by the Prime Minister. It is recorded in Hansard as firm Government policy, and as such, despite its first informal appearance, it calls for serious attention in British Columbia.

Mr. Bennett would like to use the manner of publication as a reason for ignoring the offer, and thus support his expressed preference for financial aid from United States interests. But the Canadian Government's offer of up to $300 millions for Columbia development cannot be brushed aside. The next move is up to Premier Bennett, who should open negotiations with Ottawa as soon as possible.

Smear—The Memory Lingers On

A CCF SPOKESMAN, MR. ALISTAIR Stewart, was talking for most Canadians when he attacked the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee for smearing Mr. Herbert Norman. The latter's death he called "murder by slander".

Mr. Stewart's anger was genuine. He expressed loathing for the practice of destroying a man's reputation by innuendo and unproved charges.

With that point established, it is passing strange to see a CCF member employ almost the same technique as the subcommittee in an attack on Agriculture Minister James Gardiner.

Mr. Gardiner is no paragon. And Mr. Gardiner requires no one to fight his battles for him. But he has been served badly by Mr. E. G. McCullough, CCF member for Moose Mountain, Saskatchewan, who claimed that the Federal Government had paid far too much to an Alberta sheep breeder when his diseased flock had to be destroyed.

Mr. McCullough implied that this was because the sheep breeder, Mr. P. J. Rock, was "one of the most important Liberal supporters in Alberta." Mr. McCullough added that there were "persistent rumors" which he was "inclined to believe" that payments had been made for lambs born after the disease was discovered, that not all the sheep were, in fact destroyed, that some substitutions had been made and some sheep shipped to a Manitoba farm.

Mr. Gardiner quickly took up the challenge to prove that no "skulduggery" had occurred.

He convened the committee on agriculture, called witnesses and disproved the allegations on all points to the complete satisfaction of all committee members, CCF representatives included.

Mr. McCullough's "persistent rumors", which Mr. McCullough was "inclined to believe", have been repudiated. Mr. Gardiner and his department have been vindicated. But the smear has been spread. Once issued, such charges, no matter how baseless they may be, are not forgotten. It is questionable if the correction ever catches up to the false statement.

That is the evil of the smear, whether it originates in a U.S. Senate subcommittee or in Canada's Parliament. The CCF members will do well to remember the fact.

For An Auditorium

Much has been said and written about the need in Victoria of a civic auditorium. The need for such an institution has been felt for many years.

The proposal of spending at least part of the centennial grant for the establishment of such a centre has received wide public acceptance. The grandiose scheme of building a civic centre at a cost of two million dollars is so absurd at this time that no one in his right mind deems it worthy of a second thought. But the main idea of such a centre is still sound. An auditorium is urgently needed, not as a multi-million dollar white elephant as the Memorial Arena proved to be, but as a down-to-earth, reasonably priced asset designed to meet an immediate need.

Recently the City Council was offered what seems to be a perfect answer. It was stated in the press that the building known as the Sirocco was offered to the city for the modest sum of $65,000, and was turned down without so much as a second look. Here you have a glaring example of the utter indifference of our city fathers. Had they cared to they would have discovered a soundly constructed building with an auditorium capable of accommodating over 1,000 people, equipped with the latest banqueting facilities alone worth over $20,000; parking facilities, club rooms, and what is said to be the finest dance floor on the Island, convenient to hotels, handy to transportation, central and going for a fraction of its actual cost.

Why?

I read with interest about Bruce Hutchison's meeting with Marshall Alanbrooke in Winnipeg some years ago.

Why didn't Alanbrooke bring the world shattering information to light in his book, and why can't Bruce tell us some of these mysterious secrets which he learned about in Winnipeg? If Churchill and Alanbrooke were so marvelous why did Dunkirk ever happen, and why did the British get chased back to Cairo twice?

Why were we left a shaky legacy in the Eastern Mediterranean which Eden tried to rectify with too little and too late.

Monty was the best tactical general of the war, but I would need more evidence before I would accept Alanbrooke as the best strategist.

Flag on Quebec

In an article dated April 10, regarding HMCS Magnificent's return to the Royal Navy, the article wrongly claims that the "Maggie" was the flagship at the "Spithead Review" of the coronation of Queen Elzabeth II.

As a former matlot and ex-crew member of the cruiser HMCS Quebec, I wish to point out that Rear-Admiral R. E. S. Bidwell, flag officer, Atlantic Coast, flew his flag in Quebec under the command of Captain Patrick David Badger. HMCS Quebec was the flagship of the Royal Canadian Navy's coronation squadron comprising the "Maggie," Ontario, Crescent, La Hulloise and Lauzon.

LOOSE ENDS — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Are We Pampering Our Head Muscles Too?

THE scientists, as I see by the papers, have found that Canadian muscles are relatively weak—mainly, they believe, because we no longer participate as a rule in athletics but only watch them. In the middle of certain violent exercise with an axe — too violent for any ordinary athlete — I have been wondering how the same process affects the muscles of the mind.

Hutchison

It is easy to understand that a nation cannot grow physically strong and stretch its muscles by watching football and hockey games, only the vocal cords being thus exercised. (America, you would think, must have the strongest vocal cords in the world. It may leave the hard work of athletics to a few paid professionals but it certainly can shout.)

But the effect of mass spectatorship on the mind is a subtler business. Still, it must be profound. How much mental exercise is provided by the subjects now occupying most of our minds most of the time?

THE small minority who produce their own amateur theatricals, for example, must use their brains and develop them. The amateur painter, sculptor or woodworker has to think in spite of himself. Best of all, the gardener uses the muscles of both brain and back, which accounts for his superior level of physique and mentality.

The great majority, however, do not use tools at all. They watch. And all the commercial forms of amusement are designed, at great expense, to prevent any possibility of thought, which is not good box-office. The men who make television programs and movies must use their heads, but they take care that their customers don't.

EVEN in politics the same precautions against brain exercise are now taken by most politicians. They don't want the public to think too much, for thought would be bad for the average candidate. If the public once began to think seriously about its own affairs, you never know what would happen, but undoubtedly it would be unpleasant for governments and oppositions alike.

Hence the great art of the modern politician is to take the most complex and controversial ideas, about which all thoughtful men are very doubtful, and wrap them up in sugar-coated pellets, sticky slogans like lollypops and palatable gum drops like soft money and low interest rates.

KNOWING nothing about education and having none, I hesitate to mention the school system but, judging by its recent products, I suspect that it, too, is doing everything possible to make thought easy and painless. And in my own lowly trade of journalism it is essential, if any difficult subject is broached, to make it look easy if you want anybody to read it.

We have developed, indeed, two separate and distinct channels of communication which use almost two different languages — a kind of mandarin speech for the thinkers and a simple, basic dialect for the general public. We live by double-talk.

The national election now under way illustrates this process vividly.

STATESMEN of the better sort (we have some of the world's best in Canada though only foreigners suspect it) speak the mandarin language among themselves. They have to grapple with hard financial, economic and legal facts, to read masses of dull reports, repulsive documents from their officials, columns of statistics. In short, they have to think and, among themselves in Parliament, they argue on a pretty high level.

It would be useless, however, to speak in that language or argue in that detailed fashion among the voters, since the voters would not understand and wouldn't listen.

If the average voter regards that statement as an insult, let him ask himself how many Canadians read the Hansard of Parliament, which can be procured for about two dollars a year, a great bargain. How many have read the full report of the Gordon Commission, the Fowler Commission, the Bank of Canada?

HENCE the shiny, over-simplified pills of argument used in the election campaign because the public will not swallow rougher fare. In an age of spectatorship the statesman may be a thinker in private but he must be mainly a performer in public to compete with the performers of the athletic field, the movies and the television screen, where the competition for the public attention is growing fiercer every day.

The competition is not mainly for the public mind, however. It is not designed to stretch the muscles of the brain but, on the contrary, to relax them, fatten them, soften them up and make hard things look easy.

Performers of all sorts, in politics and in the industry of commercial amusement, increasingly regard the public mind as such a brittle instrument, such a delicate mechanism and frail cobweb that it must never be strained, lest it snap and shatter.

THE physicians may perhaps be able to tell us how long a society can retain its bodily strength by watching a few hirelings perform, like the gladiators of Rome, the exercises once performed by everybody. It is much more difficult to tell how long a society can retain its mental strength or even its sanity lolling in an easy chair and watching a few men think.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG — By GUS SIVERTZ

Lily Time, the Best of All the Year

IT was always nicest when Easter came late as it does this year so that the lilies would be out in all their shimmering and breath-taking beauty. When Easter came too early, as it sometimes does in March, there wasn't nearly as much fun as when it arrived after the middle of April and the world was clothed in a wondrous soft green. March could be too boisterous and downright cold when the winds whipped in from the sea.

Sivertz

And the lilies I mean, of course, are the wild white lilies that blazed in such glorious extravagance in all the fields around Victoria. This was the flower that we were told should be called the "dog-toothed violet" which we knew was utterly ridiculous and it was unique to the lower tip of Vancouver Island so that we could boast to those benighted folk that lived on the Mainland that they could never go lily picking.

Teachers had drilled into our otherwise obtuse heads that we should never pluck the stems so that they pulled out the sort of socket that led down into the bulb.

If this happened, we were told, the lily would die and it is amazing how carefully we observed this injunction and how angry we would get at those who, simply snatched up the flowers without breaking off the stems.

Well, when Easter came—as it does now—in the full season of lily-blooming time the fields drew us like sugar draws flies. There was no real need to go farther than a mile or so, but that would have defeated the purpose of an all-day expedition with lunches—and maybe a fire with roasted potatoes on the beach at Cadboro Bay.

Ostensibly the expeditions of this order were to pick enough lilies to sell bunches in town for candy money. But this wasn't the reason really.

The real reason was simply an imperative urge to get out in the fields and race like mad over rocks; jumping little streams; scrambling up the gnarled trunks of huge oaks until we were ready for the more pedestrian occupation of picking lilies.

The usual route was out Richmond or Lansdowne and then along the edge of the old Hudson's Bay property that is now the site of so many lovely homes between Richmond and Cadboro Bay Road.

If it was sunny and warm bumblebees would be blundering their clumsy way from blossom to blossom of early blooms. They always reminded me of friendly fat men wandering aimlessly around.

Then we would climb the fence at what we called the "B.C. lands" where beef steers from Alberta foothills grazed, as it was the pasture of a slaughterhouse that defiled one horn of Cadboro Bay. It doubled our fun if a nervous or cranky steer took a notion to gallop a few yards toward us so that it made an excuse to swarm up into a safe seat on a big oak.

But never were we seriously endangered by the cattle although we kept a wary eye on them while picking arm loads of lilies and snatching up a few tiny bunches of little stars of Bethlehem or peacocks.

Long before it was time to go home we had so many lilies that they dripped from our arms as we headed for the beach below what is now a swank motel, and 50 years ago was the site (at least we thought so) of the Mystic Spring of which Mr. D. W. Higgins wrote in a book of early tales.

Whether our spring was Mr. Higgins' spring or not, it became the receptacle for our lilies while we lit a fire and prepared to roast our spuds in the coals. And there was always time to make a raft out of a couple of pieces of stout cedar with a few boards laid across them and then to paddle out into the placid bay.

From the few houses back of the beach blue woodsmoke curled upward as supper time approached and one could hear the lowing of cattle waiting to be milked.

It was a peaceful hour and we soon beached our rafts and ravenously attacked sandwiches washed down by clear spring water and accompanied by piping hot potatoes which we split open and lashed with butter and sprinkled with salt.

There may have been better things to do in this world but if there were they have entirely escaped me.

An Easter Morning Lives in Memory

By B. LUKIN JOHNSTON

EASTER in Rome! I think these must be magical words to Christians all over the world. I am not a Catholic, except perhaps in the literal meaning of that word. My dictionary says, "Universal, pertaining to all Christians." So, as Easter draws near, my memory takes me back to one of the most profoundly moving experiences of my life.

I arrived in the Eternal City on April 14, 1938, the day before Good Friday. Rome was full to overflowing, as excursion trains were coming in daily from Poland, Spain, and all over Italy. On Easter Sunday, Pope Pius XI was to canonise three saints, one from Poland, one from Spain, and the other an Italian.

I asked the porter when I arrived at my pensione, whether there was any chance of my getting a ticket for the ceremony in St. Peter's. He said, "No," the only possibility was to get up very early in the morning and take my chance of getting inside.

Luckily, however, an American tourist had an extra ticket which I was able to obtain.

The next morning we got up at 5:30, and were outside St. Peter's by 6.30. The doors were opened an hour later, although the ceremony did not begin until 10.30.

The huge square was a seething mass of people, and I felt as if I was in a football scrimmage.

Richly Rewarded

Then the service began, and the singing enthralled me, so I decided to stay, and was richly rewarded by a strange encounter, and a never-to-be forgotten experience. In a vast crowd like that, your neighbors are constantly changing, and suddenly I found something digging into my ribs.

It was a three-legged stool, carried by a Dominican Friar. Our eyes met, and and he smiled, half apologetically. I said, "Do you speak English?" He said, "Yes, I do."

So I asked him whether it would be possible to push the stool down. I told him I had been standing for five hours, and would be glad to sit down, if only for a few moments. Well, he managed it, and the relief was wonderful. He told me that a lady had thrust the stool at him, saying she felt faint, and had to get out.

Although it was grand to sit down, the breathing space was even less, so every now and then, I had to pull on his habit, and come up for air. Later, people began to thin out, and then we gradually worked our way up to the barrier, directly behind the Vatican guards. He told me some very interesting things about them. They are all from Switzerland, and competition is very keen in that country, as it is a great honor to be selected.

My kind friend described the ceremony, and I wish I could remember the different symbols as he explained them then. There were loaves of bread on a large silver platter, a barrel of wine, and one of water. Also a dove, and two pigeons in cages. All had some special significance in this scene of amazing splendor and intense religious fervor.

Different Orders

After a long time, it was over, and the procession began to pass slowly by. My friend told me what the different orders were, and from which country the cardinals and bishops had come.

Then the great moment came, as the Pope was carried past in his special chair.

The attendants waved large feather fans, making a welcome breeze in that stifling atmosphere. The Pope looked very old and fragile, so small in his heavily embroidered white robes, with the triple crown on his head. When he reached the door, the chair was turned around and he looked back at the people.

They were waving and shouting, "Viva il Papa" (Long live the Pope). I saw his lips quiver, and one could almost read his thought, "This is the last time." It was. He did not live to see another Easter Sunday.

My friend and I went out together, he wondering what to do with the stool! We had another long wait until the Pope was carried out on to the balcony, where he blessed the crowd. It was an unforgettable experience.

Thousands of people who had been unable to get in, had waited hours for this moment.

Suddenly a hush came over all, for the Pope's voice came out through the loud speaker. So clear and strong, in strange contrast to his frail appearance. At his first words, with one simultaneous movement, everybody knelt. People of many nations, and of many faiths, were united in a mystical communion, as we were blessed by this holy messenger of God.

Strangely Illuminating

As we rose to our feet, for one fleeting moment the Friar's face looked like one of the saints of old. This to me was strangely illuminating, and revealed a great deal. While we had been waiting, we had talked of many things, and he told me something of his life. He was born in Malta, this accounting for his excellent English.

He was educated in a Dominican monastery and at 17 began his novitiate, which lasted for five years. During this time he studied Hebrew and Greek, and was now working in the Vatican library, translating some of the old manuscripts of the order, into modern languages.

All this was told quite simply, not at all egotistically. He had traveled too, and seemed to be such a man of the world, with a keen observation of people and things.

Frankly I was puzzled. It seemed to me that he was wasted, that he should be helping to govern, a leader in some way or another. And then I had the answer, as he rose from his knees.

I knew that he did not see me, or the crowd, but for a few moments he had been in the world of the spirit, radiant, mystic, and completely saisfying.

I realized then, as never before, what it must mean to be able to enter this world, at any time, and anywhere. We shook hands, and went our different ways, and now, as I resurrect these memories, I am deeply grateful for that Easter spent in Rome.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

By SILENUS

A Free Gull's Life

GENTLE readers could not have missed the front page story last week which the Seagull Editor of this newspaper wrote himself. It takes a lot to get this vital functionary personally into print, I can tell you; and the particular occasion which did so on Wednesday was really something.

—5th Century Terracotta
SILENUS

The City Fathers, it seems, are considering methods of discouraging the garbage wharf gulls. Prompted by the City Engineer, a splendid man so far as roads, drains, bridges and so on are concerned, but a dismal flop as a municipal ornithologist, they are talking of dispossessing these birds from their ancient preserves, liberties and franchises.

The Court House Seagull is terribly upset about it, and has been retained by a delegation representing the Rock Bay and Selkirk Water Branch of the Chamber of Commerce to institute quo warranto proceedings, writs of prohibition, habeas refuse and generally do all that is necessary to stop this wicked and unjust encroachment.

* * *

"Look at this!" he said, pointing his pink claw at a passage he was reading from the Statutes at Large (3 Elizabeth the First). "It says 'Byrdes feathr'd of the ayre are free, No man may touch their libertie . . . We've got the law with us, all right!"

"Don't get excited. Remember what the librarian did the last time you were in here."

"Don't remind me of that disgraceful occasion. I was framed; as you very well know," said the old bird, drawing himself up with dignity, and pacing majestically up and down the book-strewn table. "It was one of those young devils of mine who was supposed to be helping with the research. I've fired him, anyway. Better to do it myself."

"How are you going to proceed?"

"Well, I haven't altogether decided yet. But the first thing to do is get an injunction, just to have it ready in case. Not that the measures which I am told have been suggested will do any good. What do they take us for? We're gulls, 100% red-blooded Victoria gulls, not a bunch of effete Cathedral pigeons. It'll take more than a mere smear of tanglefoot to keep us out of our ancient rights!"

* * *

"What are your rights?"

"Socage, pasturage, pillage and ullage. Oh, yes, and demurrage. It's all in here." And he stamped his foot on a weighty tome, raising a cloud of dust. "There has never been anything so disgraceful since the Enclosure Acts. Victoria garbage has been ours since it first appeared. Prescription! Immemorial user! Dedication! And furthermore, the Navigable Waters Protection Act. Just let 'em try! We're all going to the next council meeting, more than a thousand of us. The Chatham Island Association and the Beacon Hill Old Age Crust-Swoopers Club are sending representatives. We hope to convince them by other means, but we're prepared to go to law if all else fails! Three-mile limit! Foreshore rights! No taxation without representation! Awwrrk!"

"Nevertheless I hear that the City has been put to some expense providing umbrellas for the workers at the wharf."

"A vile smear! They've got to prove intent. Mens rea! Reasonable doubt! Autrefois acquit! Besides, it's the terns. You'd better be on your way. I've got a lot of work to do."

I had barely closed the door when a frightful uproar arose behind me, and the Seagull flashed past with a librarian in hot pursuit. "Persecution!" he shrieked as he banked sharply and swooped out the window.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Pall Mall Skyscraper

LONDON—The changing face of London . . . This city is to have a skyscraper on something like North American proportions. In a few weeks work will start at the corner of Pall Mall and Haymarket on what will be the tallest building in central London— despite a bitter fight by the Royal Fine Arts Commission to prevent its being built.

Reyburn

Many huge new buildings are now going up in London but their bigness is based on the fact that they occupy long blocks not on height, because they are only around 10 stories. The Fine Arts people didn't like the idea of a big finger of a building sticking up in the air from its more modest neighbors.

* * *

However, New Zealand House, for whom the building is being erected, won the battel and up it will go 17 stories with a penthouse on top—225 feet high, towering 41 feet above the Nelson Column in nearby Trafalgar Square.

The site is one not only well known to Londoners but to Canadians also. The famous Carlton Bar and Grill was there, just a few steps along the street from Canada House, the Canada Sun Life building, the CPR and CNR offices, etc.

During the war, when Canadian military headquarters was in the Canada Sun Life building, the Carlton was a favorite eating and drinking place with officers, which conjure up, for me at any rate, names out of the past such as Bill Abel, Larry Audrain and Eric Gibbs, the CMHQ PR stalwarts.

* * *

But now the Carlton, for so many years such a popular rendezvous, is to share the fate of two other famous restaurants which have recently made way for offices—Frascatti's on Oxford Street and Odenino's at the bottom of Regent Street.

Each of the Dominions, with their growing importance over the past few decades, is suffering from housing problems in London, and not the least Canada. Canadians will cast envious eyes at New Zealand's London skyscraper, in which all their offices now spread around London will be centralized.

* * *

I had heard rumors that there was a new Canada House to be built and this is something that is really a pressing need. At present those doing business with Canada in London find they have to chase all over the city to get anything done.

Canada House itself on Trafalgar Square houses but a small proportion of the official offices; the other offices are in 10 other buildings as far apart as Kensington, Mayfair and Soho.

But when I checked with Canada House to find out whether we were going to emulate New Zealand, I learned that "the high commissioner will never be moved from the wonderful site of Canada House on Trafalgar Square."

However, it seems Ottawa has thought of putting up a building on a site behind Canada House to centralize the other offices, but I gather as yet it hasn't got far beyond the thinking stage.

Canada Quadruples Armor for NATO Force

OTTAWA (CP) — The armored proportion of Canada's NATO brigade in Germany is to be quadrupled. The change becomes effective during rotation of the force next autumn.

Defence Minister Campney announced that the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade is to relieve the 2nd Brigade before Christmas, and that the brigade's armored component is to be raised from the present squadron to a full regiment.

The significance was that the new balance of infantry to armor extends to the NATO brigade the benefits of an army reorganization earlier this year that saw two infantry battalions disbanded and a third armored regiment organized. That gave the army one armored regiment to every three infantry battalions.

Air Safety Pioneer Retires

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Edward Pearson Warner of the United States, a scientist who saw aviation grow from barnstorming to inter-continental transport services, today announced his retirement after 11 years as president of the Council of the International Civil Aviation Organization.

Dr. Warner, who was elected president at the first meeting of the provisional international organization in 1945, will be succeeded by Walter Binahi of Argentina.

During the period he headed the council, the ICAO membership grew from 26 to 70 countries which co-operate within the framework of the United Nations specialized agency.

In the last decade he played an active role in the standardizing navigational services, air traffic control, communications, regulations defining the rules of the air, conditions under which aircraft and personnel are to be licensed and in the simplification of customs and immigration procedures.

FBI Sniffing Scent: Who's Got the Scotch?

SEATTLE (AP) — Who got away with the barrel of Scotch?

The mystery of the missing hogshead of imported stuff came to light Thursday with the filing of claims of $1,248.64 against the Port of Seattle.

The hogshead was one of 30 delivered from Scotland to Seattle last December for the State Liquor Control Board. It disappeared Dec. 11.

There have been charges before that dock workers upon occasion have slipped a bottle or two under their jackets on leaving the job. But never anything like this.

This was 62½ gallons; 630 pounds. Special stuff, too—114 proof, ready for "watering-down" to 86 proof by the state agency.

And it was valuable: the whisky and the $14 hogshead were worth $397.19; import duty, $101.43; internal revenue tax, $750.02. The claims are by the federal government for the duty and taxes, and by the state board for the whisky.

The FBI has been trying to pick up the scent.

WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—Saturday promises to be the nicest day of the Easter weekend over most of B.C. Skies will be sunny in most sections and showers will be less frequent than in the past two days. The outlook for Sunday's weather, however, is not so promising. An intense storm is now moving into the Gulf of Alaska and is expected to give a glancing blow to the western portions of the province as it moves southward. The north coast will feel the effect of the storm today and by Sunday morning cloudy skies and fresh southerly winds will be pushing into the south coast.

'Cruel Sea' Tonight at 7.30, C-5; Special Easter Shows Sunday Morn

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

It's slim pickin's tonight but Sunday promises a bountiful harvest of good programs as befits the day and the season.

First of all, there are two excellent motion picture offerings. The first takes place tonight at 7.30 on Channel 5. It is Nicholas Monsarrat's "The Cruel Sea." The second takes place Sunday, also at 7.30 on Channel 5. It is possibly the most tuneful of the many musicals put out by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in the 1930s, "Top Hat."

Sunday starts at 8 in the morning with a Roman Catholic Pontifical High Mass being telecast via Channel 4 for one hour from Cincinnati's St. Monica's Basilica.

An hour later Channel 4 will carry "Triumphant Hour," the story of the Resurrection as told in prayer and music. Those to be seen include the Dionne Quintuplets, Bob Hope and his family, and Ann Blyth who will sing.

At 11 opera lovers can tune in Channel 4's adaptation of Verdi's "La Traviata," with Elaine Malbin. At 11.30 Channel 5 will offer a special Easter drama entitled "Hill Number One." Stars are Ruth Hussey, the late Jean Lockhart. It was in this film that the late James Dean made his TV debut.

At 2 p.m. Channel 4 will carry 60 minutes of championship golf, the conclusion of the fifth annual Tournament of Champions at Desert Inn golf course, Las Vegas, Nev.

And at 5 p.m. Channel 2 will present an Easter Parade of Stars, including Perry Como, Alex Barris, Hit Parade Dancers, Foster Hewitt and a host of Canadian TV stars. The variety show was filmed at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto.

At 8 those old enough to remember the 1920s when Gene Austin crooned such tunes as "My Blue Heaven" and "Ramona" should turn to Channel 4 for TV Playhouse's hour-long "The Gene Austin Story." Although Austin will make an appearance at the end of the show his part will be taken by George Grizzard.

Now here are the weekend's highlights in order of their appearance.

Godfrey Eyes Legitimate Acting Roles

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP) NBC is trying to work out a TV version of "The College of Musical Knowledge," the old Kay Kyser radio quiz. Dennis Day is shaping up as emcee. If the show comes off, it'll probably replace the Tennessee Ernie Ford daytimer.

The William Morris Talent Agency is pitching a TV comedy series at Carl Reiner and Howie Morris, Sid Caesar's banjanas. It's called "Up Front" and is based on the Bill Mauldin war cartoons. Neither Carl nor Howie, however, wants to make a move until NBC makes a decision on the Caesar Hour.

Jim Lowe, the fellow who recorded 'Green Door,' may get the nod as emcee of "Lucky Lady," a new giveaway in preparation for an ABC-TV afternoon slot.

Arthur Godfery wants to dabble in legit acting. He's been offered a part this fall on "G.E. Theatre" . . . Gen. Douglas MacArthur turned Mike Wallace down when Mike tried to woo him for his new ABC-TV interview show.

Lynn Dollar of "The $64,000 Question" dyed her hair fire red . . . "Wide Wide World" has taken on a temporary staff member who is a millionairess she's Anne Giannini of the banking clan.

"The Buccaneer" will walk the plank at CBS-TV . . . Bill and Cora Baird, the puppeteers, shoot the pilot of a new series, "Sinbad the Sailor," next week.

Henry Kaiser, the industrialist, is furious at NBC-TV for wanting to switch the starting time of his "Kaiser Aluminum Hour" on Tuesday night. He's ordered his ad agency to yank the drama show and move it to another network this fall—right now ABC-TV is pitching a Thursday night spot at Kaiser.

"Armstrong Circle Theater" also is showing signs of making tracks out of NBC for another network . . . NBC-TV has eyes for the "Bob Cummings Show," now in theCBS-TV stable.

If NBC-TV latches on to the new Shirley Temple fairy tale series, it'll be alternating with Dinah Shore on Sunday nights . . . the Howie Morris' named their new daughter, Gaby . . . the Sonny Foxes decided to call their new girl, Meredith Allen.

And Jack Sterling of CBS radio offers this definition of an actor's agent: a guy who sometimes bites the ham that feeds him.

Sunset Rites Begin on May 7

The colorful and unique-to-Canada sunset ceremonies here will start May 7 in front of the Legislative Buildings.

A minimum of 28 observances are planned with local service units, including cadets, participating. The 5th Independent Medium Battery will hold the first ceremony.

Major Douglas Nelson of the battery said of the ceremonies: "We know of no other place in Canada that does them. If they go over well here, why can't they go over elsewhere?"

He said it is difficult to "shove Canadiana" down the throats of Canadians, "but they have got to smarten up."

Major Brent Murdoch pointed out the ceremonies publicize the armed forces, act as a recruiting spur, entertain the public and give troops the chance to show parade ground skills.

The city will present either a swagger stick or bosun's pipe to the smartest serviceman in each company, and a plaque will be presented at season's end to the smartest militia and cadet units.

LIQUOR THIEF'S BOTTLE-A-DAY MENU RUNS DRY

VANCOUVER (CP) — A tippling thief had his source of alcoholic elixer cut off today, but not before he had consumed seven quarts of fine rye at no expense to himself.

Police reported a government liquor store finally turned wise to a smart ruse.

The thief's source was a case of rye whisky near a window.

During the day, the window, facing an alley, was opened for ventilation. The opening left just enough space for the thief to cut a hole in the case and remove the whisky, a bottle at a time.

New Floor for Arena Rejected by Council

A proposal that tenders be called for a new floor freezing system at Memorial Arena was turned down Thursday by city council.

The arena commission pointed out the floor has been faulty for years, there is great difficulty in maintaining a proper ice surface and a general breakdown is feared.

Estimates of cost ranged all the way from $35,000 to $50,000. The arena, however, has only $4,000 in its capital expenditure fund after making its annual debt payment of $25,000 to the city.

ENGINEER OPPOSED

City engineer James C. Garnett said he is opposed to a new floor, contending the old one could be maintained for years by repeated patching. He anticipates cost of the running repairs at less than $3,000 annually.

If tenders were to be called, he felt they should include tenders for a portable plastic pipe freezing unit which might cost $20,000.

City manager C. C. Wyatt, a member of the arena commission, favored a new floor, especially in view of the Brier Cup curling championships, slated to be held there next year.

Ald. M. H. Mooney was the only alderman to support the proposal.

CALLS FOR ABOLISHING OF 'FOREIGNER' LABEL

"Rotary should take the lead in abolishing the word 'foreigner'—it has a certain sting."

This was the advice given to Victoria Rotarians Thursday by Don Johansen, who emigrated to Canada from his native Norway in 1928 and has been a member of the local club for the past five years.

Speaking on "The Fourth Objective of Rotary," Mr. Johansen said:

"You can call a man a so-and-so affectionately, but not a 'foreigner'. It creates a barrier. We should never belittle a person's country, habits or way of life.

"Rotary can help other people understand these problems so that newcomers may retain their dignity."

Sal Serves Close Shave Over Bucs

Yanks Beat Sox In Ninth Inning

Sal (The Barber) Maglie, the scowling mound veteran of the Brooklyn Dodgers, was well-fixed for blades Thursday as he pitched a razor-sharp four-hitter against the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Maglie, said to be washed up, looked anything but as he pitched the Dodgers to a 6-1 win over the Pirates. His mates backed him noisily, collecting 14 hits along the way.

Milwaukee Braves needed only one hit to defeat Cincinnati Redlegs. The one decisive blow was a 400-foot home run blast by Hank Aaron that gave the Braves a 1-0 victory and a pitching victory to controversial Lew Burdette.

Elsewhere in the National League, New York Giants leaned on the home run bats of Hank Sauer and Gail Harris for a 6-2 win over Philadelphia Phillies.

TIGERS LOSE AGAIN

In the American, the New York Yankees again pulled one out in the ninth, scoring twice to defeat the Boston Red Sox 3-2; Cleveland's Indians handed the winless Detroit Tigers a third consecutive defeat, 8-3, in 11 innings with rookie Roger Maris swatting a grand slam home run; and the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 6-2 with three home runs.

Maglie, who fanned five, walked three and didn't permit an earned run in his 200th major league start, breezed through his 23rd lifetime victory over the Pirates in 28 decisions. Two home runs, Gil Hodges' second and Duke Snider's first, sewed it up for the Brooks while handing the defeat to Luis Arroyo, a lefthander who met the usual southpaw fate in Ebbets Field before 11,202.

Ruben Gomez restricted the Phillies to eight hits while the Giants put their first victory away with a four-run fourth inning—three on Harris' homer—against loser Curt Simmons.

30,000 SEE YANKS

Boston's Frank Sullivan had squeezed in a run for a 1-0 lead and had retired 19 Yankees in a row before Hank Bauer squared things with a home run in the eighth. In the ninth, the Yankees scored two more on a walk, Gil McDougald's pop fly triple and Elston Howard's single. Bob Grim won in relief of Johnny Kucks, although touched for Dick Gernert's ninth-inning home run. A crowd of 30,468 showed up for the Boston opener.

Ocean Falls Rated Best In Gala

Coach George Gates has his Ocean Falls swimming team in Victoria today, getting their first taste of the Crystal Gardens waters in preparation for their meet Monday night with teams from the hosting Flying Y, Vancouver Y Torpedoes and New Westminster YMCA.

Coaches have gone grey-haired trying to pick and choose between their team members to see who will represent their clubs. Victoria will have the largest club in the meet, but Ocean Falls rates as favorite, as they will have several Olympic stars in their line-up.

Tickets are on sale at the YMCA desk and at the Crystal Garden for the event, which starts at 7.30 Monday night.

January Leader at Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Golfer Don January slammed a seven-under-par 65 Friday for a course record and the lead at the mid-way mark of the $40,000 Tournament of Champions.

The 27-year-old professional from Lampasas, Tex., with a remarkable comeback from a dismal round of 78 Thursday, toured the sunswept Desert Inn Country Club course in 32-33 for his 65 and a 36-hole total of 143.

Par for the test is 36-36—72, and January's 65 broke the course record of 66 which Art Wall Jr. set in winning this event in 1954.

Tied for second at 145 were Jimmy Demaret of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y.; Billy Casper Jr., of Bonita, Calif., and Arnold Palmer of Latrobe, Pa. Demaret shot a 72, Casper 70 and Palmer 73. Palmer and Ed Furgol led off as co-leaders from the first round. Furgol took a 77 for 149.

Gene Littler, who won the $10,000 top money here in 1955 and 1956, stayed in contention with his second straight 73 for 146.

Minors Big Winners, And Times (Of Course)

Minor soccer and the Victoria Times All-Stars were the dual winners Friday in the Juvenile Soccer Day at Athletic Park.

The Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association bolstered its bunkers by the sum of $1,800 as a result of the day and, in the feature game, the Times All-Stars enhanced their glittering reputation, winning the Tony Hope Memorial Trophy by defeating the Colonist All-Stars by a lopsided 1-0 score.

Presenting almost eight continuous hours of soccer, the annual Juvenile Day not only enabled the association to gather funds for future expenses but gave the pleasing crowd an insight on the fine job being done by the coaches and managers who donate their time to handle the many teams in the LIJJSA fold.

In addition to the eight games, the jam-packed program also featured the presentation of a tableful of trophies won by teams and players throughout the season, and the selection of Miss Betty-Ann Saddler as Miss Juvenile Soccer. Miss Saddler was representing the Optimist team.

And, to make a perfect day end on a note of complete satisfaction, it was the Times over the Colonist by a wide margin, that one-goal difference notwithstanding.

The show opened early in the morning with Optimists of division six beating Saanich Thistles of division seven, 4-0, on goals by Lloyd Murphy, Mike Watson, Norm Pite and Jamie Angus.

This was followed by a rousing division five game as Central Flyers beat Lansdowne Trojans, 1-0, on Bobby Armstrong's goal.

Nanaimo Wins Division VI Crown

In a division four game, Vic West and Eagles fought to a 1-1 standoff, Larry Johnson scoring for Eagles and Roy Williams for Vic West.

Dave Collett was the individual hero of the division three game as he scored the only goal of the game to give Eagles a 1-0 win over Fuller's Clippers.

Goals were even scarcer in the division one game as Tillicums and McNutts battled to a scoreless deadlock. Gary Cooper was outstanding for Tillicums, as was McNutts' goalie Gerry Caldwell.

A hustling, well-drilled Nanaimo South End Aces team overpowered ANAF Veterans of Victoria 6-0 to win the Island division six title.

Harvey Thom, Nanaimo's efficient centre forward, led the scoring with three goals and was aired by Terry Mann with two and Terry Norman with one. However, the youngster who caught the eye of most fans was Nanaimo's little blonde inside right, Duane Bodeker, who is tabbed for future stardom.

Vancouver Nor-West Senators scored two goals early in the game and another pair in the last minutes to beat Victoria Optimists, 4-1, and win the B.C. semi-final in the division two section.

Mike Pearson, Bob Patterson, Buzz Punch and Wayne King took care of the Vancouver scoring and Larry Brown got Victoria's only goal of the game.

The Times All-Stars scored the only goal of the feature game in the first half and held off the younger opposition for the remainder of game.

Times' Defence Wrecks Rivals

Biggest factor in the Times' victory was the defence, starting with the superb goal-tending of Al Davies, to the canny blocking of fullbacks Len Scott and Lionel Speller and extending to the stout work of the halfbacks, Gary Crowe, Ken Hill, Bob Mars and Joe Robbins.

Robbins, who played a particularly fine game on the halfline, repeatedly breaking up rushes and keeping his forwards well supplied with passes, summed up the game as, "just another example of us more mature fellows putting those kids in their place."

The teams both missed big scoring chances early in the game. After 10 minutes, Colonist goalie Archie McMillan made a fine lunging save of Crowe's ticketed shot and George Robbins, Colonist centre forward, shot wide on a partial break.

Don "Taffy" Jones broke the game open at the 35-minute mark, taking Charlie Constable's smart pass and driving in a waist-high shot for the only goal of the game.

Davies was tested severely in the second half by Ernie Eastlake, Cedric Robb and Robbins, but was always on the spot to clear.

Outstanding players in the game were Davies, Joe Robbins and Colonist's brilliant fullback, Bill Hope, who was a one-man gang on defence.

Following the game, Hope presented the Tony Hope Trophy to Times' captain Constable, who turned it over to manager Denny Boyd. Losing manager Jim Tang termed the game, "a deserved victory but still an upset."

John Hicks Wins Top Boot Prize

John Hicks received the top individual award during presentation ceremonies at the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association's annual "Minor Soccer Day" at Royal Athletic Park.

Hicks was named winner of the McLaren Memorial Cup, which annually goes to the division 1 player who has best combined soccer ability and sportsmanship during the season.

Stu Walker was named best rookie of the year in the senior league and the Division II Optimists were awarded the President's Cup for making the best team showing on Minor Soccer Day.

A special award, in the form of a scroll, was made to John Youson by LIJJSA commissioner Ernie Costain in recognition of Youson's outstanding service to juvenile soccer.

WET PITCH LANDS ON GILES' DESK

Lew Spits Back at Birdie

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Lew Burdette angrily objected Friday to being called a cheat as charges that the Milwaukee Braves right-hander throws a spitball reached the desk of National League President Warren Giles.

"I'm no spitballer and I'm no cheat," said Burdette in reply to charges made by Cincinnati manager Birdie Tebbetts after his Redlegs had been shut out 1-0 by Burdette Thursday.

"I don't like the idea of a guy calling me a cheat," said Burdette who until then had laughed off Tebbett's assertions that Burdette throws the illegal spitter 25 per cent of the time.

"That's carrying a thing too far. He's stirring up a big stink that isn't going to do him or me any good. I don't mind him squawking about it, but if he's going to stir up a lot of trouble, I think he's going a little too far.

"I don't want just a little thing between Birdie and me spreading out so far as the commissioner's office or the league president. That's a lot of hooey.

"Baseball is bigger than Birdie and I."

The dispute centres on Burdette's habit of reaching to his mouth before he pitches. It's one of the fidgety moves he makes while on the mound.

Burdette, who has beaten Cincinnati eight straight times since 1955, said: "The rule doesn't say you can't go to your mouth. It says you aren't allowed to apply a foreign substance of any kind to the ball or rub it on your uniform. Well, I don't do any of those things."

"The rule," Tebbetts said, "doesn't say anything about rubbing your fingers off after wetting them. I want clarification of that rule, so we'll know what you can do and what you can't."

The request for clarification was made when Gabe Paul, Redlegs general manager, delivered the official protest to Giles in Cincinnati.

"The Cincinnati club protests the repeated violation of rule 8.02 with request that there be a clarification so that all clubs completely understand exactly what they are permitted to do," Paul said in a letter.

Burdette said he's not the only pitcher that goes to his mouth, and charged that Cincinnati hurlers do it also.

When pressed to name some that do, Burdette mentioned Art Fowler of the Redlegs, Sal Maglie of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Johnny Antonelli of New York Giants.

All-Star Benefit Preview To Raise Lacrosse Curtain

Six Rocks To Face Timbermen

Nanaimo lacrosse fans get a couple of first looks tonight.

They will have their first peep at the 1957 edition of the Nanaimo Timbermen when the Mann Cup champions tackle a picked squad from the other three Intercity Lacrosse League in a benefit game.

And they will see home-brew Don Sherry operating in a rival uniform for the first time.

Proceeds from tonight's game at Nanaimo Civic Arena, which starts at 8.30, will go to boost the fund for the family of Tommy White, Nanaimo athlete who was killed in a car crash late last year.

Sherry, the speedy forward who played a big part in the T-Men's march to the Canadian boxla crown last year, was picked up by Victoria Shamrocks during the winter and will be making his first appearance with some of his new mates tonight.

GEORDY IN GOAL

Also representing the Rocks in tonight's game will be goalie Geordy Johnston, defencemen Al Davies and Lew Landess and forwards Peewee Bradshaw and Bert Bertoia.

The other two intercity loop clubs — New Westminster Salmonbellies and Vancouver Pilseners—will each have five players on the picked squad.

Among the most interested spectators at tonight's game will be officials of the Shamrocks, who tackle the Timbermen at Memorial Arena in the season-opener next Friday night.

SOLONS WIN IN 10TH

Pinch-Single Nips Mounties

By United Press

If the games in the Pacific Coast League Friday night had been any closer, they would have had to decide them by tossing a manager.

With one doubleheader on the slate there were five games played and four of them were one-run decisions—two of which went into extra innings. The fifth game was a one-sided affair that wound up with a two-run margin.

San Francisco took over top spot in the loop by way of the back door — splitting a doubleheader with Seattle while Vancouver was losing to Sacramento.

The Seals beat Seattle 2-1 in eight frames of a seven-inning game and then lost out 6-4. Sacramento went 10 innings to dump Vancouver 3-2. Portland finally got back on the winning stride after six misses by beating San Diego 6-5 and Los Angeles took Hollywood 3-2.

SORE-ARM WINNER

Duane Pillette, who has nursed a sore arm for some time, made his second start of the season for the Seals and won his second 2-1 victory. The only run off him was unearned as he held Seattle to six hits.

Little Albie Pearson drove in the winning run with a single in the first extra inning.

In the second game Seattle bunched four runs on three singles and some wildness in the second inning and stayed ahead the whole distance. Pearson clouted his first home run in PCL competition in the sixth inning.

Pearson's homer was only one of two in the league. The other was also in a losing cause. Mudcat Grant, San Diego relief pitcher, hit a two-run blast in the bottom of the ninth that nearly—but not quite—let the Pads catch the Beavers.

Portland had taken a big lead with five runs in the fifth.

Art Cuitti of Sacrameto pinch-hit a single in the bottom of the tenth to give Sacramento the win that knocked Vancouver back into second place. Cuitti was batting for Frank Wehner, who had scored the two earlier Sacramento tallies.

Los Angeles made it three in a row over Hollywood by pushing across two ninth inning runs in a loosely played game.

Again the bombing duel between Dick Stuart and Steve Bilko fizzled as neither player was able to generate a base hit—much less one of their highly publicized home runs.

Regals Put Royals In Hot Water

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—Coach Hal Laycoe of the New Westminster Royals admitted his club would be "in trouble" if they didn't beat Brandon Regals Thursday night.

His fears may have been well founded. The Regals defeated the Royals 3-2 to make it two straight in the best-of-seven Western Hockey League finals.

The game also marked the last hockey this season for New Westminster's Queen's Park Arena, thronged with nearly 5,000 fans for the final game.

Had the Royals won, the third game would have been played here tonight. Now, the series will finish in Brandon with the next game scheduled for Tuesday.

MANSON TOPS

Ray Manson, with a goal and two assists, led the Regals followed by Les Lilley and Bob Chrystal, each with one.

Rookie Denny Olson got both the New Westminster goals, each on assists by veteran Max McNab.

Manson caught the Royals' defence line flat-footed when he cut in from the corner and instead of passing, shot to beat netminder Marcel Pelletier, subbing for Royals' regular goalie Bev Bentley for the second straight game.

Manson's opening counter came at 10.37 of the first period. Royals tied it up at 14.21 when Olson struck home with a McNab pass from behind the net.

Then, with only three seconds left in the period and the Royals apparently waiting for the buzzer, cunning Les Lilley darted out to score.

The teams skated scoreless through a second period but came to life at 6.01 of the final frame when Olson, taking a pass from McNab on the Brandon blue line, bore down on Lucien Dechene. Olson's first shot was blocked by a defenceman but the second try went home to even the scoring.

The tie-breaker was scored by Chrystal from the blue line.

Missing Letter Holds Answer To Flyer Withdrawal Threat

EDMONTON (CP) — Dr. Rupert Clare, chairman of the Edmonton Exhibition Association's hockey committee, said Friday night Edmonton Flyers have definitely sent a registered letter to president Al Leader of the Western Hockey League, giving notice of the Flyers' withdrawal from the league.

The Edmonton Journal reported Thursday that the Flyers were withdrawing from the league, at least temporarily, in an attempt to "shock the game into adopting a realistic approach to its financial and physical problems."

Dr. Clare said Friday night that a letter advising Leader of the withdrawal was mailed this week. He said possibly Leader has not yet received it.

In Seattle, Leader said Thursday that he had received no word from Edmonton regarding the withdrawal.

The newspaper story said the Flyers' decision, subject to change, is a move to force western professional hockey to review its financial commitments and to spark a move aimed at more equitable distribution of hockey benefits.

The club now feels the National Hockey League gets more than its share of the benefits and hockey below that level gets little encouragement.

In confirming that the letter was sent, Dr. Clare said the Flyers would like to remain in the WHL, but only if the operation can be made financially sound and if the benefits of hockey are more evenly distributed.

Tillicums Snatch Seat In Pin Musical Chairs

Championship and roll-off time has swung around again on Victoria bowling alleys with all the usual elation and disappointment, upsets and shoo-ins.

One of the trickiest upsets came this week in the Commercial Tenpin League who make their home at Gibson's Bowladrome.

Lucky Lagers, Tillicums, Princess Mary and Suncrest have been battling pin-for-pin to see who would take the second half title and meet Shaw Sheet Metal in a roll-off for the league title next week.

Luckies were out front by a spare margin and met Princess Mary in the final night of play while Tillicums played Thirteens.

It was so close that when Princess Mary beat Lucky Lagers, the losers were tumbled into third place and Tillicums, by taking three points, sneaked past the other teams, in their game of musical chairs to win the second half.

Princess Mary held their second position while Suncrest remained in fourth.

In the Mixed Tenpin League roll-off Bon Cafe took the silver when they beat Who No's for the crown, two games to one Thursday night, while Individuals moved into third spot and Shaws picked up the consolation prize.

Doug Kyle Wins Hamilton Race

HAMILTON (CP) — Olympic marathon runner Doug Kyle of Calgary Friday became the first Canadian to win the 15-mile annual Hamilton road race since it was inaugurated in 1950.

A strong finish gave Kyle a time of one hour, 23 minutes and 40 seconds, and victory over five-time winner Browning Ross, of Woodbury, N.J., who finished second with 1.25:18.

OAK BAY BID FAILS

Russel Cup Back At Victoria High

Victoria High School, determined to have full possession of the Howard Russel Rugby Cup, fought from behind three times at Vic High on Thursday to squeak by Oak Bay High, 13-11.

The win, added to an earlier 16-6 victory and a 3-3 tie in the best-of-three series, gave the Vics the trophy for the second time in three years. Last season the two squads each won a game and tied another to share the cup.

In Thursday's game Vic High needed only a tie or a win to clinch the cup; the victory did not come easily.

Oak Bay was ahead, 11-10, with less than four minutes left in the game, and they seemed headed for the win to give them part possession of the cup again this year.

But Vic High's John Reid, who had booted the penalty kick that gave Don Smyth's crew the first game tie, made the play that won the game.

Climaxing two earlier successful converts, Reid got the ball from a scrum and drop-kicked it into the end zone, and battered his way through the Bays to ground the ball for the winning try.

He missed the convert attempt, but it was not needed.

At times clearly the better team, Oak Bay's squad could not get a sustained offence under way.

Oak Bay opened scoring as Jere Mitchell booted a penalty kick, but John Sellins evened the score with a try a few minutes later. Reid converted to give the Vics a 5-3 half-time margin.

On the third play of the second half, Jack Showers and Bruce Roberts combined to run half the length of the field for a try that gave the Bays a 6-5 edge. The convert was short.

Don Shewchuck got one back for the Vics and Reid converted to give High a commanding 10-6 lead.

BAYS LEAD

But Oak Bay was not through yet, as Wayne Farmer made a picture run around the back end to ground the ball squarely between the goal posts and Jere Mitchell booted the ball between the uprights to give Oak Bay the lead for the third time in the game, 11-10.

Time was running out for the Vics at this point, but minutes later Reid made his try to put the game on ice.

Magic John Winding Up O.C. Career

LONDON (CP) — The magic name of John Charles pulled in more than 56,000 soccer fans at Sunderland where Good Friday's biggest crowd watched the Leeds United star make one of his last appearances in the English League.

Charles produced some clever touches at centre forward but did not score and wound up on the losing side as Sunderland won 2-0 on goals by inside forward Stan Anderson and centre forward Charlie Fleming. The victory moved Sunderland into fifth place in the First Division.

Sunderland centre-half George Aitken almost blotted Charles out of the game. Charles will play his final game for Leeds in the return Easter match against Sunderland Monday. Next season he will play for Juventus of Turin, Italy. The Italians signed Charles Thursday from Leeds for a reported £55,000.

Terry May Return But for Red Wings

Hall Rumored as Bait In Bruin-Wing Trade

DETROIT (AP)—The Free Press says Terry Sawchuk may return to the National Hockey League next season as goalie for Detroit Red Wings.

Sawchuk quit Boston Bruins in January, after a siege of illness, saying his nerves were shot. He has been at his home in nearby Milford, Mich., since then.

The Free Press says the Red Wings, who won the regular season title, then were whipped four games to one by Boston in the semi-final round of the Stanley Cup playoffs, will trade goalie Glenn Hall to Boston in order to obtain Sawchuk who remained the Bruins' property.

General manager Jack Adams of the Red Wings, who traded Sawchuk two years ago after five seasons by Sawchuk in the Detroit nets, confirmed that he has asked Boston for permission to talk terms with the former Red Wing.

Sawchunk said he had talked with Adams.

FILLED GAP

Boston came up with an outstanding rookie in Don Simmons when Sawchuk quit. Presumably the Bruins would arrange another deal to peddle either Hall or Simmons.

"Terry is too good a goalie to stay out of hockey," Adams said.

Sawchuk agreed he would like to return to the game.

"I have a natural preference for Detroit, of course, since my home is here."

Adams said he hoped to work out something with Sawchuk next week and then make Boston an offer.

In Boston, general manager Lynn Patrick of the Bruins said he had discussed the subject with Adams but said he has not talked with Sawchuk since his walkout.

"Apparently he (Sawchuk) does more talking to the Free Press than he does to me," Patrick said from his home. "I am surprised th... story ever got out."

"I can't deny the story," Patrick added. "I've taked to Adams about a trade. We've been offered Hall but I don't know yet what we'll do. I want to do what is best for the Boston Bruins.

"I can say the Detroit club asked permission to talk to Sawchuk, called me and made an offer."

LLOYD C. DOUGLAS' MASTERPIECE
"THE ROBE"
Starring Richard Burton, Jean Simmons, Victor Mature, Michael Rennie
We could think of no more appropriate picture for Easter than "The Robe," portraying as it does the life and times of the Roman Empire at the time of The Crucifixion. Lloyd Douglas' story of the young Roman centurion who was placed in charge of Our Lord's execution is so vividly and dramatically enacted and the disposition of The Robe after "they parted My garments and cast lots" is one which will live in your memory for ever and a day.
To enjoy the full significance of this picture, we advise you to see it from the beginning at the times indicated below. Unreservedly recommended.

Music from Words On Columbia Discs

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Some of the best music was written by composers who were inspired by the works of men of letters. For instance, Hector Berlioz was affected by the writings of Shakespeare—Liszt by Dante.

Likewise Dmitri Kablevsky, Russian contemporary composer, based his famous Colas Breugnon suite on a book written by French novelist Romain Rolland. In order to achieve his objective, he spent two years studying French folk music.

Davy

The result is a lively and exhilerating concert piece which has now earned itself a well-deserved place in the repertoires of orchestras. This orchestral suite is now available on a Columbia record (ML5152), with Vladimir Golschmann conducting the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

The disc also includes Shostakovitch Symphony No. 1 — a work which brought the composer fame. In my opinion this is a three-star disc—the sound and interpretation of the two compositions are excellent.

One of Schubert's most popular works is his incidental music for "Rosamunde" written in 1823 — some five years before his death—for a stage presentation of that forgotten drama. Ever since then it has remained a popular selection of symphony concerts.

A first class interpretation of this work is given by Bruno Walter conducting the Symphony Orchestra (Columbia ML-5156).

On the reverse side is Schubert's Symphony No. 5. If you like Schubert here are two of his top major works—both ably performed.

POPS LIBRARY

The Duke of Iron has recorded an excelent album for RCA-Victor entitled "Calypso Carnival." It includes 12 numbers, with good combo backing. Among the songs are "A Better Woman Than You," "The Duke of Calypso" and "Pepper Sauce Milly."

Unquestioned queen of t he calypso singers is Maya Angelou, who established herself in West coast night clubs. Her music, on a Liberty LP packaged as "Miss Calypso," often is more African than Caribbean, but this relieves the monotony. Many of the 14 numbers on this exotic LP are Maya's compositions.

★ ★ ★

For those who take calypso lightly, "Marianne" by the Easy Riders (Columbia) is an ideal LP. It offers calypso, folk songs and blues.

Calypsingles — "Shake Shake Sonora" by Lord Flea (Capitol), "Water by the Norman Luboff Choir (Columbia), "His Feet Too Big for de Bed" by Stan Kenton. (Capitol).

Best prospect—"Shish-Kebab" by Ralph Marterie (Mercury) . . . May be a bigger hit than Marterie's "Skokian."

Best revival — "Ma, She's Making Eyes at Me" by Somethin' Smith and the Redheads (Epic) . . . Fine banjo work.

Best jazz (cool) — "Bass," a Bethelm LP, demonstrates the techniques of the great bass player, Oscar Pettiford, and the up-and-coming Vinnie Burke.

AN ACTRESS OF GREAT CHARM who possesses a fine soprano voice, is Margaret Hall. She is the attractive heroine of the forthcoming Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Operatic Society's production of "The Chocolate Soldier." In the past few years, Mrs. Hall has had many stage successes both here and in Vancouver. She is also a clever costume designer. Production dates are April 29 to May 1.

Cornell to Re-Create Shaw Role on Screen

NEW YORK (UP) — Katharine Cornell has finally decided to star in a motion picture. Her debut will be in one of her greatest stage roles, the title part in Bernard Shaw's "Candida."

Guthrie McClintic, producer-director who was at the helm of most of Miss Cornell's greatest successes and is her husband, announced he has acquired world-wide film rights to the famous Shaw comedy and will produce the film version.

Miss Cornell's close association with the role—and with Shaw's lifetime refusal to allow others to interpret it on the screen—was one of the prime factors influencing Miss Cornell to agree to star in the screen version of "Candida." Despite the fact the Shaw never got to see Miss Cornell on the stage, she was his choice to bring it before the motion picture cameras.

The filming probably will take place this summer in London. McClintic expects to have a cast of internationally-famous performers. Among the actors who appeared in the stage play with Miss Cornell were Marlon Brando and Burgess Meredith as the poet, Marchbanks, and Raymond Massey and Basil Rathbone as Morrell, Candida's husband.

Miss Cornell is one of the few contemporary actresses of great reputation who has shunned a movie career.

Sadler's Wells Ballet to Make Longest Visit

The Sadler's Wells Ballet from the Royal Opera, Convent Garden, will return to New York next season for its fifth tour of the United States and Canada. The engagement will begin at the Metropolitan Opera House Sept. 8.

The company will play in New York for four weeks and tour for 17 weeks thereafter. It will mark the longest period the company has ever performed in the United States.

Dame Margot Fonteyn again heads the roster of ballerinas which will include Beryl Grey, Nadia Nerina, Rowena Jackson and Svetlana Beriosova. Elaine Fifield, whose scheduled appearances here in 1955 were cancelled by illness, will return as a ballerina.

The tentative itinerary lists Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, St. Louis, Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland and Seattle. Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver and Winnipeg are the cities likely to be visited in Canada.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Oscar Class) BB Worthwhile)
A (Don't Miss) B (For Rainy Days)
C (To put in time)

(OSCAR CLASS) "THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS" (Royal)—Several times during its long running time director Billy Wilder invokes a spirit of the country humor and slapstick mish-mash into "The Spirit of St. Louis," pandering obviously to those who won't be satisfied with fact without fiction. In spite of this, however the story of Charles Lindbergh's trail-blazing flight across the Atlantic, from New York to Paris, in 1927, emerges as a top-flight biography.

Based on Lindbergh's Pulitzer Prize-winning book, "The Spirit of St. Louis" starts and finishes with the flight. The Lone Eagle's background (air mail pilot, barnstormer, U.S. Army air cadet, instructor) is filled in for the theatre patron during the long (33 hours) solo into history.

James Stewart, himself an aviator of no mean note, plays Lindbergh with characteristic humility. As he lies in bed waiting for dawn and his date with destiny, there seeps through those watching a tenseness, a fear of the unknown, also a determination to face that which lies ahead. If only the rain would stop!

The moment arrives. Anxious friends and curious crowds gather silently in the sodden dawn. With great skill Wilder builds up the obstacles that faced Lindbergh that morning. The runway is ankle deep in mud and peppered with potholes. Tensely Lindbergh checks the motor to discover that it is running 30 revs. too low. At the end of the short runway there are the telephone lines and beyond them the tall trees. "The Spirit of St. Louis" is topped up with more gas than it has ever carried before —by 100 gallons.

BUT HE makes it, of course, as one knows he did, but that isn't guaranteed to make one's blood pressure less. Then he settles down for the long vigil. There is something almost ethereal as the tiny plane and its lone occupant pick up the shores of Nova Scotia, then Newfoundland. For dreary hour after dreary hour the engine purrs along. Twice Lindbergh fell asleep at the controls. Once he was about to abandon the craft as ice coated the wings and almost drove him into the sea. There was the moment he picked up a fishing boat in mid-Atlantic and circled to hail it ("Which way is Ireland?"). At last, to his amazed eyes, land comes to view (he is ahead of schedule because of a brisk tail wind) and he is almost delirious with joy as he recognizes Ireland's Dingle Bay. After that it is a dream as he picks up the Seine and follows it in to Paris where there are 200,000 excited Parisians on hand to mob a new hero.

The story of Lindbergh had to be filmed. Therefore it is good to be able to say that "The Spirit of St. Louis" has caught not only the feat but the age admirably. It is a picture that one and all should see for it depicts history in our time, the forerunner of all the great things we see in the sky today.

"The Sea Shell," a first play by Jess Gregg which was under option to the Theatre Guild for a couple of years, has been taken over by a new producing firm made up of Mrs. Lemuel Ayres, widow of the late producer-designer, and Max Meth, veteran Broadway musical director. They plan a production early next fall. Meth is due in New York soon as conductor of the orchestra for the new "Ziegfeld Follies."

Singer Rosemary Clooney's hobby is keeping up with her husband's hobbies. Since her marriage to Jose Ferrer, she has taken up chess, tennis, fishing, raising dogs, painting and horseback riding, plus learning to turn out Bach chorales on a clavichord.

BOOK TALK By JAMES SCOTT

'Pretentious Illiteracy' Scored by British Baron

Following up our discussion of words which are distinctively Canadian, Dr. Walter Avis who teaches English at the Royal Military College, Kingston, adds a few to the list such as concession road, bennett-buggy, aboideau, splake, bluenose, herring-choker, newfie, malemute, etc., etc. I'm familiar with most of these but can anybody tell me what a splake is?

Scott

Still on the linguistics front, Henry George Strauss, 64-year-old first Baron Conesford of Chelsea, took another swing at English as it is spoken in the U.S.A. (and Canada too, I suppose) in a recent interview in New York City. Lord Conesford is the man who Americanized Churchill's "Give us the tools and we will finish the job" into "Donate us the implements and we shall finalize the assignment."

This, says the baron, is "pretentious illiteracy." Among new targets which he found on his present visit were words like "hospitalized" —what is he when he is cured, "dehospitalized"?—and "inspirational"—does it mean "inspired" or "inspiring" asks Lord Conesford.

However, the British critic had some kind words to say about our so-called slang which he finds vigorous and enriching to the language. Words like "debunk", "bulldoze" and "gobbledygook" he found "quite admirable."

it's so quaint, and gives such a smart emphasis to things which are not in themselves very witty."

Which makes me wonder what Shaw would have made of a recently much publicized comment by the President of the United States, and I quote: "Well, now, let us do not go too fast."

NEW THEME

To get back to books: Eric Williams, the man who rocketed to best-sellerdom with The Wooden Horse and followed it up with two more escape yarns —The Tunnel and The Escapers—has had to seek a new theme for his fourth and latest, Complete and Free.

The title comes from a Robert Louis Stevenson quotation, "And to live out of doors with the woman a man loves is of all lives the most complete and free."

This is just what Williams and his wife Sibyl tried for a few months on the continent of Europe. They literally lived under canvas all during their tour and if the book is to be believed, had the time of their lives.

This is not so much a book about adventures on the road (although they are in it) as it is an affirmation of a way of life. It marks a tangible point in the progress which Mr. Williams' thinking has made since he had so many long hours for reflection behind the barbed wire of the prison camps he made so famous in earlier books.

He, at least, now knows where he stands, has a set of values he believes in. An achievement worth recording in a book.

Kittens in Kindles and Whales in Pods

I wonder what the crotchety lord would think of the word some of my own students have coined—or perhaps borrowed—to describe a skiing expedition —to them it's a "skifari". Not bad, eh?

Another correspondent calls my attention to a rather obsolete usage for what I suppose most of us would call a litter of kittens. The older form is "a kindle of kittens" which somehow seems nicer and more descriptive. It also brings to mind such correct phrasings as "a school of fish" a "trip of seals" or a "pod of whales."

Incidentally, in case you're interested, a kitten need not be a young cat; it can properly be used to describe the young of the skunk, rabbit, otter, hare, beaver, ocelot, cougar and bobcat.

Well, you never know when such stuff may come in handy. At any rate, it proves that the language is still flexible and more than a little wonderful.

Or as Shaw made Clara say in Pygmalion, "I find the new small talk delightful . . . and

HERMIA FRASER

Chapbook Adds To Knowledge Of Haida Custom

"THE ARROW-MAKER'S DAUGHTER AND OTHER HAIDA CHANTS," by Hermia Harris Fraser. The Ryerson Press, Toronto. 16pp. $1.

This small chapbook, despite its brevity, adds to the stature of the author as a chronicler of true folk material of Canada's Pacific coast.

Mrs. Fraser, a former Victorian now resident in Vancouver, has considerable skill both as author and artist; she has used these skills to record the graphic and lively arts of Haida Indians on many occasions and has also lectured on the subject.

The current volume, just off the press and neatly bound between hard covers, gives further proof of her feeling for Haida rhythms and the conscientious quality of her research.

Title poem is couched in dramatic form and affords considerable insight into some customs and beliefs of the people of the Queen Charlottes.

Each poem is fully notated and the Haida words freely translated.

Prayer Therapy Was Result of Breakdown

PRAYER CAN CHANGE YOUR LIFE, by William R. Parker and Elaine St. Johns Dare, Prentice-Hall Inc., New York. 270 Pages. $3.50.

According to the jacket cover this book is destined to become a classic in inspirational literature. That, of course, only time can prove. In the meantime, it is another of the books blending psychology and religion which have been having a successful run in the last few years.

The authors claim it reduces "Prayer Theraphy" to a series of simple rules that anyone can apply for more joyous, productive living.

Skepticism is welcomed, says an author's note which adds that to receive the full benefit of the book, the reader should begin with a healthy skepticism but should be fair, open-minded and want to be shown.

PERSONAL SOURCE

Although Dr. William R. Parker and Elaine St. Johns Dare are given as authors Dr. Parker seems to have taken over and is frequently referred to as the author. A professor at California's University of Redlands, he found himself on the verge of a nervous breakdown. When other help failed he began to pray and in a few months was entirely well again.

This experience led him to find out why so few really reap the benefit of their prayers. He conducted an experiment with 45 men and women from every walk of life, including agnostics, a minister and an atheist.

The book which, is largely based on this experiment, claims it proved a triumphant forward step in self help—prayer theraphy.

It describes the small band of troubled people, who, doubtful and unbelieving at first, "made themselves whole." It lists the ingredients for successful prayer.

The book abounds in quotations and acknowledgment of sources of information.—T. M.

Advertising, Not Circulation At Root of Magazines' Demise

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — When a magazine dies, the post mortem is likely to be long and anguished.

A clinical example is the jittery reaction which has followed suspension of Collier's magazine and the Woman's Home Companion at a time when both were at circulation peaks totalling some 8,000,000 copies an issue.

First of all, the foldup meant a lot of Crowell-Collier publishing company employees were out of jobs. Free lance writers worried about the loss of two important markets.

And inside the magazine publishing industry there began an intense and anxious period of self-scrutiny.

If this could happen to two such magazines, why couldn't it happen elsewhehe?

PLENTY OF READERS

In the diagnoses of what killed Collier's and the Woman's Home Companion one thing, at least, seems clear: It wasn't a lack of readers.

Readers, for whom the magazine presumably is published have been behaving admirably from a publisher's point of view. They have been buying more magazines.

The most recent published circulation figures on 140 magazines with subscriptions over 25,000 show that between 1955 and 1956 there was an average increase of 7½ per cent.

And consumers have been doing more than just buying magazines. They have been reading them more, despite distraction of television. Repeated surveys show that the honeymoon of the literate American and his newly acquired television set starts to wane after the first year.

After that the set owner gets back on the road to his old reading habits.

LOSE ADVERTISING

But while TV apparently has not had a big impact on reading habits, it has managed a few midriff blows at magazine advertising. For one thing, it has booted the magazine from second to third place as an advertising medium.

Newspapers claim $3 in advertising for every dollar plucked by TV. Magazines are getting about 75 cents.

Management policy and operations have received much of the blame for the collapse of an important area of magazine publishing in the face of an increasing reader market.

Bernard Gallagher, magazine broker and author of a widely-read industry newsletter, predicts two other magazines will fold before July and that another three are hanging by the cuticle.

One of the supermarket magazines already has refunded money to advertisers because it did not make its circulation guarantees; another broadened its sales from store check-out points to regular newsstands.

BLAME INCREASED COST

When the McCall corporation, parent of McCall's Magazine, cut by half its quarterly dividend to stockholders shortly after announcement of the Crowell-Collier suspension, the president of the corporation reported a drop in earnings and blamed increases in paper costs and higher expenses for wages, advertising, selling and promotion.

At the same time, however, McCall's found it had gained in sales. Rising production costs are the grey crows in all publishers' corn cribs.

Manheimer also says that "any magazine with more than 50 per cent of its sales in subscriptions is due for trouble—if it's not in trouble already."

He explains that many magazines, in an effort to deliver huge guaranteed audiences to advertisers, frequently must spend more to sell circulation than the magazine costs to operate.

He points to cut-rate price offers, the cost of buying or developing mailing lists, personal solicitation costs, postage, and billing expenses.

TITANS DOING WELL

There may be much truth in Manheimer's theory. But there certainly are plenty of exceptions.

Life magazine, with a subscription list accounting for more than 80 per cent of its circulation, last year achieved a level of earnings "never before equalled by any other magazine in the history of publishing," according to a recent management letter to Time, Inc., stockholders.

Other industry titans also appear to have had a satisfactory year. Among them are circulation leaders Reader's Digest, Ladies' Home Journal, Saturday Evening Post, and Look.

The last thing a magazine will admit is poor health. There are experts who profess to have inside information indicating that most of the best known, widely distributed magazines are showing profit, not from magazine publishing but from diversified and sometimes auxiliary interests, from book publishing to real estate.

Ryerson Announces 1957 Literary Award

Canada's leading literary prize, the Ryerson Fiction Award has been made this year, to Joan Walker of Swastika, Ont., for her novel, "Repent at Leisure."

Announcement was made Friday, by Dr. C. H. Dickinson, general manager of the Ryerson Press. Judges for the 1957 competition were Doane Hatfield, Halifax, William A. Deacon, literary editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, and Dr. Lorne Pierce, editor of Ryerson Press.

This is the 16th year in which the prize has been offered, although it has not been awarded in those years which did not, in the judges' opinion, bring forward any manuscripts of sufficient merit.

The award constitutes $1,000 cash outright upon announcement. All royalties and other earnings are extra.

English-born and educated, Joan pursued careers as commercial artist, magazine editor and journalist in London before coming to Canada in 1946. She married James Rankin Walker in Toronto that same year and went to live in Val d'Or, Que., where she wrote "Pardon My Parker," the book that subsequently won her the Stephen Leacock Award for humor and which ran into four editions.

Two Hurt as Car Lands on Track

NANAIMO (CP) — Two men were injured Friday when their car skidded off the Island Highway near here and rolled onto the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway tracks.

The auto, a total wreck, was cleared from the tracks and railway service was not interrupted.

Frank Wilson, believed from New Westminster, was taken to hospital with back injuries.

Thomas Carnell of Nanaimo suffered minor facial cuts.

Another passenger in the car, Arthur Neufeld, was not injured.

Harbor Board Setup Seen For Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP) — Ray Knight, chairman of the Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce harbor committee, says the committee is hopeful that a harbor board will be established here.

Mr. Knight, who presided at a special meeting of chamber members called to hear Jack Meredith, research supervisor of the bureau of economics and statistics in Victoria, said the committee is in touch with federal and provincial authorities.

SURVEY

Mr. Meredith said a survey of retail and wholesale outlets in District 68 School Board area will be made next week. He implied this study ties in with hopes of the Nanaimo chamber for a harbor board.

The committee has under investigation the possibility of diking and filling the mud flats at the eastern end of the harbor to provide land for industrial development, and a suitable landing place for the Gabriola ferry.

Hard Hat Saves Logger's Life In Mill Accident

ALBERNI (CP)—Carl Sawchuk, an employee of Sproat Lake division of MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., owes his life to his hard hat, say safety personnel who investigated an accident Tuesday afternoon.

Sawchuk went to hospital, but was reported resting comfortably.

He was struck on the head and knocked from a loading machine when the roof of the machine buckled after being hit by a small chunk of log.

The attending physician agreed that Sawchuk's hard hat saved his life.

Man Fined $100 For Deserting Wife, Children

COURTENAY (CP)—Vanderman Kraushaur, arrested in Edmonton on a three-year-old warrant for deserting his wife and three children, was convicted here this week of non-support.

Kraushaur, who police said had been living in the interval under an assumed name, was fined $100 and ordered to pay his wife $150 a month for support.

Ottawa Deplores Duncan Armoury Dilapidation

DUNCAN—Cowichan Agricultural Society, present occupant of the agricultural grounds and buildings here, has received a letter from the department of national defence deploring the condition of the hall which also serves as an armoury for district reserve units.

It was reported that the roof leaks, and sections of the ceiling are dropping off.

But the local Indian band claims rental for the grounds, and for this reason CAS directors feel it would be unwise to spend money on improvements.

A new site for the fair grounds is being considered on James Street.

Mill Walkout Settled At View Royal

The Sooke Lake Lumber Co. plywood plant wildcat walkout was settled late Thursday after 16 days.

Dispute was concerning use of a foreman as operator of a dryer on the graveyard shift. Management has now agreed to use a union man as operator.

The 175 men will return to their jobs starting midnight Sunday.

Job Picture At Duncan Called Bright

DUNCAN—Employment here is bright compared to the same period last year.

There are only 350 job seekers; last year at the same time there were 875.

Openings exist for skilled and semi-skilled workers, and the demand for stenographers, waitresses and housekeepers remains unsatisfied.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Americans Score

COWICHAN LEADER — Some will doubt that anything remains to be said about the Norman case. Of some interest to Canadians should be the fact that the U.S. Senate is an extremely active body and an elected body, in contrast to our staid and appointed upper chamber.

There is little point in commenting on the tragedy of the ambassador's death, except to say that Mr. Norman's own sensitive nature was hardly the best qualification for a world diplomat, and that his feelings were not assisted by his own government's action in moving him after first mention of the American charges against his past.

Canadians do not like being told that American democracy has some checks and balances which our own parliamentary system lacks. If Canadians, for example, wish to examine Canadian education or crime, will the Canadian Senate do the job? Unfortunately not. A commission must be appointed. In contrast, in United States the Senate jumps into the fray and delivers blows right and left. It is natural that someone is going to get hurt, whether it is Dave Beck, the teamster boss, or a servant of a foreign power.

It is not easy to keep good taste always before public representatives, as the standard of debate in the Canadian House of Commons has proved in the last two sessions. At least the American Senate is an elected body which does give a lead.

Traffic Deaths Decrease in B.C.

Highway deaths and injuries decreased slightly in British Columbia during January and February, although the accident rate continued to climb.

The motor vehicles branch reported 4,515 accidents during January and February—a rise of 576 over the same period last year. However, the 1,144 injuries showed a decrease of 24, and the 28 traffic fatalities were two less than last year.

Property damage rose from $1,498,712 in 1956 to $1,874,814 this year.

The leek, national emblem of Wales, is a biennial plant largely grown for food.

Subsidized Ferries Labelled 'Unfair'

SIDNEY — David March, owner of the Gulf Islands Barge and Boat Service, has complained that subsidies granted Gulf Islands Ferry Co. Ltd. constitute unfair competition to his freight-carrying operation.

"I don't think it is right to use pubic money to force me out of business" he said.

Mr. Murch complains that the $84,000 granted the ferry company last year "enables them to move freight at a price out of all proportion to my costs."

Thomson Renamed To Water Board

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. I am familiar with the Guernsey-lily, and would like to know if the Jersey-lily is another name for it, or whether it is another plant. J. C. R., West Vancouver.

A. The Guernsey-lily is Nerine sarniensis, but I have been unable to find a reference to the Jersey-lily. However, I seem to remember reading of it once referred to as Amaryllis belladonna. Neither are true lilies, both belonging to the amaryllis family. Perhaps other readers may be able to help with the Jersey-lily?

Q. I have a number of small gladiolus corms which I wish to grow on for flowernig next year. Will you please tell me how to do this? V.B., Colwood.

A. Sow like peas in shallow trenches of well-cultivated soil enriched with rotted compost or manure. Feed a balanced fertilizer about early July. As foliage browns in September, dig and treat like full-size corms. Plant in spring, many should flower next summer.

Q. When should I plant seed of squash outdoors and what varieties do well here? H.R., Carey Road.

A. Squash plants are susceptible to even a degree of frost, so do not sow until around May 24. Table Queen, Buttercup and Butternut are small varieties which give fine crops, keeping well into March and even April, and are also delicious when eaten fresh and young.

WEEK'S WORK

If dahlia tubers are slow to start indoors, partly bury them in a box of light soil or peat moss, and syringe the tops with water occasionally.

Pot on fuchsias, geraniums and tuberous begonias as soon as the roots extend to the side of the pots.

Schizanthus (butterfly-flower or poor man's orchid) for pot plants are now ready for repotting and the growing tips pinched out to make bushy plants.

Take cuttings of poinsettia for new plants to flower next December.

Sow seed indoors of dwarf variety of cineria.

Sweet peas raised in pots indoors, and later hardened-off, can now be planted outdoors.

Sow seed in cold frame of broccoli, cauliflower, brussels sprouts, cabbage.

Old Homes Can Be Modernized With H.I. Loan

While the younger set thinks in terms of ranch-types and split-levels in which to set up housekeeping, there is still something about the charm and graciousness of an older house that means "home" to those who started their married lives two or three decades ago.

That is not to say, of course, that many of the refinements of the 1956 model homes—the extra bathroom, automatic heating, finished basement—don't have a great appeal to people of more mature years.

In fact, a great many owners of older houses are combining the charm and graciousness of their homes with the comforts of present-day living by modernizing in just this way.

LOAN SERVICE

And their task has been made easier by the fact that these improvements can now be financed through a Home Improvement Loan. These loans, made by chartered banks to home owners, carry very reasonable rates of interest, and can be repaid over a period of years.

Among the many ways in which a house can be modernized, one of the most popular is the installation of a new bathroom and the addition of either a second bathroom or a powder room.

Old heating units are replaced by concealed radiators, baseboard panels and similar units designed to blend with and enhance modern ideas of decor. In the living room, a new "picture window" may replace the old-fashioned one because new types of low radiators or baseboard panels can be installed beneath it to form an effective barrier between winter's cold and the comfort of the room.

In these and similar ways, the atmosphere of yesteryear can be combined with the comforts and amenities of modern living.

Grasshoppers on range and pasture lands can be controlled effectively with insecticidal sprays applied either by ground sprayer or airplane.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Bulb Prices Indicate Potential Bloom Harvest

Eggs, as every housewife knows, must conform to certain grades before being sold, and the containers must be clearly marked as to grade and size.

The bulbs we use in our gardens must also meet certain size requirements before being released for sale.

The essential difference between the egg regulations and the bulb regulations is that bulbs can be sold at retail without informing the customer of the size being offered.

JACK

Anemones, for instance, are listed by one grower in six sizes, snowdrops in three sizes, tulips in six, and daffodils in seven.

This means that one variety (King Alfred daffodil, Clara Butt tulip, or St. Brigid anemone) can appear in various stores at a wide range of prices.

INDICATES GRADE

Of course, there can exist a difference of a few cents in the pricing of the same grade of bulb, but when an appreciable difference in price is noted it is an indication of a difference in grade.

To the gardener this means that the price indicates the returns that may be expected in size and number of blooms from each bulb he purchases.

Since the grade, or size, of bulbs is not specified, it would be quite natural for the gardener to assume that keen competition exists in the selling of bulbs, and decide to buy where the price is lowest in the belief he is getting the greatest value for his dollar.

Daffodils are a good example of the returns one might expect. Twelve small sized bulbs may give 12 medium sized flowers, but 12 top size bulbs could give 48 large blooms on long stems, many of which would be perfect show flowers.

By investing in the top sized bulbs, the increase in returns is much larger than the increased investment.

The same applies to other forms of garden material. Due to vagaries of climate, soil and culture, all plants of one variety grown in the various nurseries throughout B.C. will not reach the identical size and shape in any given period.

Therefore we find these plants offered at many prices. The gardener may not be able to detect any difference excepting in price, but he can rest assured that the value he receives will be proportionate to the price he pays.

Kiln-Dried Lumber Plan Said Threat to B.C. Market

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia lumber manufacturers have asked Ottawa to intervene in a situation which they say threatens their $70,000,000 lumber market in the United States.

A recent statement issued by the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association says that Southern Pine Producing Mills are trying to have American lumber standards changed in favor of kiln-dried lumber. B.C. mills ship their output without kiln drying.

Adequate facilities for kil drying do not exist in B.C. mills, said a spokesman, and to cut the lumber to a larger dimension, as the proposed change would require, would cost $3 or $4 more in freight rates.

Garson Spells-Out RCMP History Of 'Norman' File

Undercover Report Lay Dormant 10 Years Until Rated 'Erroneous' by 1950 Probe

By VICTOR J. MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—A secret agent's report in 1940 labelling an unidentified "Prof. Herbert Norman" as a member of the Canadian Communist Party, checked by the RCMP and believed to be erroneous, lay in the police files for 10 years until 1950 when it was sent to the FBI in the United States.

Hon. Stuart Garson, minister of justice, in a statement issued here Friday made it clear that the first report received by the RCMP involving a "Prof. Norman" was received in 1940 but the police found no positive identification that the "Norman" in the report could be linked to the late E. Herbert Norman who was on the staff of the department of external affairs.

The minister issued his statement in order to clear up some of the misconceptions and confusion in the "Norman Case" that have developed as a result of a statement issued by Hon. L. B. Pearson, secretary of state for external affairs on Wednesday.

Discussion of the Norman case is obviously far from finished. It is becoming an issue in the general election. The disclosure by Mr. Garson that the police agent's report lay in the RCMP files for 10 years is expected to arouse new comment and criticism of the government's handling of the affair.

Pearson Had no Knowledge of '40 RCMP Report

The justice minister explained that neither Mr. Pearson nor Mr. Pearson's department had any knowledge of the RCMP secret agent's report of February, 1940, until the Norman case came to its attention in 1950 because of investigations in the United States.

Mr. Garson said: "The question may well be asked as to why the RCMP agent's report was not followed up and passed along to the department most directly concerned."

He explained: "It must be noted that this reference to a 'Prof. Norman' was included in a general report by the secret agent along with a number of other names. No specific particulars were given and the report was received at a time when floods of similar reports on many people and apparently arising from wartime tension were coming to the RCMP.

"A cursory check was made and it was found at once that the information was certainly not completely accurate.

"For instance it was found that no one by the name of Norman had been on the teaching staff of McMaster University for a long period of years.

"After these cursory enquiries, the matter was not followed up further and the reference simply remained on a general security file. It is to be noted that at the time the agent referred to a Prof. Norman 'at that time attending Harvard University', the late E. H. Norman, was a junior official with the external affairs department in Ottawa awaiting a posting to Japan.

FBI Received 'Interim' Report in October, 1950

"When Mr. Norman's name was introduced before the Senate committee in Washington in Washington in 1950 the RCMP files were searched and the item mentioned in the secret agent's report of 1940 came to light," said Mr. Garson.

The RCMP in accordance with the practice of exchanging security information with the United States security authorities, passed along the following "interim" report to the FBI in October, 1950, and the external affairs department: "A check of our records reveals the following: 'In February, 1940, a secret agent in Toronto reported that one, Professor Herbert Norman, who at that time was attending Harvard University and was connected with McMaster University in Hamilton, was a member of the Communist Party of Canada. This source stated that it was Norman's intention to return to Canada in the hope of gaining admission to the faculty at the University of Toronto or Queen's University.

"'Some enquiries were carried out at that time and it was learned that there was no record of any Herbert Norman having been a member of the faculty at McMaster University nor were any former members of the staff at McMaster known to be at Harvard at that time. There is no positive identification of this Pro. Norman with the subject of this report (E. Herbert Norman), nor is it known that subject was ever a teacher at a university'."

Mr. Garson said there was then a full and searching security investigation launched.

(The late Mr. Norman, the Canadian foreign service officer, was recalled from his Far East post and underwent intensive examination.)

The RCMP was assisted by other security agencies in its exhaustive investigations.

"In the course of this investigation," said Mr. Garson, "any bits of intelligence which might conceivably have a bearing on the matter were brought out, followed up to the limit, and analyzed. The 1940 secret agent's report was included in a preliminary summary (the report of Oct. 17, 1950) as an unassessed and unevaluated bit of information, which, however, needed to be dealt with.

"It was so dealt with and eliminated in the following report of Dec. 1, 1950," Mr. Garson declared.

Information in Error

The RCMP report of Dec. 1 was made available to the external affairs department and to the U.S. security agency. It read: "We have made extensive enquiries concerning the information originally supplied by our secret agent, and have arrived at the decision that the information given is one of either mistaken identity or unfounded rumor by an unidentified sub-source.

"Of the numerous points supplied at the time, the majority have been absolutely determined to be in error. The remaining few have not been confirmed, nor does there appear to be any answer to them. The source does not recall the matter. We have therefore deleted the reference insofar as Norman is concerned."

This quotation was included in Mr. Pearson's statement which he issued to the press Wednesday. That statement gave rise to confusion as to when the RCMP first received its agent's report, a confusion now cleared up by Mr. Garson.

ROCKS, POT-HOLES AND NARROW SECTIONS still provide inconvenience and potential driving hazards to motorists using Malahat, and situation will continue all summer. Big rocks beside road near Shawnigan Lake cut-off hedge narrow alley for cars, left; idea of sheer rock which had to be blasted to widen scenic drive is shown, centre, while on right, cars by-pass road portion being levelled by bulldozers. Paving must wait for roadbed to settle which is expected "soon" in some sections. Top number of workers, 100, are now employed on road, from seasonal low around Christmas of 47 men.

'Operation Polio' on Again; First Shots May 13 to 17

Fully adequate supplies of Salk vaccine are now assured for Victoria's adult inoculation program.

A spokesman for the Victoria Medical Society, sponsors of the project, said today Connaught Laboratories, Toronto, had guaranteed sufficient vaccine for "Operation Polio."

The program calls for first inoculations from May 13 to 17 in nurses' residences of the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals, 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Second injections will be given at the same time and places in June, and the third and final shots are scheduled for January next year.

The medical society hopes 20,000 Victorians, ages 18 to 45 years, will avail themselves of vaccine benefits.

More than 100 city doctors will give their time free of charge. The Victoria Pharmaceutical Association is providing the vaccine at cost.

Doctors will give the actual injections, assisted by members of the graduate nurses' association.

$3 CHARGE

The three shots will cost $3, the actual wholesale price.

Vaccine will be given for this amount only to persons who have picked up inoculation cards, available at all Victoria drug stores, the week preceding May 13.

"Operation Polio" has been an on-again-off-again scheme over the past few months because an American firm failed to come through with vaccine, before later word had it that the Toronto company might supply the need. This is now confirmed.

MONTE ROBERTS

One of the things I like best about Victoria is the backyard boat.

I don't know if you noticed, but the backyard boat population of Victoria is not only large, but growing larger.

And every boat in a backyard which I see brings me pleasure.

There are all kinds of backyard boats in these parts.

Some of them are being built, from the keel up, by the owners of the backyard.

Some of them are being converted or rebuilt or repaired. Some just receiving an annual scrape-and-paint.

Some are sleek and shiny, with trim, tapering bows, sturdy transoms, graceful cabin work.

More of them are inclined to be on the chopped-up style, with angles instead of curves, and cabins in the chicken-house manner, hacked out of plywood with a bread knife.

But even the ugliest boat in a backyard is a happy sight.

It's a sign that a man has a dream.

Many of these backyard boats never reach the water. Many languish as nothing but a keel and the bare bones of ribs.

But the owners of these unfinished symphonies have a dream, too, just the same as the man who finally trucks his boat from the backyard to the water.

The man whose boat never leaves the backyard can dream of far distant places, just as efficiently and satisfactorily as the man who's casting off the mooring line.

In fact, the man with the boat permanently anchored in his backyard has certain advantages. His dreaming isn't hampered by such realities as gale warnings in Juan de Fuca Strait, the price of gasoline and gear, and non-working weekend guests.

And there is one thing sure. A man with a backyard boat is too busy with his dreaming—his happy dreaming—to get into trouble.

Yes, of all the things I like about Victoria, I think I like the backyard boats best of all.

VOTERS' LIST CANVASSING NEXT WEEK

Enumerators will call at all residences in the Greater Victoria area next week to register voters for the federal election on June 10.

They will call between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. from Monday next right through till Saturday night.

British subjects who will have resided in Canada 12 months by June 10 and all Canadian citizens will be eligible to vote provided they are 21 or over by that date.

Inquiries should be made to Alan Macfarlane, federal returning officer, at 1136 Government Street, Victoria, telephones 5-3441 and 5-3442.

APPOINTMENT as senior Canadian naval officer afloat was announced by naval headquarters Friday for Commodore Jeffry V. Brock, DSO, DSC, of Vancouver and Winnipeg. Commodore Brock is well-known on the Pacific coast, and was commanding officer of HMCS Cayuga during her first tour of duty in Korea. He is at present naval member of the Canadian joint staff in London, in which post he will be succeeded by Capt. Paul D. Taylor.

City to 'Go Alone' On Centennial Plan

Disunity in Greater Victoria over a single centennial project demonstrates the need for amalgamation of the four municipalities, Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich said today.

"If we were amalgamated this matter would have been settled long ago," he declared.

Reeve Ash was commenting on city council's decision Thursday to "go it alone" on a centennary project of "lasting value" instead of contributing its centennial project funds—60 cents per capita from the provincial government and a matching grant from the city—towards construction of a new Royal Jubilee Hospital wing.

HOSPITAL WING

Reeve Ash added that as far as he knows Saanich municipality will go ahead with the hospital wing project.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt said:

"Whether Esquimalt goes in depends on a meeting we are holding next Tuesday. The people of Greater Victoria have been very badly served by their elected representatives on the centennial committee.

"The chairman of the committee should have taken a vote as to what the delegates favored and presented it to all the councils.

Reeve Fred Norris said Oak Bay will decide whether to support the hospital project at a meeting next Monday week.

CONFUSION

"There is far too much confusion in this matter," he said.

Victoria city is expected to devise its own birthday year project soon.

The whole matter is now turned over to Aldermen Austin I. Curtis, Hugh Ramsay and E. D. McEwen to study and report back.

Each alderman in turn proposed a plan for the city—even Ald. J. Donald Smith who was the only one to favor supporting the outside municipalities in the hospital project.

"Jubilee Hospital wouldn't be my first choice," he said, "but as a council, we should support the wish of the majority."

Ald. Wilson was first to propose an alternative. She wants a city-owned home for old people.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow showed plans for a $150,000 to $175,000 youth centre with ice surface to adjoin Memorial Arena.

Ald. Smith proposed an artificial ice plant to freeze Holland Point yacht pond for outdoor skating.

The mayor suggested aid to Victoria Art Gallery drive for a new fireproof wing. Ald. McEwen agreed a place was needed for art treasures and relics.

Ald. Curtis thought the money would permit development of Beaver-Elk Lake Park.

Council finally unanimously agreed to submit all ideas again to a committee—and once again open the question to public opinion.

Geoff. Edgelow Elected Head Of Riding Club

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow has been elected president of the Victoria Riding and Hunt Club.

Serving with him are Barney Olson, vice-president; Miss Dorothy Thompson, secretary, and J. Barnes, George Tyson, Mrs. W. H. Dunbar, Mrs. Shirley Cuppage and Mrs. Whitworth Stanbury, directors.

Mr. Diefenbaker's Vancouver Island schedule was worked out at a meeting in Nanaimo of the four Conservative candidates on the Island, their agents and party officers from Vancouver.

Vancouver Island Conservative candidates are Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, Esquimalt-Saanich; A. deB. McPhillips, Victoria; Harry McQuillan, Comox-Alberni, and Walter Matthews, Nanaimo.

Multiple Sclerosis Society and League of the Handicapped will sponsor a social evening for members and friends in St. James Community Hall, Pilot Street, Thursday, at 8 p.m.

Speed-Up Asked On Malahat Job

Chamber Official Fears Loss of Tourist Trade

By TONY DICKASON

Sam Lane, chairman of the tourist trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce, today called for "24-hour-a-day" work on the Malahat in time to clear up the "confusing detours" for the peak tourist season.

He said the present condition of the Malahat is a definite deterrent to tourist trade.

Mr. Lane called for use of floodlights at night and increased crews.

"We have had a great deal of adverse criticism," he said.

Tourists go home saying roads in Canada are "terrible" after seeing the Malahat, he stated.

Assistant manager of the Victoria Automobile Club, Cy Porter, said a committee had just examined the Malahat and found it in "very poor" condition.

Recommendations will be made to the highways department next week as to how the road can be improved for the tourist season which starts around May 1.

"We feel the detours, for example, should be repaired immediately.

A highways department official said the route north from here, part of the Trans-Canada Highway, will be finished "this summer" but a superintendent of the job said he expected completion "in September."

This means inconvenience to the thousands of tourist cars who normally make the drive to the top of the 1,800 foot viewpoint overlooking Finlayson Arm, Saanich Inlet and the Gulf Islands.

Stared in '55

First section of the Malahat project, undertaken by the Vancouver construction firm of Campbell-Bennett, started in June, 1955, at the base of the mountain and ran for 3.8 miles. The second stage is now well under way and runs from the Malahat Chalet to Mill Bay, a distance of about nine miles.

This stage started 13 months ago, and when finished will have taken more than 1½ years.

Work has been slowed greatly because of the necessity of handling traffic while the project is under way.

One top B.C. official said the slowdown is "as much as 25 per cent."

$1.5 Million

When the present section is completed, costs will be in the neighborhood of $1,500,000, split between federal and provincial governments.

There are 100 men on the job at present—blasting, bulldozing rock, pouring fill and related work. About 24 pieces of heavy equipment are in use, excluding smaller trucks.

There have been numerous complaints concerning delays for motorists, but because of the nature of the terrain these, say company officials, have been impossible to avoid.

Nine miles up the highway from Victoria is the first indication today of work. Motorists are alerted by a sign saying "Watch For Rock on Road."

This is the first of many signs, including "Caution, Trucks Turning, "Single Lane Traffic," "Danger, Drive Slowly," "Warning, Blasting," "Narrow Road Ahead," "Rough Roadways Ahead," and "Sorry for the Inconvenience . . ." over the name of Provincial Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi.

It all adds up to a pretty bleak prospect for motorists.

Single Lane

One foreman, asked by a motorist just what was going on, looked rueful and said "we are doing a scenic drive."

The road is in fine shape where completed, but at the Malahat Chalet, 13 miles from town, it becomes immediately bumpy, and thins down a mile further along to near-single lane traffic, with rocks the size of cricket balls strewn on the roadway near the Shawnigan Lake cut-off.

Blasting is still going on a little further along and the heavy chatter of the drills, sporadic roar of compressors, rumble of the 18-ton Euclid diesels, and screech of rock protesting its way into the giant shovel, makes bedlam.

The job, because of the many thousands of tons of rock which must be moved, is extremely hard on equipment. Blades of the 'dozers, for instance, last "from three days to three weeks."

Only 8 MPH

Most rugged portion of the new construction is at "Mile 17" where there is 150 yards of a wet, narrow passage hanging to the rock's face.

A bus can squeeze through at about 8 m.p.h., no more. Much of the stretch undergoing face-lifting calls for no more than 25 m.p.h.

Work is also being done from Mill Bay on, but officials say this will be comparatively easy.

But at present workers are still trying to pull the cork from the main bottleneck.

SAM LANE, chairman of the tourist trade group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce today called for use of floodlights in reconstruction of the scenic Malahat Drive so that workmen can get on with the job when traffic is light at night. He said many complaints are being received on the condition of this section of the Trans-Canada Highway.

$4,000 Damage In Oak Bay House Blaze

Fire believed caused by faulty wiring in an upper floor cupboard caused an estimated $4,000 damage in the home of David Angus, 2650 Bowker, Friday at about 5.15 p.m.

Oak Bay firemen were alerted to the blaze by a resident of Cavendish who saw smoke billowing from near the two-storey home, and first believed it to be a rubbish fire out of control.

There were no occupants in the Angus home at the time.

The fire had apparently gained headway before it was noticed. An upper window was blown out by the heat.

Most damage from fire and smoke was confined to the upper storey and attic, but the ground floor sustained some water damage.

Possible cause by a cigaret or matches was ruled out by Mr. Angus because no one in the house smokes.

He said the loss is covered by insurance.

Presbyterians, United Churches Urged to Unity

TORONTO (CP) — The Presbyterian Church in Canada and the United Church of Canada should find more fellowship and unity in their work, says an editorial in the current issue of the United Church Observer, official organ of the church.

Rev. A. C. Forrest, editor, notes similarities between the two churches and says:

"Our co-operation should grow and our respect and affection for each other be demonstrated. We should try very hard to demonstrate wisdom in our work, and courtesy and brotherly love in all our attitudes."

GREAT CATHEDRAL

The first stone for the Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris was laid in 1163.

U.K. Children 'Bored' With Sunday School

LONDON (CP) — Many British children who stop going to Sunday school do so because they are bored, a report shows.

Among 1,000 children replying to the question why they had stopped, 150 replied that they had lost interest—"I just got fed up with going" or "I got tired of it after all those years."

The report, prepared by a research committee set up by the Free Church Federal Council youth department in co-operation with other organizations, shows that most scholars leave Sunday school between the ages of 11 and 13, and are lost to the church.

One - third of Sunday schools questioned said difficulty was experienced through apathy among parents.

The Easter Parade

With ribbons under their chins and posies in their hands, the young lasses on this page are ready for the Eastertide. In his light-colored shorts and gay, striped blazer, the lone young man is also right in the forefront of the parade. Little girls and boys always look forward with eager excitement to Easter weekend, not only because it is a time for wearing their most attractive clothes and for receiving gifts from the Easter rabbit, but also because of the age-old story of hope and love that will be retold to them at their parents' knees and in their Sunday schools on Easter Day.

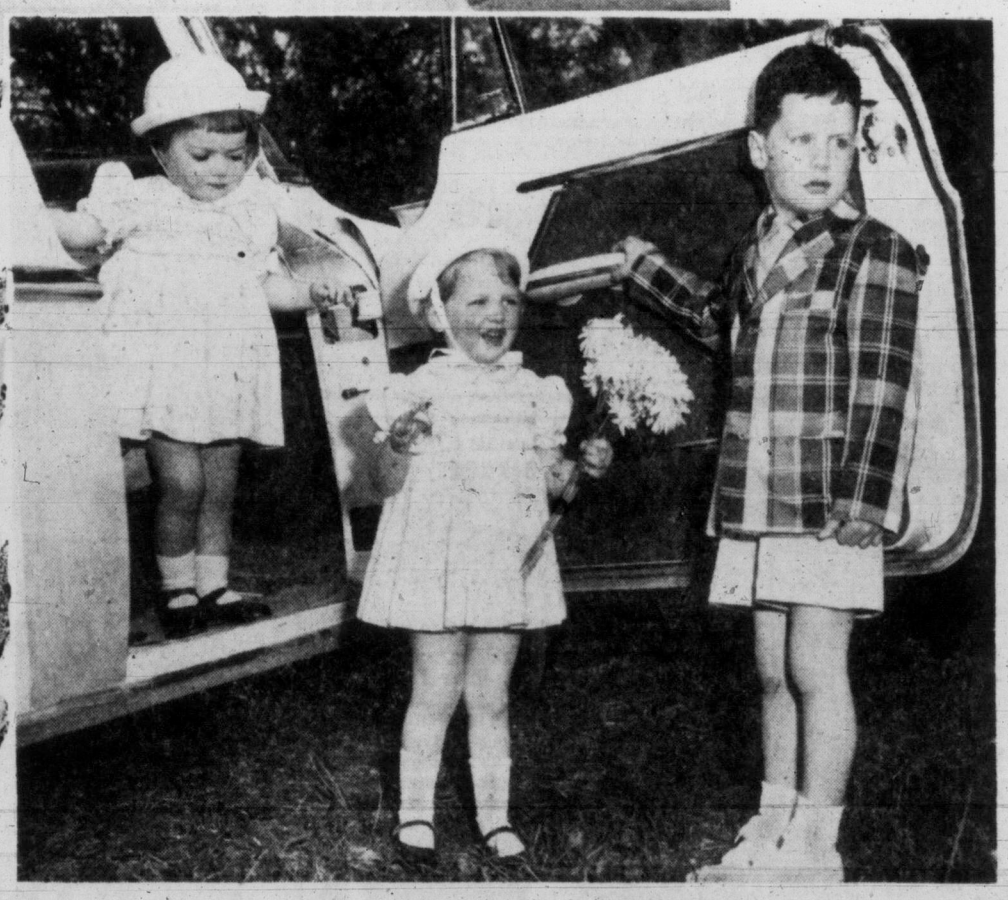
IRVING STRICKLAND



Blue-eyed and demure, little Julie Kemble (top of page) models the flower-wreathed bonnet she will wear this weekend and through the summer months. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Kemble on Beach Drive.

In identical Easter Sunday dresses, made and smocked by their mother, the three Lee sisters (above) make an attractive study. Robin is on the left and Mandy at the right while mischievous-eyed Liz holds the centre of attraction in the foreground. They are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Lee, Prospect Place.

Embroidery and dainty ruffles are used on the lovely little dress worn by serious-faced Christine Charlotte Butters (at left), the 19-month-old daughter of Lieut.-Cmdr. and Mrs. Ian Butters, Masters Road. Her sapphire blue eyes, rimmed with jet black lashes, look out on the Eastertide with questioning wonder. The flower petals she holds in her baby hand are colorful and pleasing to her questing mind.

Little Tracy Olson (in car) and her sister, Leslie, with their serious young friend, Larry Straith, are all ready to accompany their parents for a drive on Easter Sunday. Tracy and Leslie are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Olson, Island Road, and Larry, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Straith, Denison Road.

"That does NOT look like a good place to eat!"

SHOPPING GUIDE

Zippered Storage Bags Prolong Life of Clothes

By PENNY SAVER

It's getting a bit warm to wear fur coats now, I am happy to say, and women are bringing out spring coats to take their places. There is a new dustproof, waterproof zipper bag of processed cotton made especially for storing your precious furs. Of course, it can be used for other heavy coats and pieces of clothing, but it is especially good for protecting your furs that have had such hard wear all winter. These large bags are $3.59.

Protection, not only against moths and dust, but from handling is necessary for your newly ironed blouses, too. It is rather heart-breaking to spend time ironing blouses only to have them crushed or soiled in a much-used wardrobe. To completely cover your blouses without hiding them, use a clear plastic blouse cover that does the job efficiently and economically. Covers are 29 cents.

Those of you planning a motor trip will want at least one plastic travelling clothes bag. These I saw are bright red tartan, and come in two lengths at $1.98 and $2.29. The hanger is shaped so it may be adopted to any hanging rod, standard, the type attached to the side of the car, or even the window itself. When you remove the bag from the car, just place the loop at the bottom over the hook, and it is suitcase size. Dresses, suits and skirts in these cases all stay so much fresher and neater while you're travelling that you'll be glad of the small investment.

More plastic . . . this time it's a wear-everywhere jacket that will keep out the spring rain. These hip-length jackets with sealed seams are just the think for boys or girls, and will no doubt be worn for sports and school. These are especially good for boys and girls who ride bikes, for a long raincoat is impractical, and in any case few boys like a long raincoat. They come in clear white, red or blue, and have handy zippered fronts. Golfers will appreciate the value of these wonderful buys, too. They come in small, medium and large, and cost $2.98.

For information about any articles in the column, call me at 2-3131. Happy Easter!

On Etiquette

About a family snub at a christening:

My brother's wife just had her third baby. At the christening, she invited her side of the family and none of us. It was a large christening, after which they served turkey, ham and all the trimmings, yet she couldn't ask her husband's family. Is my brother's wife ignorant of the right thing to do? Are we justified in being hurt and feeling that we don't want to go to their house again? There never had been any discord between us, and we can't understand why we were ignored.

Louise Davis

Louise Davis answers:

When people give a christening party or any other kind of a party, they have a right to invite whom they wish. But I would think that your brother and sister-in-law would automatically have considered both sides of the family, just as your sister-in-law and her parents did when preparing the guest list at the time of the wedding. Your brother should have had a hand in this christening party and should have insisted on inviting his family. It looks pretty evident where you stand, so my advice would be to forget the whole thing and assume that you probably won't get an invitation to another christening party should they have another baby. At the same time, I advise you to be cordial with any relations you may have in the future. There is no point in cutting your sister-in-law "dead" because she offended you, for some day the family friendship might be re-established. Two wrongs don't make a right.

HERBS IN THE HOME

Eliminate Smell of Camphor By Growing Anti-Moth Herbs

By PATRICIA RAE

Not long ago I wrote about the tiny garden of aromatic herbs I planted in New Zealand. With these scented plants and others scattered here and there throughout our acre of garden, I was able to grow all the moth mixtures I needed for storing blankets and rugs, furs and woollies.

ROSEMARY was the chief ingredient for these mixtures. In Elizabethan days sprays of rosemary and rosemary "needles" were sprinkled generously in wooden chests and coffers to keep out moths. An old sage says "to take the flowres and put them in thy chest among thy clothes or amnng thy bookes, and mothes shalle not destroy them". In the eary spring I used to wander round many old farms and abandoned gardens, looking for rosemary bushes from which I could gather and dry the flowers for moth-mixtures and hair-rinses.

SOUTHERNWOOD is grown in many New Zealand gardens. It is often called "Old Man" or "Lad's Love," as it was believed that burnt twigs and ashes of Southernwood would grow hair on bald pates or the chins of Elizabethan dandies! It is certainly one of the most pleasant smelling herbs and, because of its scent and the aromatic oils in the leaves, was formerly used to protect folded velvet cloaks and woollen garments from moths—hence the old French name for this plant, "garde-robe". Southwood dries easily—I used to lay it on long wire racks in a shed and then crumble the leaves to powder with my fingers, sometimes adding Lemon-Verbena for added scent.

WORMWOOD, a "cousin" of Southernwood, is an attractive grey-green bushy plant when full grown, with little yellow, ball-tassel flowers. These, with the leaves, used to be dried in olden days and kept moths (and fleas!) from floors and tapestries. Some gardeners nowadays claim that wormwood keeps slugs from the garden. I used to add quantities of wormwood flowers and leaves to all moth mixtures. I grew it round ugly posts holding up a wooden division of the vegetable garden. At the end of the season, with the wormwood at full height, the posts were completely hidden in grey and gold flowers and leaves—useful as well as ornamental!

I often added the leaves of SCENTED GERANIUM to moth mixtures, though it was not always easy to dry. SANTOLINA, or COTTON LAVENDER went into the mixtures too, with lavender flowers and rosemary for added scent. I used SPIKE LAVENDER for this purpose, as it held its fragrance so long and is supposed to be one of the tallest of lavenders with the greatest amount of oil.

GOLDEN THYME, which is obtainable here, went into many of my moth mixtures, though it was so pretty in the flowerbeds I hated to cut it! Sometimes this charming little plant is ground round old sundials, with the motto "Time Is Golden" planted out in tins sunk into the soil. I had it in the rock-garden too, its yellow-flecked leaves contrasting well with the rough greyish-green rocks behind it.

Three Pretty Girls Off to Play Tennis Are All 'Gussied Up' for Spring Sets

Bright sunshine, clipped green grass and three pretty girls ready to run off some surplus energy on the tennis courts. Their smart dresses are very new to Victoria and are sold exclusively by one of our well-known specialty shops. Incorporated in these dresses are all the features to give freedom and comfort for tennis and badminton.

Nona

There is no lace on the panties but even Gussie herself couldn't look more fetching than today's models.

Wendy wears a long torso style which has a softly pleated skirt and white bloomer panties. Janie's dress is the flattering princess line and the collar and panties are a subdued green tartan. Joan chose to wear the more tailored culottes with zippered front.

Each outfit opens down the front and is quick and simple to put on and take off.

Trilian sharkskin keeps crisp and dazzling white through unnumbered washings and countless tennis and badminton games. The day of just turning up for a tennis game in any old sweater and skirt are long past. Most clubs require that all white be worn on the courts so Irving has designed all his tennis togs in one shade.

White wool socks, thick-soled tennis shoes and on the occasionally chilly day, a bulky knit sweater are de rigueur for tennis club members.

Originally specializing in ski togs, the Irving label is now found on smart sportswear for all occasions. This summer the collection includes shorts from the brief Italian to the longer Bermuda style. Jackets include white tennis blazers, a sailing jacket bloused with a draw-string tie at the hip and interpreted in a rubber-coated nylon and of course the ever popular car coat for the sports car owner.

Slim Jims, and I do mean slim, come in a variety of fabrics and in many gay colors. For the golfer there are summer tropical slender skirts with three box pleats back and front teamed with a hip-banded zippered jacket.

This is an age of specialization and fashion certainly meets this trend. No matter what sport occupies your leisure time, someone has designed the perfect clothes for you.

"FOREST" CEDAR SIDING

WHAT IS FOREST SIDING?

Made of dry 1½" Stock 10 and 12 inch widths. "FOREST" Siding is a new type of Siding obtained from specially selected Cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, burls, etc.

HOW IS IT GRADED?

IN SUPREME GRADE for home and buildings where a distinctive and pleasing appearance is desired, enhanced by heavy shadow lines. Sound intergrown knots ranging in size from 2-inch to 6-inch widths to 4-inch in 12-inch widths add to the rustic appearance of this grade.

IN QUALITY GRADE intended for use on summer homes, barns or industrial buildings where lowest cost construction is required with pleasing rustic appearance. Each grade comes in two finishes, rough faced or smooth faced. The rough face has a sawn finish and smooth face is planed.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES?

"FOREST" Siding with its substantial thickness and greater wood volume adds to the structural strength and solidity of the building.

The design of "FOREST" Siding ensures a tight weather seal of the lap which, together with its thickness and flush-to-base principle, makes excellent material from the insulation standpoint.

"FOREST" Siding represents an economy to home-builders. Costing less than most other types of Siding the lap design ensures easy fitting and speedy application at less labor cost.

DON'T MORTGAGE YOUR FUTURE
Use our home improvement loans for a modernizing job—our rates are the lowest in town and no bankable security required. For instance you can renovate a 10x12 room—walls of rich mahogany plywood — ceilings of factory white ceiling tiles — materials cost less than $100.00 and you pay only $15.00 monthly.

PITY POOR MOTHER
With hard-to-clean drainboards and sink top—now you can replace these quickly and easily with Arborite Heatproof Counter Topping—trimmed with chrome mouldings and what a difference to have them polished and gleaming with one wipe down. Lay your own floor tiles, too—it's inexpensive, simple and gives your kitchen that new home look. Monthly payments of $15.00 will do wonders.

MAKE A HIT
With your children—give them a rumpus room in the basement—a place teen-agers will be pleased to bring their friends to spin records and other activities. Solves parents problem of knowing where the young folks can be found. It's easy to waterproof concrete walls and floors and put in extra windows. Choose from a large selection of wall panels—do the job yourself—pay as little as $20.00 monthly.

DO-IT-YOURSELF
Can be fun for the whole family on many projects, you'll be surprised how easy it is with many of today's easy-to-apply materials. Now Stewart & Hudson have the latest selection of Popular Mechanics Do-It-Yourself books on Mixing Concrete, Fencing, Extra Rooms, Barbecues, Power Tools, etc., priced at 25c and 75c each.

MAKE IT EASY
With power tools—Cummins ½" Drill Kit complete with accessories only $24.95. And every handy man should have a Cummins Maxaw—this portable electric bandsaw handles any 2" lumber—even angle cuts on 2x4 rafters, your Maxaw is priced only at $59.95. Can be purchased at $15.00 down (plus tax) and 3 equal payments of $15.00 with no interest, no carrying charges. Call in for free demonstration.

31A POULTRY HATCHING EGGS, ETC.

What Can You Expect of Kimberchiks?
This Leghorn strain cross netted $4.23 INCOME OVER FEED COST in the three random sample tests in which it was entered in 1955-56. In 12½ months of age it averaged 264 eggs per pullet; in 16½ months it laid 249 eggs per pullet. The average livability is 93.6%, with eggs weighing 26 ounces per dozen during the first laying year. In all the 1955-56 random sample tests it was first for early egg size.
The K-137 Kimberchik does very well in cages or on floor litter. In some areas 90% of the Kimber Leghorns are on wire.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

SUNDAY, APRIL 21, 1957

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—A.M. avoid any tiff or argument with anyone in powerful position. Then the later day finds friends really giving you a time of it. You want to blast back. Don't. Show you realize they are under as much of a strain as yourself.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Difficulties of a worldly nature that today come into the open are due to the fact that you or those upon whom you rely may not be living according to high principles of right thinking. Renew your faith in proven precepts, lofty aims.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Daytime brings very inaccurate hunch about what's best to be done in oncoming days. Make sure you do let others see you value their good will instead of thinking up ways to get even for their lack of friendliness. P.M. avoid new temptations.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—You feel during the daytime as if you have to make a complete change of persons about, or your attitude toward them. Accept them as they are, or you are the one who loses out. P.M. brings restless urge to make unwise changes. Be gentle.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Being disgruntled over jobs that are rightfully yours helps no one, least of all yourself. So attend to them with care, caution, conviction that it's for your good. Tonight brings all kinds of resentment toward partners, unless you control.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Early a.m. Sunday is not the time to go off on tangent, spree, temperamental tizzy. Maintain smile, good humor toward all about. P.M. brings out need for better scheduling of your hours in all work matters. Don't fret. Just do it calmly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Matters at home can early be tense and unpleasant if you allow yourself the luxury of getting involved in any hassle. Later you find you want to get off and have fun at all costs. Don't. Stick to what you've agreed to do with a smile.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Be very careful on the highway as well as where anything of an unpleasant nature where your own feelings or emotions are concerned, since sharp retorts from you or by you or to others can cause considerable unhappiness. Be kind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—You do not see where the best in your background can be helpful to you early, but this is just what will solve your problems, even though it appears drab and dull. Tonight finds it necessary to use much care in motion.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—You are so eager to break up existing conditions and make changes early that you need to use all that fine self-control with which you are endowed. P.M. finds you apt to spend far more than you can afford in pleasures.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Secret anxiety can make you pretty scrappy early. Try to be as impersonal and objective about yourself as with others. The evening brings you a chance to quietly get yourself in good physical condition as well as in charm matters.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Have you seen the best in that devoted friend who still is driving you to act in a more down-to-earth, less wishful, day-dreaming attitude? Curb your own subjectvie feeling imposed upon mood and you get ahead as best suits your own problems.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN SUNDAY . . .

Sunday's child is one of those very restless and scrappy youngsters who feels that the only way to really advance is through friction. Make sure you do teach your alive offspring that it's all right to battle with matter and material to get it to produce the results you are striving to bring into being. But stress even more strongly the fact that in dealing with humans an entirely different attitude is necessary, and that a true spirit of co-operation alone achieves rightness in personal or business relations.

MONDAY, APRIL 22, 1957

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—You want to lambast friends or to work too hard to get your personal desires. However, by being philosophical and by sticking to accepted methods and principles, you avoid real trouble which could follow indiscreet actions on your part.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Be most careful that you follow every law or regulation that pertains to you, or you may find yourself out of a job, income, attachment, etc. Get after the little things to be done. Attend them with an eye to what the public likes. Be patriotic.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Getting out from under tasks you've agreed to do brings nothing but a stiff headache. Show all associates that you will carry through promises made, and with a smile. Then you get a wealth of benefits in return you hadn't anticipated.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—You have a sudden hunch what you think you should do, but it's a pretty poor steer unless backed by your best judgment, as well as that of experts in this field. Later you find that an upset occurs to one close to you—it's not your business.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Unpredictable-acting associate really gives you a bad time of things if you take seriously, or go along with ideas that he or she expresses now. Tread lightly and avoid making any commitments until tomorrow, which is a better day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—You want to start the week with a burst of energy that can literally knock the china off the shelves, rip your apparel, upset liquids, etc. Instead get in a poised attitude of mind. Then you find right answer and can channel vitality sensibly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Dropping duties for pleasures would really lessen the good will of those able to and otherwise willing to back you in creative ideas, investments, romantic interest. Let others see you can maintain charm, warmth, affection despite tensions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Have you seen to it that your family have the comforts to which they look and which would cause them to release more support, backing to you in ways that are vital to your well-being? Today's the day for just that. Side-step friends for security.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—You want to move so fast, on foot, in car, etc., that you can easily make a misstep that would limit you for some time to come. Take it easy. Also be sure to avoid squabble between higher-up and one you regard as partner. Relax tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—You have been saving carefully for some time. So why go out and shoot the works on some temporary pleasures or attire? Part of your assets can go to these. But stop while you are well ahead of the game, and all works out to your satisfaction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Now you really want to blast most anyone close to you to get rid of the tensions within yourself. If you realize it's just some "divine discontent" expressing itself and that you only need to channel the force wisely, all's well for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—You feel you have so many burdens to bear, that you just can't stand it any longer. Actually things are coming along nicely for you. But you've taken on yourself some of your associate's woes. Be impersonal, objective and you can aid them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN MONDAY . . .

Monday's child is one of those unpredictable youngsters who is apt to do most anything at any moment! The way to most turn this to advantage is to coax your brilliant progeny into some type of inventive vocation. It could, of course, be with articles, in which a fortune could easily be made by this child. But it could also have to do with ideas, for there is the possibility in this chart of taking almost any adverse situation and turning it into a victory, owing to an unusual slant.

Quebec Law On Newsprint Being Ignored

Board Never Established

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's newsprint control law, framed to protect the province's newspapers against higher prices or pinched supply, appears to be almost a dead letter.

The control board whose appointment would have made its key provisions effective has never been set up.

The legislation, attacked in some quarters as a threat to freedom of the press, was so shaped in its final form that Quebec's newspapers could take advantage of it or disregard it as they saw fit. The general disposition, since its passage last Feb. 3, seems to have been to disregard it.

ON STATUTE BOOKS

Meantime, it remains on the statute books and could be made operative at any time by appointment of a control board if the Quebec government felt there was some demand for it on the part of the newspapers.

There has been no sign of such demand. Soon after the law was passed two Montreal newspapers announced they had decided not to avail themselves of its provisions. A Quebec City newspaper said editorially that it had always had good relations with its supplies and intended that this situation should continue.

There has been no announcement by any newspaper that it intends to avail itself of the act.

The control bill followed announcement by newsprint companies last December of a price increase. It was reported as being $1 a ton to Quebec newspapers, but there has never been any announced basic Canadian or provincial basic price.

The only announced basic price is that of newsprint delivered in New York. Currently it is $130 a ton, including freight to New York. Prices in different zones in the United States would vary because of freight rates.

DG BUSINESS DIRECT

In Canada newspapers deal directly with newsprint companies. The cost would be a matter for each newspaper. The cost would include freight charge and this could vary considerably, according to distance from mills. Particularly in Quebec and Ontario some newspapers are close to their source of supply.

The control legislation, applying only to Quebec producers and consumers, provided that retroactively to Sept. 1, 1955, and until March 1, 1957, "no newsprint producer shall ask or exact, directly or indirectly, from consumers or h newsprint a higher price than that in force at that date."

It was also provided that for December, 1955, and each month thereafter "every newspaper publisher shall be entitled to obtain from his supplier at least the quantity of newsprint sold to him in November, 1955."

The bill further provided that within 30 days after appointment of control-board members "every consumer shall inform the board of the quantity of newsprint supplied in November, 1955, and of his needs in excess of or less than such quantity."

Under the bill the board members would have wide powers and also a semi-judicial position.

Several years ago Premier Duplessis, stating Quebec is Canada's big newsprint producer, declared:

"It (newsprint) is made out of our timber and belongs to the people. Newspapers represent the people and are an essential agent of freedom.

"When newsprint companies fix prices they should remember the vital role played by newspapers and should give them in Canada and especially in Quebec a treatment based on justice."

MANY LEGS

Some centipedes have as many as 200 legs, but the average number is between 60 and 80.

ANIMALS AROUND US

Cumbersome Shell On Crab Is Asset

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL

A crab is a highly-specialized animal designed to fill a certain place in nature with a high degree of efficiency. Though it appears to be burdened with a cumbersome coat of armor the shell is a help rather than a hindrance in that it enables the animal to exist where no other creature can. It should be no surprise to find that nature has experimented with the crab's shell in many ways turning out some weird and wondrous designs.

Dr. Carl

Basically the shell covering the body itself is fused into a solid covering over the back. Below, there are openings to provide attachments for the legs and mouthparts and in the true crabs the lower surface is designed to give protection to the abdomen which is carried folded against the body. Above the base of the legs on each side there is a chamber to house the gills and on the leading edge of the shell are recesses into which antennae and eyes may be pulled for protection. The legs, too, are encased in a shelly covering with ingeniously designed joints to allow for movement. In effect the animals is completely enclosed in a suit of armor so that it is safe from attack by most predators.

NOT ENOUGH

A coat of mail is apparently not enough protection for some of the kelp crabs. These in general are slow-moving creatures colored much like the sea weeds they climb upon. They are made more inconspicuous by a thick growth of plant and animal life which they deliberately attach to their backs. The surface of the shell is provided with a series of short curved bristles which serve as anchors for sprigs of sea weed, hydroids and sponges placed there by the crab itself. These eventually grow to convert their host into a walking marine garden to the advantage of both parties. The crab profits by the camouflage and the "free-riders" get a constantly changing scene.

The shell of the horse crab, an inhabitant of shallow water, is also modified to help mask the occupant. Both the back and the legs are covered with a great number of stiff hairs and bristle-like scales. The body outline is further broken up by a series of pointed projections all of which make the animal difficult to see so long as it remains motionless.

Another successful design along different lines is found in the flat-topped crab. In this crustacean the shell of the body as well as the pincers are greatly flattened so that the creature can slip easily into narrow cracks for protection. On rocky shores open to the action of heavy surf this crab has a distinct advantage in being able to find shelter in retreats too narrow for other animals to enter.

FLATTENED

Another approach to this problem of protection against surf is found in the turtle crab which has a shell that extends well beyond the body to cover the legs as well. When the crab clings closely to the rock all the appendages are covered and only a smooth rounded surface is presented to the force of the water. In addition such a crab is most difficult to see because the shell is often blotched with color giving it the appearance of a pebble or small stone. Turtle crabs are present along Dallas Road beach but few collectors ever see them.

SOLID CITIZEN

The box crab is a solid citizen of the deeper water. It depends upon sheer weight of the shell for protection. The body is massive and heavy and the legs are well covered with a knobby shell. Moreover the appendages are shaped so that when they are at rest they all fit together to form a compact box-like structure, capable of discouraging any but the largest predator. So tightly do the limbs fit together that a special channel is provided on each side behind the pincer to allow for the passage of water to the gills.

Crabs as a group have met with considerable success in life judging by the fact that they are found in all oceans of the world, and some have even become adapted to fresh water and to dry land. Part of their achievement is due to the great diversification found in the design of the shell, the most characteristic structure in this group of animals.

Victoria Student Germany-Bound With Infantry

A Victoria subaltern attending University of British Columbia, 2nd Lieut. John David Napier Edgar, Royal Canadian Infantry Corps, will be one of 73 second lieutenants and officer cadets to train this summer with units of Second Canadian Infantry Brigade in Germany.

He is the son of Col. J. N. Edgar, 736 Falkland.

The young men are qualifying for commissions through ROTP or COTC officer training plans at Royal Military College or civilian universities in Canada or the United States and will complete the final phase of training during the summer.

They leave Montreal by air between May 2 and June 20, returning between July 26 and Sept. 16.

Fast or Slow, Paris Loves Its Strippers

PARIS (Reuters) — "Le strip-tease" has taken the Paris entertainment world by storm this season.

Stripping, French-style, is little different from the original, American version. For years, girls have appeared nude on the Paris stage. The slow stripping is the new element which has caught the Parisian's fancy.

This winter "les strip-teaseuses" are peeling off their clothes in more than 15 night clubs and in two theatres in the capital.

In France, there are few rules on what a girl can and cannot do as she shows her charms in the arc lights. There are, however, two strict police regulations: The girl can have no partner in her act, and she must not handle any object as she disrobes.

Some of the top-line strippers earn as much as 20,000 francs ($50) a day—"more than a cabinet minister," said one impresario—by disrobing at three or four clubs each night, using taxis to move from one to another.

Lola la Gourmande (Lola the Glutton), a 24-year-old, dark-eyed dancer who is billed as the sexiest stripper in Paris, earns about that figure. Lola has no fears about her work. "I always feel more at ease if I have no clothes on," she says.

Col. Winsby, Former School Inspector, Buried

A large crowd attended the funeral at 1.30 p.m. today at Hayward's Chapel of Col. William Norman Winsby, soldier-educator, who died in St. Paul's Hospital, Vancouver, April 10, aged 72.

Born in Yorkshire, England, he came to Victoria in 1885 and for many years was B.C. inspector of schools.

In the First World War he enlisted with the 47th Battalion, CEF, and went overseas. His unit became known as "Winsby's Winners."

Last year he was presented with a 50-year Masonic button.

He is survived by his widow, Edith, at the residence, 1203 Beach; one son, Kenneth, of Halifax; two daughters, Mrs. Joyce Brooks, Port Coquitlam, Latta, Chemainus, and Mrs. Lam; two brothers, H. T. Winsby, Victoria, and H. J. Winsby, Kelowna, and a sister, Mrs. Annie Robinson, Seattle.

Rev. H. J. Jones of St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, officiated at the funeral. Cremation followed.

Spring Upswing In Employment Reported Here

There were 171 fewer persons seeking employment here this week than last, almost wholly because of increased industrial activity, according to J. H. Fox, manager of the National Employment Office here.

Men accounted for 166 of that number and jobs for construction laborers took 57 of them. Carpenters, painters, plasterers, loggers and sawmill workers also found jobs.

Factory work for women is still scarce, but there has been a sharp increase in the demand for waitresses. There also has been "some" improvement in the demand for sales clerks, stenographers and domestic workers.

The increased spring activity appears to be general throughout B.C., Mr. Fox said. Jobs are open on pipeline operations, Kitimat wants pot room men, and many other positions for specialized workmen are listed in the Victoria office.

Helicopter Directs Los Angeles Traffic

By RUSSELL ELMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES (CP)—A police helicopter, hovering in the afternoon sun over this sprawling city's congested freeways, is the automobile's best friend.

Its crew radios directions to ground patrols from a vantage point over the eight-lane expressways that shoot from the heart of downtown Los Angeles like spokes of a wheel as the police department uses air-age tactics to solve the mounting traffic problem in the 4,000-square-mile metropolitan area.

In Los Angeles County there are more than 2,500,000 registered vehicles compared with only 4,000,000 in the whole of Canada. There's one car for every 2.5 persons (5.3 in Canada) and many families have two or more cars.

CAR NECESSITY

Unlike Toronto, London or New York, where public transportation systems are highly develoted, here a car is a necessity. Except on busy routes—such as between downtown L.A. and Hollywood—bus services are infrequent while antiquated streetcars clang and rattle their way to Long Beach and the port of San Pedro.

On the Hollywood freeway, probably the best known of the 200 completed miles of a projected 565-mile network, traffic volume now reaches 190,000 cars a day with nearly 9,000 vehicles an hour passing a single point in one direction during peak periods.

But with the helicopter and a unique push-button control device permit

PORTLAND TEAMSTERS' PROBE

Jury Indicts D-A, Newsman

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—District Attorney William Langley and two other men were indicted by a county grand jury

The others indicted are Sheriff's Deputy George Minielly and an Oregon Journal reporter, Arthur (Brad) Williams.

Meanwhile, the trial of Portland gambler Big Jim Elkins and his employee, Raymond Clark, on charges of wire tapping was to resume today in federal court here. They are accused of making the tapes that the other three men are accused of illegally obtaining.

The indictment against Langley was the eighth returned against him in the year-long Portland vice investigation. He has been convicted on one charge, failing to prosecute gamblers, and is awaiting sentence.

ILLEGAL RAID

Friday's indictment accuses him of conspiracy with Portland Mayor Terry Schrunk, executives and reporters of the Oregon Journal and others to set up an illegal raid to obtain and make copies of the tapes.

Named as conspirators were William W. Knight, publisher of The Journal, and Arden X. Pangborn, editor. Also named were reporters Williams, Rolla Crick and Doug Baker, Deputy District Attorney Howard Lonergan and Clyde C. Crosby, international representative for the teamsters union in Oregon.

There was no indication that the persons named as conspirators would be indicted. The Journal has denied any wrongdoing.

Al Plunkett, Of Dumbell Fame, Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Al Plunkett, youngest of the three brothers who starred in the First World War Dumbells troupe, died Friday at 58.

His death further diminished the remaining ranks of the all-soldier revue that staged scores of shows amidst the trenches and later went on highly-successful peacetime tours.

TWO NOW DEAD

Morley, the other Plunkett brother who toured with the troupe, died three years ago.

Albert William Plunkett was born in Orillia, Ont. He lied about his age and went overseas with the machine gun section of the 58th Battalion in 1919 when he was only 17. Wounded at the battle of Vimy Ridge, he later joined the group his brother was forming under YMCA sponsorship to entertain the troops.

The Dumbells' first show went on in a ramshackle shed near Vimy Ridge. It was a howling success from the start and Al, a light baritone, was one of its stars.

VANCOUVER (CP)—A group of British Columbia prospectors Thursday asked the Ontario Prospectors' and Developers' Association to protest to British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett against mining legislation passed recently by the legislature which provides for taxing iron ore in the ground and gives leasing and discretionary powers to the minister of mines.

Readers Digest Sued For Non Tax Payment

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has filed suit against Reader's Digest for non-payment of the special 20 per cent advertising tax on special Canadian editions of foreign magazines.

Reader's Digest also had not made the required $5,000 deposit with the revenue department or had taken out a $2 licence as required by the law.

but Reader's Digest did not.

The suit has been filed with the exchequer court of Canada, but the case is not likely to come up for hearing until next fall, court officials said.

The special tax went into effect this year and is aimed, the government has stated, at arresting the inroads of the special editions on advertising revenues available to Canadian magazines.

Some foreign magazines suspended their Canadian editions when the tax went into effect. Only two magazines which remained appeared to be affected—Time and Reader's Digest.

Federal officials said Time magazine paid its tax installments

Hypnosis Fails To Find Clue To Car Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — First attempts by a psychiatrist to question witnesses under hypnosis have failed to yield any new clues to the brutal car-slaying of a San Francisco man.

The doctor, who insisted he remain unnamed as a condition for doing the work, Friday told police further efforts "might produce better results."

Lloyd V. Stephens, 62, was struck down at a San Francisco intersection and dragged 1,200 feet by a car. The car's path was traced in blood as the driver sought to dislodge the body by alternately speeding up and slamming on the brakes.

Some fifty horrified persons saw the grisly episode.

One witness, Bonifacio Silverio, gave police a partial licence number. He was one of four persons questioned under hypnosis by the doctor, who sought to discover the entire number from Silverio's subconscious mind.

Police lieutenant Edward Moody said the questioning revealed "no significant new information."

SALVATION ARMY CHIEF HERE

Moral Progress Lagging in Canada

Moral shortcomings of Canadians were scored here Thursday by Commissioner W. W. Booth, leader of the Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda.

Canada's moral progress trails far behind its present standards of material wealth and physical well-being, he told a meeting at the Pandora Avenue citadel.

He based his charge on these facts:

"The average age of unmarried mothers that come to us is three years lower than before the war.

MORE CRIME

Canada's population of 16,000,000 commits more crimes than Great Britain's 60,000,000 persons.

"There are 250,000 known alcoholics in Canada.

"I have seen a figure for the whole continent, including the United States and Canada, indicating that one out of four marriages ends in divorce."

Commissioner Booth said the Army is attempting to cure this moral sickness with more summer camps for children and a stepped-up Harbor Lights Corps program.

The Army is now negotiating for property near Qualicum Beach for a large camp, he reported.

2-Day Rescue Of 150 Scouts Completed

WRIGHTWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Mountaineers led 36 Boy Scouts down an ice-glazed trail Friday, completing a mammoth rescue of snowbound youngsters and their adult leaders.

Over a two-day period more than 150 scouts were brought out of Angeles National Forest, where they were trapped Wednesday by a snowstorm.

The last group of 37 boys and five adult leaders made their way six miles over a treacherous trail from their camp at the 8,500-foot level of Mount Baden-Powell. The area is 30 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

The scouts, who spent two nights and a day on the frozen mountain, were in generally good condition at the end of their trek.

The hike, staged annually the week before Easter, was to qualify the scouts for a merit badge.

Fisheries Minister Sinclair arrived from Ottawa Thursday in company with his family for a short Easter weekend holiday before launching his election campaign in Coast-Capilano riding.

He was accompanied by his wife and his five daughters. Mrs. Sinclair and the children will return to Ottawa, April 30.

London Mayor Sends Message To Lieut.-Gov.

A letter from the Lord Mayor of London (Eng.), marked "urgent delivery," has been delivered to Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross at the Empress Hotel. It reads:

"On behalf of many citizens of London and myself I tender you and the people of British Columbia my deep sympathy on the severe loss you have sustained in the destruction of Government House.

"But I rejoice there was no loss of life. . . . Sir Cullum Welch, Lord Mayor of London."

Since Government House burned last Monday Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross have received hundreds of letters and telegrams from all parts of Canada and the Commonwealth.

Every one is being acknowledged with a letter bearing Mr. Ross' signature, which reads:

"In the loss of Government House and the inconvenience my wife and I have been put to, and I can almost say tragedy, one of the great comforts has been the sympathy we have received from all directions.

"I can assure you that both Phyllis and I were deeply touched by your message. . . ."

CROSSED GULF 28 TIMES

Vancouver Funeral For Famed Canoeist

Funeral services for Walter Henry Lambert, 64, famed B.C. canoeist, who died in Victoria last Tuesday, were held in Vancouver today followed by burial at West Vancouver cemetery.

Mr. Lambert crossed the Gulf of Georgia 28 times alone in his 16-foot canoe. He usually made the journey at night and once did it with his leg in a cast.

On seven occasions he made the crossing in dense fog. He logged more than 5,000 miles in his canoe without serious accident.

Mr. Lambert also founded the Radio Electronic Centre at King Edward high school, Vancouver, in 1926 and trained hundreds of men until his retirement in 1954.

FINE CLASSES

During the Second World War he taught as many as five classes at once in an effort to meet the demand for radio technicians.

Born in England, he began his career as a schoolmaster at Porcher Island, near Prince Rupert, in 1912.

After four years' war service with the Royal Canadian Volunteer Reserve, he joined the Vancouver school system in 1918. He served as a wireless operator and logged 750,000 miles at sea.

His widow, Muriel, will continue to reside at Mr. Lambert's home at Milnes Landing near Sooke.

Planner Bucks Used Car Lot At Cook, Yates

City council gave a special hearing Thursday to Capital Region Planning director Brahm Wiesman who expressed Town Planning Commission opposition to proposed rezoning to permit an additional used car lot near the southeast corner of Cook and Yates.

A public hearing on the plan will take place April 25 at City Hall.

Application is from Roaf Motors and is backed by Victoria Automotive Dealers' Association.

Town planners say the business area is extending too far from the city centre and other suitable lots are available closer to the store area.

A by-law authorizing the zoning change has been given first reading.

Tenders are requested for the laying of a 4-inch concrete slab 100'x100' with proper grading, at Oak and Tolmie.

Officer Acquitted On Bribery Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Supreme Court jury Thursday night acquitted a police sergeant of charges that he demanded a bribe in return for not charging a driver with speeding.

Sergeant Cecil McIntosh had pleaded not guilty to charges of intent to interfere with the administration of justice, protecting a person from punishment, and extorting money by threatening to accuse.

Gow Foon Gun, 19, took an oath by fire during the trial to testify that McIntosh stopped his car and said he would forget about the speeding infringement if he gave him $25. Gow, who said he is a Taoist, wrote his name on a piece of paper and burnt it before testifying. Mr. Justice A. M. Manson accepted the oath.

Gow said he was told to take out his wallet. It contained only $9 and he said McIntosh took that.

Superintendents Fred Dougherty and Ben Jelley were called by the defence. Superintendent Dougherty said McIntosh was "shocked" when Gow and three other youths who had been in the car identified him in a line-up. McIntosh had sworn that no money was taken, the superintendent said.

Mr. Justice Manson criticized superintendent Jelley for not taking notes of a conversation with McIntosh. Jelley said in cross-examination McIntosh had denied being offered money as a bribe when he stopped the car for speeding.

The judge asked why he had omitted giving that evidence in his original testimony. "What's the matter with you anyway? You're a senior police officer."

Superintendent Jelley said when he first spoke to McIntosh about the accusations, he "wasn't in a position" to take notes.

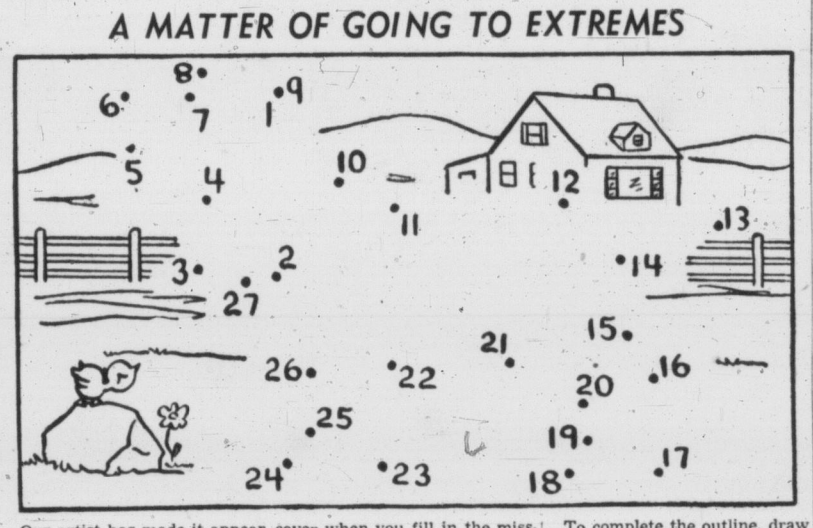
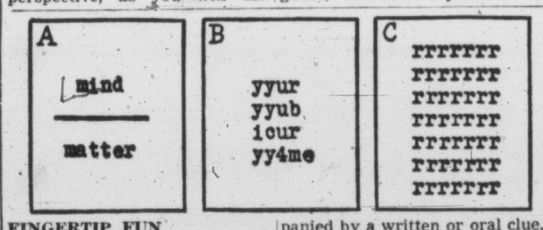
A MATTER OF GOING TO EXTREMES



Our artist has made it appear that the missing figure in the diagram above is at least as big as a house. This is a matter of perspective, as you will discover when you fill in the missing lines. But can you make head or tail of the figure's identity as it now stands? Take a guess, then see for yourself.

To complete the outline, draw a continous line from dot to dot consecutively. That is, begin at dot 1 and proceed to dot 2, 3, etc.



FINGERTIP FUN

A typewriter can be a source of many amusing pastimes, even for those who do not type.

Here is a typewriter game, for instance, that anyone can play. It's called Keyboard Charades.

Object is to portray well-known quotations, words, proper names, etc., typographically, and then have someone identify them. Each charade is accompanied by a written or oral clue. These are clues for examples below:

Clue A: A famous saying denoting strength of will.

Clue B: Cryptic reply to a wiseacre.

Clue C: A famous group in American history.

Can you figure them out?

Answers: A—Mind over matter. B—Too wise you are, too wise you be; I see you are too wise dor me (2 y's u r, etc.). C—Forty-niners (49 r's).

TRICKY THIRTY-SEVEN

Thirty-seven is an odd figure in more ways than one. If multiplied by 3, or any multiple of 3 up to 27, the product which results always is expressed by three similar digits. Thus:

37 × 3 = 111
37 × 6 = 222
37 × 9 = 333
37 × 12 = 444
37 × 15 = 555
37 × 18 = 666
37 × 21 = 777
37 × 24 = 888
37 × 27 = 999

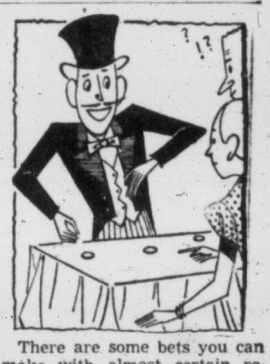
Answer: At approximately six thirty-two

KEY MAN NEEDED FOR THIS ONE

Find the key to the following computations and the rest is easy. Can you decipher the individual statements?

1. One thousand, two hundred, nothing and one is bound to give you plenty of fun.
2. From five take five and leave contempt.
3. To a half dozen add six and five hundred showing a result that is clear, lucid and glowing.
4. One thousand, fifty and one arrange to be a fruit on mart or change.

Solution: Comic (The figures refer to Roman numerals.) 1. Five minus V is five. 2. Vivid. 4. Lemon or melon.



There are some bets you can make with almost certain results. For example:

A bettor places three coins in a row on a table or other flat surface. He places the middle coin so that it is slightly closer to one of the outer coins than to the other. Then he asks someone to point out the two coins which are farthest apart. "Wanna bet?" he inquires.

Opponents generally pick out the obvious pair. In which case they are wrong, of course. The two coins farthest apart are the two outer coins—the ones at the extremities.

Train Derailed; Transient Killed

(From CP Dispatches)

CHILLIWACK—Sixteen cars of a 50-car west-bound Canadian National Railways freight train were derailed late Friday night from the CNR mainline at Laidlaw, 20 miles east of here in the Fraser Valley. The body of a transient was found in the wreckage.

Traffic on the line was halted.

The victim was not identified. He was believed to have been riding on or in one of the derailed cars.

A railway official said there was no obvious reason for the derailment.

Auxiliary crews from Port Mann and Kamloops proceeded to the scene.

The crack passenger train, the Continental, which left here at 7.45 p.m. Friday was stopped and returned to Vancouver from where it proceeded via Canadian Pacific tracks to Hope, nine miles past Laidlaw, before continuing on the CNR line to Montreal.

DRIVER KILLED

VANCOUVER — Rinold Schmidt, 36, was killed early today when his car crashed through a wire mesh fence and into the wall of a building on the Pacific National Exhibition grounds in Vancouver.

The car failed to stop or turn where a street meets the park. It sped across the roadway and boulevard, smashed through the wire mesh fence, apparently travelled through the air for about 60 feet before striking a sunken lawn, then crashed into the wall of a building.

FIRE IN HOTEL

VANCOUVER — Fire broke out in the basement of the Wingate Hotel here Thursday night but rooms of tenants weren't seriously threatened.

Fireman Tommy Thompson suffered cuts to both hands when he broke a window in fighting the flames.

Damage was confined to the basement of the 40-room brick building.

YOUTHS ARRESTED

VANCOUVER — Police today arrested two 17-year-old youths and said they may be near a solution to the theft of hundreds of dollars in nickels taken from city parking meters in the last six weeks. Officers said the youths had nearly $8 in nickels in their possession when arrested. No charges were immediately laid.

HEARING DELAYED

KAMLOOPS — Preliminary hearing of a murder charge against Stanley Manson, 55, was adjourned Thursday until May 4. He is charged in connection with the death of Russell Tierney, 65, whose body was found in a riverside shack April 9.

STRIKE AVERTED

VANCOUVER — A strike by the B.C. Technical Engineers Union (CLC) scheduled for Monday morning, was averted Friday night following agreement with H. A. Simons Co.

The newly-formed union had threatened to strike at all pulp mill plants under construction by the company on Vancouver Island — including projects at Port Alberni and Elk Falls — to back up demands for a wage increase.

Company and union officials announced here they agreed on a 30-cent-an-hour average increase for most scales.

THIEF STILL ESCAPED

VANCOUVER — A purse snatcher got away with his loot early Friday despite the five fire department rigs, the deputy fire chief's car, the fire warden and two police cars on his trail.

Mrs. Emile Higgins told police a young man attacked her and took her purse. She smashed open a nearby street fire alarm box to summon aid.

The thief escaped.

Life Underwriters' Island Meeting In City Next Week

The Life Underwriters' Association of Victoria will be host next week to a one-day convention of life insurance underwriters.

The meeting, to be held at the Empress Hotel next Wednesday, will be attended by life insurance men from Nanaimo and other Island cities.

Speakers will be John V. Coe, CLU, Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., Wichita, Kansas; Lloyd H. Feder, general agent, Lincoln National Life Insurance Co., Cleveland, Ohio, and Leslie W. Dunstall, executive vice-president, Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, Toronto.

Major Clean-Up Drive For Centennial Year

British Columbia will primp up with a full-scale beauty treatment for its 100th Birthday Party.

The "keep up with the Joneses" psychology will be applied by the energetic B.C. Junior Chamber of Commerce and the B.C. Centennial Committee to launch a province-wide campaign of sprucing up every community for the 1958 centennial year.

Each year Jaycee groups across Canada conduct a "Paint up, Clean-up Campaign." Starting early next spring, they'll co-operate with the Centennial Committee in driving home to each community the need for cleaning, painting and planting.

Contests will be held—each area being put in competition with others on a comparative population basis.

The Centennial Committee will turn out a brochure with advice on how to get the best results from concerted community effort.

"We hope every area will back this drive to the hilt," said L. J. Wallace, Centennial Committee chairman. "It is just as important as any other single project a community may be planning for the centennial year."

Centennial Committee Seeks Data

B.C. Centennial Committee is taking the lead in an effort to assist local committees to gather material for community histories.

It is appealing throughout the province for old-time residents to get in touch with the committees of their home towns.

"If many of the pioneers will send on the date and place of their birth, or the first place in which they resided in B.C., the result will be helpful to those writing histories," said L. J. Wallace, B.C. Centennial chairman. "Early-day stories and anecdotes will be extremely welcome."

Scout Parade Canvass Proposed to Council

City council will be asked to permit Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association to canvass street crowds for funds for a clubhouse just before the Victoria Day parade.

Finance committee approved the request Thursday following a delegation.

The committee turned down a repeated request from the IODE for a tag day and asked further information from Victoria District Boy Scouts' Association which had asked to hold an Apple Day.

The Scout district council will be asked why an Apple Day should be permitted when the group belongs to Community Chest. Other information regarding fund commitments to provincial and national commands also will be sought.

Actor Cary Grant Has Minor Surgery

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor Cary Grant took a brief time out from movie making Friday to have a small, non-malignant tumor removed from his forehead. A studio physician said Grant had the growth, a benign lipoma, for seven years and it never bothered him. He returned to the studio after the operation was performed.

Pearson Again Defends Action In Norman Case

(See Also Pages 2 and 16)

OTTAWA (CP)—For the second time in two days, External Affairs Minister Pearson has used a newspaper's editorial page to defend his handling of the Herbert Norman case.

He sent a letter to the editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail Friday after an editorial in the newspaper's Friday edition said Mr. Pearson had "completely reversed himself" on the question of whether official Canadian information on Mr. Norman had gotten into the hands of the United States Senate internal security sub-committee.

Mr. Pearson, who told the Commons twice last week that this had not happened, wrote that he had relied for those statements on RCMP assurances that two security reports sent to Washington had not been passed on to the sub-committee.

The minister's letter said that not until after his Commons statements did it become apparent that Robert Morris, sub-committee counsel, had used information from an RCMP report of Oct. 17, 1950.

Mr. Pearson, in another letter Wednesday to the editor of the Montreal Gazette, said that that report fell into the sub-committee's hands and was used by the sub-committee to brand Mr. Norman as a Communist.

The report of Oct. 17, 1950, referred to a 1940 statement by an RCMP secret agent in Toronto that a "professor Herbert Norman" was then a Communist.

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday that a later RCMP report on Dec. 1, 1950—relayed like the first to a U.S. security agency—said the agent's information was a case of "mistaken identity or unfounded rumor."

Mr. Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, committed suicide April 4 in Cairo after the sub-committee had revived its 1951 allegations of Communism against him.

Questions U.S. Handling of Reports

The minister's letter to the Globe and Mail, replying to one question raised in the newspaper's editorial, said he does not know how the sub-committee got the first RCMP report, or whether it received the second report discrediting the first.

He added that, if the second report did in fact reach the sub-committee, Senator William Jenner and commitee counsel Morris "for obvious reasons did not use it or make it public."

Mr. Pearson's letter to the Montreal Gazette was in reply to three editorial page columns by Arthur Blakely, Gazette Ottawa correspondent, earlier in the week.

In a further column in the Gazette's Friday issue, Mr. Blakely said his three columns were not intended as an attack either on Mr. Norman's memory or on Mr. Pearson's integrity.

He said they were written "for the primary purpose of drawing public attention to the fact that for a period of some six years Parliament had been deceived and misled with respect to the accuracy or otherwise of statements which a U.S. senate sub-committee had made about Mr. Norman's Communist associations and sympathies."

Another development Friday in the fast-moving Norman case was an interim reply by the U.S. state department to Canada's diplomatic note of last week.

Canada's note said the Canadian government would reserve the right to withhold the customary supplying of security information on Canadians to United States agencies unless the United States administraton could give assurances that the information would not be given to congressional groups.

The United States state department replied that the matter "will be pursued vigorously." A state department press officer said that the FBI, among other executive agencies, had been notified of Canada's request.

DISCREDIT LETTERS

The external affairs department issued another statement here and in Washington dealing with a side issue; publication by the New York Daily News of the purported texts of two notes written by Mr. Norman just before his suicide.

The department described the published texts as "complete fabrications" which bore no relation to the notes written by Mr. Norman. It said it holds the original notes, and declined to make them public. They were "purely personal in character."

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday he had concluded, on the basis of a 1950-51 Canadian security investigation, that Mr. Norman as a student in the 1930s had had "ideological beliefs which were close to some brand of communism" but had voluntarily abandoned them by the time he entered the external affairs department in 1939.

Jordan Army Chief Quits; New Crisis

Officer Firings Blamed for Action

AMMAN, Jordan (CP)—Maj.-Gen. Ali Hayari, who took over as Jordan's chief of staff only two days ago, has submitted his resignation, it was officially announced today. A new government crisis appeared brewing in the Arab kingdom.

Informed sources said Hayari resigned because King Hussein and others had, without consulting him, fired 60 officers and replaced them with Bedouins.

The source said Hayari's deputy, Maj-Gen. Habbes Majali, would succeed him in office. Majali became deputy chief of staff at the time Hayari became chief.

The new government was believed worried that the shift of army officers had placed too much power in the king's hands and that he would crack down on political parties.

HELD JOB FEW DAYS

Hayari, described by his friends as a career soldier with little interest in politics, took over the top army job only Thursday, and apparently firmed up Hussein's control over the restive kingdom. He replaced Maj.-Gen. Ali Abu Nuwar, a pro-Egyptian soldier-politician who was driven from the country to Syria last week. Several high officers accompanied Nuwar.

The new chief of staff was sent Friday to Damascus to ask Syrian authorities to extradite a group of the Jordanian dissidents. But an official spokesman reported that, on arrival, Hayari telephoned his father-in-law, Sedky el Kassem, to present his resignation to the government.

U.S. Encouraged By Russ Reaction In London Parleys

WASHINGTON (UP)—Harold E. Stassen said today that the United States and Russia are engaged in "the most serious" disarmament negotiations of the past 11 years.

He said, however, that "still many, many problems remain" to be resolved before even a real start can be made on disarmament.

Stassen, President Eisenhower's disarmament adviser, flew back from London, where he has been negotiating with representatives of Russia, Britain, France and Canada since March 18.

Stassen planned a meeting at the state department this afternoon to report on the London talks to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In advance of the conference, Stassen declined to say whether he is optimistic or pessimistic about the eventual outcome of the talks.

But other administration officials said there are "encouraging" signs that the Soviet Union may be willing to make a start on disarmament. They said the Soviets for the first time seem to be willing to work on the matter for other than immediate propaganda advantage.

Dulles was reported anxious to learn immediately what Stassen has found out in negotiations with Russia on the critical disarmament problem.

Russ Hint 'Open Skies' Agreement

Authorities from President Eisenhower down have been saying for the past week that the outlook for disarmament is better now than ever before. But they also have cautioned against expecting too much progress too quickly.

Eisenhower told a news conference this week that the atmosphere "is better" than it has been at similar sessions held by the UN disarmament subcommittee.

One of the big reasons for optimism here is a hint from Soviet negotiator Valerian A. Zorin that Russia may be ready to open a significant part of its territory to Eisenhower's "open skies" aerial inspection plan. Previously, the Soviets balked at this.

The United States this week agreed to accept a limited version of the Eisenhower plan if Russia would expand its counter proposal. That called for testing the plan in a 1,000-mile belt running about 500 miles on either side of the iron curtain. The United States has rejected this because it would not open enough of Russia to the inspectors.

Zorin hinted in London Thursday that the limits of the zone might be expanded through "negotiations" between East and West.

U.S. Ahead in Nuclear Race

Experts here called the remark "encouraging." They said it could lead to an agreement after the London talks resume Wednesday, but they pointed out that this would be only a first step on the long road toward effetcive disarmament.

American authorities said one basic reason for thinking Russia may at last be ready to make concessions to end the arms race is that Russia is suffering too heavy a burden in attempting to match U.S. nuclear weapons production.

U.S. officials believe Russia's bosses would prefer to spend the money on non-military projects that would help calm any discontent among Russians with their standard of living.

In addition, officials said, the Soviets have indicated that they know they are lagging behind the United States in nuclear weapons production and therefore are sincerely fearful of getting into a nuclear war.

City Streets Jammed With Holiday Shoppers

Sunny skies and the warmth of spring caused several traffic tieups in the city today as motorists and shoppers by the thousands jammed downtown streets.

City police reported traffic heavy, particularly around department store parking lots, where incoming and outgoing motorists kept traffic in a snarl during the forenoon.

Along downtown streets, metered space was at a premium as drivers vied for parking slots, and pedestrians, out in droves for late shopping before the holiday week-end, crowded over cross-walks to make intersections hazardous.

Police said at press time they had encountered no real traffic problems nor accidents, but expected to be busy until shop closing time directing downtown traffic.

The business section today offered a strange contrast to Friday, when it was practically deserted. On the other hand, the highways and byways of the Saanich peninsula and the Sooke area were jammed with cars Friday afternoon and evening.

Gardeners had a field day Friday and were ready for another gainful day today. Small boys found plenty of wild flowers, and motorcyclists who were out in force described the holiday as "cold, but still fun."

A few brave souls even went swimming in some of the sheltered lakes.

The travel peak noted Thursday, when TCA had six extra flights between here and the Mainland and the CPR ran an extra round-trip sailing between Nanaimo and Vancouver, will be divided between Sunday and Monday, according to airline and shipping spokesmen.

Special services have been arranged in all city churches, and three separate sunrise services have been scheduled. (See Page 18 for details.)

Only blight noted on the weekend to date has been reported by the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The fine weather that sent Victoriains out in droves to enjoy nature also roused the wood ticks. Five persons reported at the hospital's emergency ward to have the pesky mites of the bush removed from various portions of their anatomy.

EASTER BONNET WEATHER PROMISED FOR SUNDAY

Easter Sunday should be sunny and fairly warm; weatherman William Mackie predicted today.

Peak temperatures will be about 58 degrees, he said, but winds are not expected to gain strength until Sunday afternoon, when they will reach a velocity of about 20 miles from the southwest.

There will be high cloud, he said, but it likely will be thin enough during the day for the sun to shine through.

Easter Rituals Nearing Climax For World Pilgrims in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Pilgrims of all Christian faiths converged on the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in the Old City of Jerusalem today as the Easter Holy Week approached its climax.

Some of Christianity's most ancient rituals will be observed within the walls of this ancient city when events in the life of Christ are re-enacted by Roman Catholics, Greek Orthodox believers, Protestants, Copts, Armenians, Syrians and Ethiopians.

The greatest tension in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is usually felt on Holy Saturday during the "holy fire" services conducted by Greek Orthodox and Armenian rites.

WILD EXCITEMENT

The appearance of fire spurting from two openings on either side of the chapel over the Holy Sepulchre touches off exuberant emotions and wild cheering and excitement.

The patriarchs of these two rites enter the tomb, which is then sealed by the Moslem warden of the church.

The two prelates spend hours in prayer inside the sealed tomb while the congregation in the unlighted church watches with growing intensity the two openings where the fire is to emerge.

Suddenly the cry "He is risen" pierces the air at the sight of the fire.

Within a few seconds lights glow and the rotunda is soon ablaze with the flickering "resurrection fire" in nooks and crannies of the church.

BLESSES FIRE

Near the stone of unction where Christ's body was prepared for burial Roman Catholics hold their service in the course of which the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem blesses the holy fire.

On Good Friday thousands of persons packed the courtyard in front of the church where the scene of Jesus washing his disciples' feet was repeated.

Benedictus the First, new Greek Orthodox prelate in the Middle East, officiated at the service for the first time.

Queen to Celebrate 31st Birthday Sunday

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth will quietly celebrate her 31st birthday Sunday with her family at Windsor Castle.

It has become the custom for the Royal Family to celebrate personal anniversaries as unobtrusively as possible.

The Queen and Prince Philip usually attend Easter Day service at St. George's Chapel, Windsor. After Prince Charles and Princess Anne wake their mother Sunday with a birthday hug and whatever gifts they manage to buy with their pocket money, the whole family probably will go to church.

JEWELRY FROM PHILIP

Prince Philip's customary birthday present is a piece of jewelry, often something he designed himself. The Queen's favorite stone is the sapphire.

The Easter holidays will give the Queen a chance to rest before she leaves next month on another state visit—her third in the last year—to Denmark.

It has been a busy 30th year for the Queen.

She has played hostess to young King Faisal of Iraq, who paid a state visit to Britain, made history by opening the first nuclear power plant in the world supplying commercial electricity, and paid state visits to Portugal and France.

Like any young mother with school-age children, she now is beginning to make plans for their future education.

Lately, she and Prince Philip have visited a number of English private schools and there has been some speculation about which will be chosen for the future king.

U.S. Star Wins Boston Marathon

BOSTON (UP) — Skinny schoolteacher Johnny Kelley won the 61st annual Boston A.A. marathon today, the first American victory in 12 years.

The 36-year-old Kelley of Groton, Conn., plodded the 26 miles 385 yards from Hopkinton to Boston in 2.20.05.

The time was a new record for the route because the course was remeasured and lengthened by 1,187 yards this year to conform with Olympic standards.

Draws Protest

LONDON (AP) — Governor Averell Harriman of New York State was accused today by a member of Parliament of "making mischief" in the Mediterranean by inviting Archbishop Makarios, Greek Orthodox leader of the Cyprus union-with-Greece movement, to visit New York.

Paul Williams, leader in the right-wing bloc of Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative party, said the invitation "casts doubt on the wisdom of the Makarios release."

Manchester U. Wins League Soccer Title

LONDON (AP)—Manchester United crushed lowly Sunderland 4-0 today and captured the English Soccer League championship for the second straight season.

It was the first step in Manchester's bid for the unique soccer treble of success in the English League and cup competitions and the European Cup. Manchester will play Aston Villa in the final of the English Cup May 4 and on Thursday tackle Real Madrid in the second leg of the European Cup semifinals.

Madrid won the first leg in Spain 3-1. The match is decided on aggregate goals after home and away matches. Fiorentina of Italy already has reached the European Cup final with a victory over Red Star of Belgrade.

Manchester's victory over Sunderland boosted its total points to 59 from 39 matches. United still has three games to play but closest challenger Preston managed only a 0-0 tie against Blackpool. Even if Preston wins its remaining two matches it can total only 58 points—one less than the total already reached by Manchester.

A crowd of 58,489 saw Manchester United lead Sutherland 1-0 at half time on a goal by inside forward Billy Whelan. Whelan, halfback Duncan Edwards and centre froward Tommy Taylor rammed in three more goals in the second half.

Norman 'Notes' Labelled 'Complete Fabrications'

See Page 16

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Canadian Embassy Friday described as "complete fabrications" the purported texts published in a New York newspaper of two notes written by Canadian Ambassador E. Herbert Norman immediately before his suicide in Cairo.

An embassy statement said the texts published by the New York Daily News "bear no relation" to the notes written by Norman to his wife and to Swedish Minister Brynolf Eng, a close friend.

The originals, the statement said, "are in the possession of the Canadian Department of External Affairs."

The statement, issued by R. A. Farquharson, embassy press officer, was made here on instruction of the Canadian government in Ottawa.

The purported note to Eng as printed in the Daily News recorded Norman as saying "I cannot bring myself to tell you the true reasons that impel me to commit suicide."

This sentence had been interpreted as indicating that Norman had killed himself for some reason other than the publication last month of an accusation made before hte United States Senate internal security sub-committee that Norman had been a Communist.

The sub-committee has been involved in a bitter international controversy since the diplomat jumped to his death from a tall building.

The embassy statement said:

"The New York Daily News on April 18 published two letters purporting to be addressed by Mr. Norman, the former Canadian ambassador to Egypt, before his death and Mr. Eng, the Swedish minister in Cairo. The texts of these two letters printed by The Daily News bear no relation to the texts of notes addressed to his wife and Mr. Eng, the originals of which are in the possession of the Canadian department of external affairs.

"The original notes to Mrs. Norman and Mr. Eng were purely personal in character. The only conclusion which can be drawn is that the texts of the letters printed by The Daily News are complete fabrications."

The Daily News commented as follows:

"The Norman suicide letters, which were published last Thursday in The News, were cabled from Cairo. They were translations of Arabic copies made of the letters while the Cairo police were holding them during their investigation.

"They were obtained by The News correspondent in Cairo, Reynolds Packard.

"In his cable containing the letters, Packard said: 'The following texts are translations back into English from the Arabic translation of the original English of Norman's letters.'

"Minor errors, but onlly minor, might arise from a double translation.

"The Canadian government has not seen fit to offer its own version of Norman's letters in support of its claim of fabrication."

As published in the New York News the letters read:

To Mrs. Norman:

"Dear Wife: Farewell to you, my beloved, and to my family. I wanted so much to tell you all about my troubles during these last few days of my life because I think of you as my spiritual partner but I finally decided to bear them alone and not distress you.

"NO MORE FUTURE"

"I also wanted to tell you before going out this morning of my intention to commit suicide but I changed my mind at the last minute feeling it would be better for you to learn of my death—afterwards. I have no more hope in life, no more future. Please forgive me my love, for ending my life like this. I feel I don't deserve even to kiss your feet.

"Farewell my beloved. Best wishes to my family.

"Herbert"

To Eng:

"I wanted to spend some time with you during these last few days of my life and tell you what has been worrying me but am afraid that even in this letter I cannot bring myself to tell you true reasons that impel me to commit suicide.

"I have decided to die near your home. I know this may cause you some trouble and I am sorry but you are my best friend. Farewell.

"Sincerely,
"Norman"

NEW WALSH CHARGE

Two Other Top Diplomats 'Linked' to Reds

LABRIEVILLE, Que. (BUP) — Former Communist labor leader Pat Walsh flatly stated Friday Herbert Norman was a Communist, and so are two other high-ranking Canadian diplomats.

Walsh said that Canada's ambassador to Egypt, who killed himself April 4, and the two other diplomats are known to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police as "the unholy three."

"External affairs minister Lester Pearson calls them 'my Asiatic advisers' and has been defending all three for years in spite of pressure from (justice minister Stuart) Garson," Walsh charged.

He said he got his proof while working as a paid undercover agent for the RCMP and claimed Norman committed suicide because Pearson wired him that Walsh was bringing out the RCMP file on Norman.

"Norman jumped just a week after I had written to Pearson about the file," Walsh said.

Walsh added that he is now going to press for the recall of the two other diplomats to face a public investigation. He said if the men were not recalled he would "reluctantly bring out my files for the public to see."

BEFORE THE JUDGE

By SILENUS

A Free Gull's Life

GENTLE readers could not have missed the front page story last week which the Seagull Editor of this newspaper wrote himself. It takes a lot to get this vital functionary personally into print, I can tell you; and the particular occasion which did so on Wednesday was really something.

—5th Century Terracotta
SILENUS

The City Fathers, it seems, are considering methods of discouraging the garbage wharf gulls. Prompted by the City Engineer, a splendid man so far as roads, drains, bridges and so on are concerned, but a dismal flop as a municipal ornithologist, they are talking of dispossessing these birds from their ancient preserves, liberties and franchises.

The Court House Seagull is terribly upset about it, and has been retained by a delegation representing the Rock Bay and Selkirk Water Branch of the Chamber of Commerce to institute quo warranto proceedings, writs of prohibition, habeas refuse and generally do all that is necessary to stop this wicked and unjust encroachment.

* * *

"Look at this!" he said, pointing his pink claw at a passage he was reading from the Statutes at Large (3 Elizabeth the First). "It says 'Byrdes feathr'd of the ayre are free, No man may touch their libertie . . . We've got the law with us, all right!"

"Don't get excited. Remember what the librarian did the last time you were in here."

"Don't remind me of that disgraceful occasion. I was framed, as you very well know," said the old bird, drawing himself up with dignity, and pacing majestically up and down the book-strewn table. "It was one of those young devils of mine who was supposed to be helping with the research. I've fired him, anyway. Better to do it myself."

"How are you going to proceed?"

"Well, I haven't altogether decided yet. But the first thing to do is get an injunction, just to have it ready in case. Not that the measures which I am told have been suggested will do any good! What do they take us for? We're gulls, 100% red-blooded Victoria gulls, not a bunch of effete Cathedral pigeons. It'll take more than a mere smear of tanglefoot to keep us out of our ancient rights!"

* * *

"What are your rights?"

"Socage, pasturage, pillage and ullage. Oh, yes, and demurrage. It's all in here." And he stamped his foot on a weighty tome, raising a cloud of dust. "There has never been anything so disgraceful since the Enclosure Acts. Victoria garbage has been ours since it first appeared. Prescription! Immemorial user! Dedication! And furthermore, the Navigable Waters Protection Act. Just let 'em try! We're all going to the next council meeting, more than a thousand of us. The Chatham Island Association and the Beacon Hill Old Age Crust-Swoopers Club are sending representatives. We hope to convince them by other means, but we're prepared to go to law if all else fails! Three-mile limit! Foreshore rights! No taxation without representation! Awwrrk!"

"Nevertheless I hear that the City has been put to some expense providing umbrellas for the workers at the wharf."

"A vile smear! They've got to prove intent. Mens rea! Reasonable doubt! Autrefois acquit! Besides, it's the terns. You'd better be on your way. I've got a lot of work to do."

I had barely closed the door when a frightful uproar arose behind me, and the Seagull flashed past with a librarian in hot pursuit. "Persecution!" he shrieked as he banked sharply and swooped out the window.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Pall Mall Skyscraper

LONDON—The changing face of London . . . This city is to have a skyscraper on something like North American proportions. In a few weeks work will start at the corner of Pall Mall and Haymarket on what will be the tallest building in central London— despite a bitter fight by the Royal Fine Arts Commission to prevent its being built.

Reyburn

Many huge new buildings are now going up in London but their bigness is based on the fact that they occupy long blocks not on height, because they are only around 10 stories. The Fine Arts people didn't like the idea of a big finger of a building sticking up in the air from its more modest neighbors.

* * *

However, New Zealand House, for whom the building is being erected, won the battel and up it will go 17 stories with a penthouse on top—225 feet high, towering 41 feet above the Nelson Column in nearby Trafalgar Square.

The site is one not only well known to Londoners but to Canadians also. The famous Carlton Bar and Grill was there, just a few steps along the street from Canada House, the Canada Sun Life building, the CPR and CNR offices, etc.

During the war, when Canadian military headquarters was in the Canada Sun Life building, the Carlton was a favorite eating and drinking place with officers, which conjure up, for me at any rate, names out of the past such as Bill Abel, Larry Audrain and Eric Gibbs, the CMHQ PR stalwarts.

* * *

But now the Carlton, for so many years such a popular rendezvous, is to share the fate of two other famous restaurants which have recently made way for offices—Frascatti's on Oxford Street and Odenino's at the bottom of Regent Street.

Each of the Dominions, with their growing importance over the past few decades, is suffering from housing problems in London, and not the least Canada. Canadians will cast envious eyes at New Zealand's London skyscraper, in which all their offices now spread around London will be centralized.

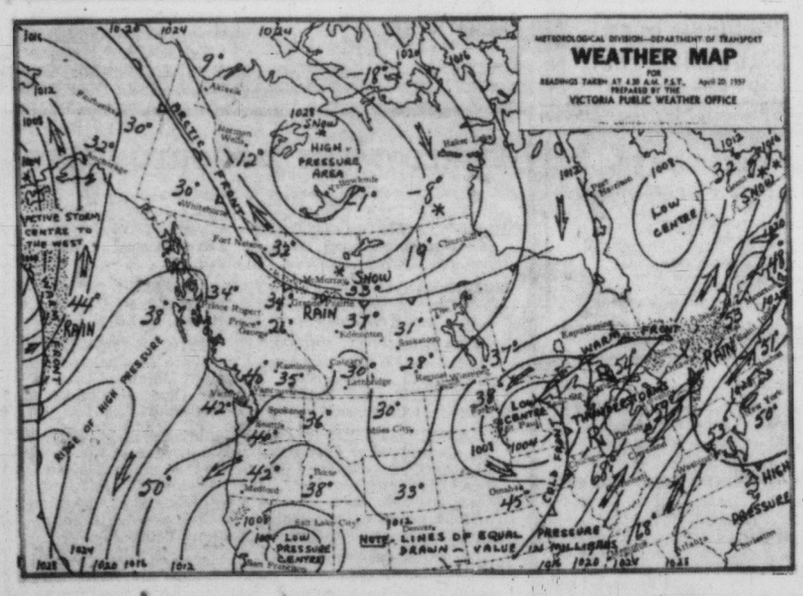
* * *

I had heard rumors that there was a new Canada House to be built and this is something that is really a pressing need. At present those doing business with Canada in London find they have to chase all over the city to get anything done.

Canada House itself on Trafalgar Square houses but a small proportion of the official offices; the other offices are in 10 other buildings as far apart as Kensington, Mayfair and Soho.

But when I checked with Canada House to find out whether we were going to emulate New Zealand, I learned that "the high commissioner will never be moved from the wonderful site of Canada House on Trafalgar Square."

However, it seems Ottawa has thought of putting up a building on a site behind Canada House to centralize the other offices, but I gather as yet it hasn't got far beyond the thinking stage.



WEEKEND WEATHER PICTURE ACROSS CANADA

SYNOPSIS—Saturday promises to be the nicest day of the Easter weekend over most of B.C. Skies will be sunny in most sections and showers will be less frequent than in the past two days. The outlook for Sunday's weather, however, is not so promising. An intense storm is now moving into the Gulf of Alaska and is expected to give a glancing blow to the western portions of the province as it moves southward. The north coast will feel the effect of the storm today and by Sunday morning cloudy skies and fresh southerly winds will be pushing into the south coast.

Canada Quadruples Armor for NATO Force

OTTAWA (CP) — The armored proportion of Canada's NATO brigade in Germany is to be quadrupled. The change becomes effective during rotation of the force next autumn.

Defence Minister Campney announced that the 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade is to relieve the 2nd Brigade before Christmas, and that the brigade's armored component is to be raised from the present squadron to a full regiment.

The significance was that the new balance of infantry to armor extends to the NATO brigade the benefits of an army reorganization earlier this year that saw two infantry battalions disbanded and a third armored regiment organized. That gave the army one armored regiment to every three infantry battalions.

Air Safety Pioneer Retires

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Edward Pearson Warner of the United States, a scientist who saw aviation grow from barnstorming to inter-continental transport services, today announced his retirement after 11 years as president of the Council of the International Civil Aviation Organization.

Dr. Warner, who was elected president at the first meeting of the provisional international organization in 1945, will be succeeded by Walter Binahi of Argentina.

During the period he headed the council, the ICAO membership grew from 26 to 70 countries which co-operate within the framework of the United Nations specialized agency.

In the last decade he played an active role in the standardizing navigational services, air traffic control, communications, regulations defining the rules of the air, conditions under which aircraft and personnel are to be licensed and in the simplification of customs and immigration procedures.

FBI Sniffing Scent: Who's Got the Scotch?

SEATTLE (AP) — Who got away with the barrel of Scotch?

The mystery of the missing hogshead of imported stuff came to light Thursday with the filing of claims of $1,248.64 against the Port of Seattle.

The hogshead was one of 30 delivered from Scotland to Seattle last December for the State Liquor Control Board. It disappeared Dec. 11.

There have been charges before that dock workers upon occasion have slipped a bottle or two under their jackets on leaving the job. But never anything like this.

This was 62½ gallons; 630 pounds. Special stuff, too—114 proof; ready for "watering-down" to 86 proof by the state agency.

And it was valuable: the whisky and the $14 hogshead were worth $397.19; import duty, $101.43; internal revenue tax, $750.02. The claims are by the federal government for the duty and taxes, and by the state board for the whisky.

The FBI has been trying to pick up the scent.

Timber Bid Denial Forced Layoff, Millman Charges

Fort St. John Operator Claims Gov't Won't Let Him in Wenner-Gren Area

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C. (CP)—Sawmill operator Earl Pollon of Hudson Hope said today 70 of his employees have been laid off because the British Columbia Forest Service refused to allow him to bid for Timber on Crown land.

Mr. Pollon said the timber, north of the Peace River, is in a 40,000-square-mile area where the Wenner-Gren B.C. Development Co., Ltd., is considering a billion-dollar industrial development.

Keith Peck, Mr. Pollon's partner, is circulating a petition protesting the government prohibition among resdents of the northeastern British Columbia village, 50 miles west of Fort St. John.

Some employees are still working at the Pollon mill, processing timber cut from other sites.

Swedish financier Axel Wenner-Gren organized the new company which bears his name to plan a monorail railway from Fort McLeod, east of here, to the Yukon border and to explore the mineral and timber wealth of the 40,000-square-mile area.

Ray Williston, British Columbia's forests minister, said Thursday when first asked to comment on a report that 70 men were out of work at the Pollon mill:

"It's news to me. So many sawmills are closing now for no other reason than lack of business."

Mr. Pollon said today, however, the mill recently spent $10,000 on equipment to cut railway ties for the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, a provincially-owned line being extended into the northwest part of British Columbia. He said the mill has delivered 50,000 ties to the PGE and has orders on file "for months ahead."

SUITOR KILLS SELF

Choir Singer Shot to Death In Church Pew

COVE, Ark. (AP) — Moments after pretty Helen Griffiths left a choir and went to a pew in a church here Friday night six pistol shots blasted the Holy Week service and the 20-year-old girl fell fatally wounded into the aisle.

The shots were fired through a window of the Hilltop Holiness Church in this west Arkansas mountain town. A 61-year-old man was wounded in the left leg.

Little more than an hour later officers here were notified that Haskell Sullivan, 25, a rejected suitor of the dead girl, had killed himself in front of his brother's house at Nano Chito, Okla., 20 miles across the Arkansas-Oklahoma border from Cove.

Mrs. E. L. Blake, pastor of the church, said "things happened so quickly that everyone was stunned."

"Helen had just finished singing in the choir. They had just sung 'What a Friend We Have in Jesus'."

About 40 adults and a number of children were at the revival-type Good Friday service.

Montreal Man Held in Rifle Attack on Crowd

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal homicide detectives said Friday four charges of attempted murder are to be laid against a man arrested after four persons suffered gun wounds Thursday at a crowded downtown intersection.

Police said the charges may be laid today against the man apprehended in a third-storey tourist home room. He was identified by police as Fernand Rainville, 33.

They said they had been unable so far to determine any motive for the attack in which Florette Pelletier, 45, was seriously injured with two .22-calibre bullet wounds in the shoulder and back. Another woman and two men were less seriously hurt.

Between 11 and 15 shots apparently were fired from a new rifle at crowds of panic-ridden pedestrian who scattered wildly.

The rush-hour incident took place at the intersection of St. Catherine Street and St. Lawrence Boulevard, Montreal's two main arteries. The room from which the shots were fired contained several boxes of bullets, police said, and had been rented earlier in the day.

N.Y. Exchange Probes Lukens Steel Dealings

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Stock Exchange said Thursday it is investigating recent wide market swings in Lukens Steel Company common stock which brought about suspension of trading twice within a week.

Lukens shares broke $7.87 a share April 4 following a statement by President Charles Lukens Huston Jr., in an interview that his firm's first-quarter earnings "should be at least equal to, if not better than, the average quarter of last year."

Let's Be Precise: Median New Term For 'Boulevard'

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP)—The European's love for the precise meaning of words brought about a name change in signs by the Ontario department of highways.

The highways department for some time has been receiving this type of question from European newcomers: "Why are we not allowed on the highway?"

The department did some investigating. It discovered that the sign "Keep off the boulevard"—which applies to the centre strip of four lane highways in Ontario —had for many years been used incorrectly. The term boulevard really means a broad tree-lined street. So the department substituted the word "median" instead.

Though this decision was reached some time ago, it may be five years before all signs are changed. The department replaces signs because of deterioration or removes others for safety reasons.

Atom-Sub Nautilus Goes to Sea Again

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—The atomic submarine Nautilus is at sea once more after her first refuelling. The Nautilus, which started cruising Jan. 19, 1955, traveled 60,000 miles on her first charge of nuclear fuel. She put in for refuelling two months ago and left Thursday with her new charge—"about the size of a softball"—the United States Navy says.

Canada's freshwater areas cover more than six per cent of the total of 3,845,000 square miles.

CORNERBROOK, Nfld. (CP)—Firemen battled about five hours early today to control a fire that broke out in the Bowater's Newfoundland Pulp and Paper Company's No. 2 newsprint machine.

U.S. Optimistic Over Year-End Business Boom

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP) — Business may level off in the months ahead in the United States, but it should come back strong in the fourth quarter.

That's how corporation heads, bankers, economists and others sized up the situation this week.

Opinion was far from unanimous, but most of it was on the optimistic side.

Bolstering confidence in the economy was a report from President Eisenhower's council of economic advisers on the total of all business activity in the first three months this year. This total is measured on an economic yardstick called the "gross national product."

In the first quarter of 1957, the country's gross national product climbed to a record high. Despite soft spots, cutbacks and layoffs, the economy as a whole boiled along at a whirlwind pace of $427,000,000,000 a year. That's three per cent greater than in the booming fourth quarter of 1956. It's 23½ per cent greater than in last year's first quarter.

MIXED COMPLEXION

In striking fashion, the GNP report pointed up the mixed complexion of business. It showed that spending by corporations on new plant and equipment—one of the main props of the long boom the U.S. has been enjoying — turned down in the January-March period for the first time in a year. But increased spending by individual consumers, and by government agencies, more than took up the slack.

Retail merchants, many of whom have been concerned about lagging Easter sales, had cause for joy this week. An 11th-hour buying surge was expected to boost the nation's total Easter trade slightly above last year's levels.

For the year as a whole, retailers were told to expect a sales increase of three per cent. That, said president Richard H. Rich of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, is the least they'll need to keep profits on a par with 1956.

Best news for auto dealers was word that new car inventories were being kept within bounds because of stepped-up sales and factory cutbacks. Field stocks on April 1 amounted to 763,000 cars, as compared to almost 900,000 at the same time last year.

Canadian Utilities Net $1.2 Million

EDMONTON (CP)—Canadian Utilities Ltd. has reported it had net income of $1,273,000 for 1956, an increase of $158,000 over 1955. Revenue for sale of electricity was $4,612,000, an increase of $562,000 over 1955, while total expense was $3,424,000, up $456,000 from the previous year.

Mine Issues Lead Markets To Fourth Weekly Advance

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets this week stretched their advance into four straight weeks. Speculative mining issues attracted the most attention and had some of the best gains.

For the fifth straight week, the leadership of the markets changed hands. First it was the natural gas and pipeline stocks which drew the greater attention. Then uraniums, western oils, industrials and mines took over.

Observers said the strength in the market was encouraging and didn't forecast any immediate end to the advance. They said the fact that so many different groups could attract attention was a bullish indication.

Heavy volume featured the lower-priced mines, which actually started to climb near the end of the previous week. Rockwin was the pace setter. It traded 3,233,835 shares during the shortened week — the market was closed for Good Friday and will not open until Tuesday morning—and jumped 55 cents to $1.38.

HEAVIEST SESSION

The activity among mines gave the Toronto Stock Exchange one of its heaviest sessions of the year. A total of 25,805,000 shares were traded compared with the previous week's 26,245,000 despite the absence of a fifth session.

Another strong issue among lower-priced mines was Buffalo Ankerite. It recorded an 80-cent gain to $1.75.

The strength of the junior mines, however, was not reflected in the Toronto Stock Exchange's base metal index, compiled from the acitivity of 15 key issues, mostly higher-priced stocks. The index gained 1¾ points.

International Nickel was a senior base metal leader, advancing $ to $108.75. Falconbridge had a strong session Wednesday and gained $2.37½ cents to $37.62½.

Golds added one point to their index, mainly because of McIntyre's strong gain, $7.50 to $92.50.

Industrials quietly plodded ahead with a little fanfare. Aluminium recorded the best advance, up $8.25 to $130 in active trading. McColl was another strong winner, gaining $3.50 at $76 as rumors circulated about a stock-split. The industrial index had a 3¾-point gain.

OILS AHEAD

Western oils moved ahead strongly on a rally Thursday which carried many stocks to 1957 highs. Most of the interest was concentrated on Home Oil B, up $2.3½ to $20.50, Stanwell, up 23 cents to $1.15, and Fargo, up 45 cents to $4.85. The Western oil index gained 3½ points.

Index changes at Toronto: Industrials up 3.71 to 470.21; golds up .97 to 79.79; base metals up 1.70 to 215.35; western oils up 3.58 to 177.25. Of 819 issues traded, 356 advanced, 312 declined and 151 were unchanged.

Week's index changes at Montreal: Banks off 0.37 to 52.35; utilities up 1.1 to 147.9; industrials up 4.6 to 288.0; combined up 3.4 to 241.3; papers off 21.12 to 1311.13; golds off 1.19 to 77.35.

GM Won't Bid For Small Car Market

CALGARY (CP)—President Edwin H. Walker, of General Motors of Canada, says his company will not attempt to break into the small car market.

"The type of car we build is the type that has to date sold to the great masses of people," he said at a press conference.

In Vancouver the small-car market amounted to about 18 per cent but only about 7 per cent on a total Canadian average, Mr. Walker said.

While in Calgary Mr. Walker was made a blood brother in the Sarcee Tribe. Chief David One-Spot, 89-year-old senior of the tribe, named Mr. Walker Na Ne Ya De Colee, or White Bear.

ROCKS, POT-HOLES AND NARROW SECTIONS still provide inconvenience and potential driving hazards to motorists using Malahat, and situation will continue all summer. Big rocks beside road near Shawnigan Lake cut-off hedge narrow alley for cars, left; idea of sheer rock which had to be blasted to widen scenic drive is shown, centre, while on right, cars by-pass road portion being levelled by bulldozers. Paving must wait for roadbed to settle which is expected "soon" in some sections. Top number of workers, 100, are now employed on road, from seasonal low around Christmas of 47 men.

'Operation Polio' on Again; First Shots May 13 to 17

Fully adequate supplies of Salk vaccine are now assured for Victoria's adult inoculation program.

A spokesman for the Victoria Medical Society, sponsors of the project, said today Connaught Laboratories, Toronto, had guaranteed sufficient vaccine for "Operation Polio."

The program calls for first inoculations from May 13 to 17 in nurses' residences of the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals, 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Second injections will be given at the same time and places in June, and the third and final shots are scheduled for January next year.

The medical society hopes 20,000 Victorians, ages 18 to 45 years, will avail themselves of vaccine benefits.

More than 100 city doctors will give their time free of charge. The Victoria Pharmaceutical Association is providing the vaccine at cost.

Doctors will give the actual injections, assisted by members of the graduate nurses' association.

$3 CHARGE

The three shots will cost $3, the actual wholesale price.

Vaccine will be given for this amount only to persons who have picked up inoculation cards, available at all Victoria drug stores, the week preceding May 13.

"Operation Polio" has been an on-again-off-again scheme over the past few months because an American firm failed to come through with vaccine, before later word had it that the Toronto company might supply the need. This is now confirmed.

MONTE ROBERTS

One of the things I like best about Victoria is the backyard boat.

I don't know if you noticed, but the backyard boat population of Victoria is not only large, but growing larger.

And every boat in a backyard which I see brings me pleasure.

There are all kinds of backyard boats in these parts.

Some of them are being built, from the keel up, by the owners of the backyard.

Some of them are being converted or rebuilt or repaired. Some just receiving an annual scrape-and-paint.

Some are sleek and shiny, with trim, tapering bows, sturdy transoms, graceful cabin work.

More of them are inclined to be on the chopped-up style, with angles instead of curves, and cabins in the chicken-house manner, hacked out of plywood with a bread knife.

But even the ugliest boat in a backyard is a happy sight.

It's a sign that a man has a dream.

Many of these backyard boats never reach the water. Many languish as nothing but a keel and the bare bones of ribs.

But the owners of these unfinished symphonies have a dream, too, just the same as the man who finally trucks his boat from the backyard to the water.

The man whose boat never leaves the backyard can dream of far distant places, just as efficiently and satisfactorily as the man who's casting off the mooring line.

In fact, the man with the boat permanently anchored in his backyard has certain advantages. His dreaming isn't hampered by such realities as gale warnings in Juan de Fuca Strait, the price of gasoline and gear, and non-working weekend guests.

And there is one thing sure. A man with a backyard boat is too busy with his dreaming—his happy dreaming—to get into trouble.

Yes, of all the things I like about Victoria, I think I like the backyard boats best of all.

Speed-Up Asked On Malahat Job

Chamber Official Fears Loss of Tourist Trade

By TONY DICKASON

Sam Lane, chairman of the tourist trade committee of the Chamber of Commerce, today called for "24-hour-a-day" work on the Malahat to clear up the "confusing detours" for the peak tourist season.

He said the present condition of the Malahat is a definite deterrent to tourist trade.

Mr. Lane called for use of floodlights at night and increased crews.

"We have had a great deal of adverse criticism," he said.

Tourists go home saying roads in Canada are "terrible" after seeing the Malahat, he stated.

Assistant manager of the Victoria Automobile Club, Cy Porter, said a committee had just examined the Malahat and found it in "very poor" condition.

Recommendations will be made to the highways department next week as to how the road can be improved for the tourist season which starts around May 1.

"We feel the detours, for example, should be repaired immediately."

A highways department official said the route north from here, part of the Trans-Canada Highway, will be finished "this summer" but a superintendent of the job said he expected completion "in September."

This means inconvenience to the thousands of tourist cars who normally make the drive to the top of the 1,800 foot viewpoint overlooking Finlayson Arm, Saanich Inlet and the Gulf Islands.

Started in '55

First section of the Malahat project, undertaken by the Vancouver construction firm of Campbell-Bennett, started in June, 1955, at the base of the mountain and ran for 3.8 miles. The second stage is now well under way and runs from the Malahat Chalet to Mill Bay, a distance of about nine miles.

This stage started 13 months ago, and when finished will have taken more than 1½ years.

Work has been slowed greatly because of the necessity of handling traffic while the project is under way.

One top B.C. official said the slowdown is "as much as 25 per cent."

$1.5 Million

When the present section is completed, costs will be in the neighborhood of $1,500,000, split between federal and provincial governments.

There are 100 men on the job at present—blasting, bulldozing rock, pouring fill and related work. About 24 pieces of heavy equipment are in use, excluding smaller trucks.

There have been numerous complaints concerning delays for motorists, but because of the nature of the terrain these, say company officials, have been impossible to avoid.

Nine miles up the highway from Victoria is the first indication of work. Motorists are alerted by a sign saying "Watch For Rock on Road."

This is the first of many signs, including "Caution, Trucks Turning, "Single Lane Traffic," "Danger, Drive Slowly," "Warning, Blasting," "Narrow Road Ahead," "Rough Roadways Ahead," and "Sorry for the Inconvenience . . ." over the name of Provincial Highways Minister P. A. Gaglardi.

It all adds up to a pretty bleak prospect for motorists.

Single Lane

One foreman, asked by a motorist just what was going on, looked rueful and said "we are doing a scenic drive."

The road is in fine shape where completed, but at the Malahat Chalet, 13 miles from town, it becomes immediately bumpy, and thins down a mile further along to near-single lane traffic, with rocks the size of cricket balls strewn on the roadway near the Shawnigan Lake cut-off.

Blasting is still going on a little further along and the heavy chatter of the drills, sporadic roar of compressors, rumble of the 18-ton Euclid diesels, and screech of rock protesting its way into the giant shovel, makes bedlam.

The job, because of the many thousands of tons of rock which must be moved, is extremely hard on equipment. Blades of the 'dozers, for instance, last "from three days to three weeks."

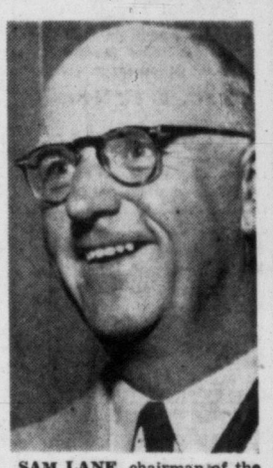
Only 8 MPH

Most rugged portion of the new construction is at "Mile 17" where there is 150 yards of a wet, narrow passage hanging to the rock's face.

A bus can squeeze through at about 8 m.p.h., no more. Much of the stretch undergoing face-lifting calls for no more than 25 m.p.h.

Work is also being done from Mill Bay on, but officials say this will be comparatively easy.

But at present workers are still trying to pull the cork from the main bottleneck.



SAM LANE, chairman of the tourist trade group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce today called for use of floodlights in reconstruction of the scenic Malahat Drive so that workmen can get on with the job when traffic is light at night. He said many complaints are being received on the condition of this section of the Trans-Canada Highway.

City to 'Go Alone' On Centennial Plan

Disunity in Greater Victoria over a single centennial project demonstrates the need for amalgamation of the four municipalities, Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich said today.

"If we were amalgamated this matter would have been settled long ago," he declared.

Reeve Ash was commenting on city council's decision Thursday to "go it alone" on a centennary project of "lasting value" instead of contributing its centennial project funds—60 cents per capita from the provincial government and a matching grant from the city—towards construction of a new Royal Jubilee Hospital wing.

HOSPITAL WING

Reeve Ash added that as far as he knows Saanich municipality will go ahead with the hospital wing project.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele of Esquimalt said:

"Whether Esquimalt goes in depends on a meeting we are holding next Tuesday. The people of Greater Victoria have been very badly served by their elected representatives on the centennial committee.

"The chairman of the committee should have taken a vote as to what the delegates favored and presented it to all the councils.

Reeve Fred Norris said Oak Bay will decide whether to support the hospital project at a meeting next Monday week.

CONFUSION

"There is far too much confusion in this matter," he said.

Victoria city is expected to devise its own birthday year project soon.

The whole matter is now turned over to Aldermen Austin I. Curtis, Hugh Ramsay and E. D. McEwen to study and report back.

Each alderman in turn proposed a plan for the city—even Ald. J. Donald Smith who was the only one to favor supporting the outside municipalities in the hospital project.

"Jubilee Hospital wouldn't be my first choice," he said, "but as a council, we should support the wish of the majority."

Ald. Wilson was first to propose an alternative. She wants a city-owned home for old people.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow showed plans for a $150,000 to $175,000 youth centre with ice surface to adjoin Memorial Arena.

Ald. Smith proposed an artificial ice plant to freeze Holland Point yacht pond for outdoor skating.

The mayor suggested aid to Victoria Art Gallery drive for a new fireproof wing. Ald. McEwen agreed a place was needed for art treasures and relics.

Ald. Curtis thought the money would permit development of Beaver-Elk Lake Park.

Council finally unanimously agreed to submit all ideas again to a committee—and once again open the question to public opinion.

Geoff. Edgelow Elected Head Of Riding Club

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow has been elected president of the Victoria Riding and Hunt Club.

Serving with him are Barney Olson, vice-president; Miss Dorothy Thompson, secretary, and J. Barnes, George Tyson, Mrs. W. H. Dunbar, Mrs. Shirley Cuppage and Mrs. Whitworth Stanbury, directors.

Two Rallies On Island For Tory Chief

The Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker will hold two mass rallies on Vancouver Island next month in the federal election campaign.

Arriving in Victoria May 21 he will address a rally in the Central Junior High School the same day at 8 p.m.

Next day he will speak at a luncheon in Duncan and appear at a meeting in Nanaimo between 3 and 5 p.m.

On May 22 he will address another rally at Courtenay, then go on to the Mainland for the continuation of his campaign tour.

The tour opens April 25 with a meeting in Toronto's Massey Hall.

Mr. Diefenbaker's Vancouver Island schedule was worked out at a meeting in Nanaimo of the four Conservative candidates on the Island, their agents and party officers from Vancouver.

Vancouver Island Conservative candidates are Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC, Esquimalt-Saanich; A. deB. McPhillips, Victoria; Harry McQuillan, Comox-Alberni, and Walter Matthews, Nanaimo.

Prime Minister St. Laurent will address a mass Liberal rally in the Royal Theatre, Victoria, on Saturday, May 4, at 8 p.m.

Multiple Sclerosis Society and League of the Handicapped will sponsor a social evening for members and friends in St. James Community Hall, Pilot Street, Thursday, at 8 p.m.

$4,000 Damage In Oak Bay House Blaze

Fire believed caused by faulty wiring in an upper floor cupboard caused an estimated $4,000 damage in the home of David Angus, 2650 Bowker, Friday at about 5.15 p.m.

Oak Bay firemen were alerted to the blaze by a resident of Cavendish who saw smoke billowing from near the two-storey home, and first believed it to be a rubbish fire out of control.

There were no occupants in the Angus home at the time.

The fire had apparently gained headway before it was noticed. An upper window was blown out by the heat.

Most damage from fire and smoke was confined to the upper storey and attic, but the ground floor sustained some water damage.

Possible cause by a cigaret or matches was ruled out by Mr. Angus because no one in the house smokes.

He said the loss is covered by insurance.

Presbyterians, United Churches Urged to Unity

TORONTO (CP) — The Presbyterian Church in Canada and the United Church of Canada should find more fellowship and unity in their work, says an editorial in the current issue of the United Church Observer, official organ of the church.

Rev. A. C. Forrest, editor, notes similarities between the two churches and says:

"Our co-operation should grow and our respect and affection for each other be demonstrated. We should try very hard to demonstrate wisdom in our work, and courtesy and brotherly love in all our attitudes."

GREAT CATHEDRAL

The first stone for the Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris was laid in 1163.

U.K. Children 'Bored' With Sunday School

LONDON (CP) — Many British children who stop going to Sunday school do so because they are bored, a report shows.

Among 1,000 children replying to the question why they had stopped, 150 replied that they had lost interest—"I just got fed up with going" or "I got tired of it after all those years."

The report, prepared by a research committee set up by the Free Church Federal Council youth department in co-operation with other organizations, shows that most scholars leave Sunday school between the ages of 11 and 13, and are lost to the church.

One - third of Sunday schools questioned said difficulty was experienced through apathy among parents.

Jordan Army Chief Quits; New Crisis

Officer Firings Blamed for Action

AMMAN, Jordan (CP)—Maj.-Gen. Ali Hayari, who took over as Jordan's chief of staff only two days ago, has submitted his resignation, it was officially announced today. A new government crisis appeared brewing in the Arab kingdom.

Informed sources said Hayari resigned because King Hussein and others had, without consulting him, fired 60 officers and replaced them with Bedouins.

The source said Hayari's deputy, Maj-Gen. Habbes Majali, would succeed him in office. Majali became deputy chief of staff at the time Hayari became chief.

The new government was believed worried that the shift of army officers had placed too much power in the king's hands and that he would crack down on political parties.

HELD JOB FEW DAYS

Hayari, described by his friends as a career soldier with little interest in politics, took over the top army job only Thursday, and apparently firmed up Hussein's control over the restive kingdom. He replaced Maj.-Gen. Ali Abu Nuwar, a pro-Egyptian soldier-politician who was driven from the country to Syria last week. Several high officers accompanied Nuwar.

The new chief of staff was sent Friday to Damascus to ask Syrian authorities to extradite a group of the Jordanian dissidents. But an official spokesman reported that, on arrival, Hayari telephoned his father-in-law, Sedky el Kassem, to present his resignation to the government.

Manchester U. Wins League Soccer Title

LONDON (AP)—Manchester United crushed lowly Sunderland 4-0 today and captured the English Soccer League championship for the second straight season.

It was the first step in Manchester's bid for the unique soccer treble of success in the English League and cup competitions and the European Cup. Manchester will play Aston Villa in the final of the English Cup May 4 and on Thursday tackle Real Madrid in the second leg of the European Cup semifinals.

Madrid won the first leg in Spain 3-1. The match is decided on aggregate goals after home and away matches. Fiorentina of Italy already has reached the European Cup final with a victory over Red Star of Belgrade.

Manchester's victory over Sunderland boosted its total points to 59 from 39 matches. United still has three games to play but closest challenger Preston managed only a 0-0 tie against Blackpool. Even if Preston wins its remaining two matches it can total only 58 points—one less than the total already reached by Manchester.

A crowd of 58,489 saw Manchester United lead Sutherland 1-0 at half time on a goal by inside forward Billy Whelan. Whelan, halfback Duncan Edwards and centre froward Tommy Taylor rammed in three more goals in the second half.

EASTER LILIES ACROSS THE SEA

Easter lilies flown from Hamilton, Bermuda, a gift of that city's mayor, Right Worshipful E. Roddie Williams, were presented to Mayor and Mrs. P. B. Scurrah today by former Bermudians, from left, Marie Ferreira, sister Anne, Mrs. J. C. Ferreira and Johnny, of San Juan Avenue, Gordon Head. The Scurrahs met Hamilton's mayor on a visit to Bermuda last summer.

City Streets Jammed With Holiday Shoppers

Sunny skies and the warmth of spring caused several traffic tieups in the city today as motorists and shoppers by the thousands jammed downtown streets.

City police reported traffic heavy, particularly around department store parking lots, where incoming and outgoing motorists kept traffic in a snarl during the forenoon.

Along downtown streets, metered space was at a premium as drivers vied for parking slots, and pedestrians, out in droves for late shopping before the holiday week-end, crowded over cross-walks to make intersections hazardous.

Police said at press time they had encountered no real traffic problems nor accidents, but expected to be busy until shop closing time directing downtown traffic.

The business section today offered a strange contrast to Friday, when it was practically deserted. On the other hand, the highways and byways of the Saanich peninsula and the Sooke area were jammed with cars Friday afternoon and evening.

Gardeners had a field day Friday and were ready for another gainful day today. Small boys found plenty of wild flowers, and motorcyclists who were out in force described the holiday as "cold, but still fun."

A few brave souls even went swimming in some of the sheltered lakes.

The travel peak noted Thursday, when TCA had six extra flights between here and the Mainland and the CPR ran an extra round-trip sailing between Nanaimo and Vancouver, will be divided between Sunday and Monday, according to airline and shipping spokesmen.

Special services have been arranged in all city churches, and three separate sunrise services have been scheduled. (See Page 18 for details.)

Only blight noted on the weekend to date has been reported by the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The fine weather that sent Victoriains out in droves to enjoy nature also roused the wood ticks. Five persons reported at the hospital's emergency ward to have the pesky mites of the bush removed from various portions of their anatomy.

EASTER BONNET WEATHER PROMISED FOR SUNDAY

Easter Sunday should be sunny and fairly warm, weatherman William Mackie predicted today.

Peak temperatures will be about 58 degrees, he said, but winds are not expected to gain strength until Sunday afternoon, when they will reach a velocity of about 20 miles from the southwest.

There will be high cloud, he said, but it likely will be thin enough during the day for the sun to shine through.

Queen to Celebrate 31st Birthday Sunday

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth will quietly celebrate her 31st birthday Sunday with her family at Windsor Castle.

It has become the custom for the Royal Family to celebrate personal anniversaries as unobtrusively as possible.

The Queen and Prince Philip usually attend Easter Day service at St. George's Chapel, Windsor. After Prince Charles and Princess Anne wake their mother Sunday with a birthday hug and whatever gifts they manage to buy with their pocket money, the whole family probably will go to church.

JEWELRY FROM PHILIP

Prince Philip's customary birthday present is a piece of jewelry, often something he designed himself. The Queen's favorite stone is the sapphire.

The Easter holidays will give the Queen a chance to rest before she leaves next month on another state visit—her third in the last year—to Denmark.

It has been a busy 30th year for the Queen.

She has played hostess to young King Faisal of Iraq, who paid a state visit to Britain, made history by opening the first nuclear power plant in the world supplying commercial electricity, and paid state visits to Portugal and France.

Like any young mother with school-age children, she now is beginning to make plans for their future education.

Lately, she and Prince Philip have visited a number of English private schools and there has been some speculation about which will be chosen for the future king.

Nothin' like a little disarmament t' cheer us at this time o' year. Hope it lasts right through t' Monday.

U.S. Encouraged By Russ Reaction In London Parleys

WASHINGTON (UP)—Harold E. Stassen said today that the United States and Russia are engaged in "the most serious" disarmament negotiations of the past 11 years.

He said, however, that "still many, many problems remain" to be resolved before even a real start can be made on disarmament.

Stassen, President Eisenhower's disarmament adviser, flew back from London, where he has been negotiating with representatives of Russia, Britain, France and Canada since March 18.

Stassen planned a meeting at the state department this afternoon to report on the London talks to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In advance of the conference, Stassen declined to say whether he is optimistic or pessimistic about the eventual outcome of the talks.

But other administration officials said there are "encouraging" signs that the Soviet Union may be willing to make a start on disarmament. They said the Soviets for the first time seem to be willing to work on the matter for other than immediate propaganda advantage.

Dulles was reported anxious to learn immediately what Stassen has found out in negotiations with Russia on the critical disarmament problem.

Russ Hint 'Open Skies' Agreement

Authorities from President Eisenhower down have been saying for the past week that the outlook for disarmament is better now than ever before. But they also have cautioned against expecting too much progress too quickly.

Eisenhower told a news conference this week that the atmosphere "is better" than it has been at similar sessions held by the UN disarmament subcommittee.

One of the big reasons for optimism here is a hint from Soviet negotiator Valerian A. Zorin that Russia may be ready to open a significant part of its territory to Eisenhower's "open skies" aerial inspection plan. Previously, the Soviets balked at this.

The United States this week agreed to accept a limited version of the Eisenhower plan if Russia would expand its counter proposal. That called for testing the plan in a 1,000-mile belt running about 500 miles on either side of the iron curtain. The United States has rejected this because it would

Pearson Again Defends Action In Norman Case

(See Also Pages 2 and 16)

OTTAWA (CP)—For the second time in two days, External Affairs Minister Pearson has used a newspaper's editorial page to defend his handling of the Herbert Norman case.

He sent a letter to the editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail Friday after an editorial in the newspaper's Friday edition said Mr. Pearson had "completely reversed himself" on the question of whether official Canadian information on Mr. Norman had gotten into the hands of the United States Senate internal security sub-committee.

Mr. Pearson, who told the Commons twice last week that this had not happened, wrote that he had relied for those statements on RCMP assurances that two security reports sent to Washington had not been passed on to the sub-committee.

The minister's letter said that not until after his Commons statements did it become apparent that Robert Morris, sub-committee counsel, had used information from an RCMP report of Oct. 17, 1950.

Mr. Pearson, in another letter Wednesday to the editor of the Montreal Gazette, said that that report fell into the sub-committee's hands and was used by the sub-committee to brand Mr. Norman as a Communist.

The report of Oct. 17, 1950, referred to a 1940 statement by an RCMP secret agent in Toronto that a "professor Herbert Norman" was then a Communist.

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday that a later RCMP report on Dec. 1, 1950—relayed like the first to a U.S. security agency—said the agent's information was a case of "mistaken identity or unfounded rumor."

Mr. Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, committed suicide April 4 in Cairo after the sub-committee had revived its 1951 allegations of Communism against him.

Questions U.S. Handling of Reports

The minister's letter to the Globe and Mail, replying to one question raised in the newspaper's editorial, said he does not know how the sub-committee got the first RCMP report, or whether it received the second report discrediting the first.

He added that, if the second report did in fact reach the sub-committee, Senator William Jenner and commitee counsel Morris "for obvious reasons did not use it or make it public."

Mr. Pearson's letter to the Montreal Gazette was in reply to three editorial page columns by Arthur Blakely, Gazette Ottawa correspondent, earlier in the week.

In a further column in the Gazette's Friday issue, Mr. Blakely said his three columns

Norman 'Notes' Labelled 'Complete Fabrications'

See Page 16

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Canadian Embassy Friday described as "complete fabrications" the purported texts published in a New York newspaper of two notes written by Canadian Ambassador E. Herbert Norman immediately before his suicide in Cairo.

An embassy statement said the texts published by the New York Daily News "bear no relation" to the notes written by Norman to his wife and to Swedish Minister Bryn0lf Eng, a close friend.

The originals, the statement said, "are in the possession of the Canadian Department of External Affairs."

The statement, issued by R. A. Farquharson, embassy press officer, was made here on instruction of the Canadian government in Ottawa.

The purported note to Eng as printed in the Daily News recorded Norman as saying "I cannot bring myself to tell you the true reasons that impel me to commit suicide."

This sentence had been interpreted as indicating that Norman had killed himself for some reason other than the publication last month of an accusation made before hte United States Senate internal security sub-committee that Norman had been a Communist.

The sub-committee has been involved in a bitter international controversy since the diplomat jumped to his death from a tall building.

The embassy statement said: "The New York Daily News on April 18 published two letters purporting to be addressed by Mr. Norman, the former Canadian ambassador to Egypt, before his death and Mr. Eng, the Swedish minister in Cairo. The texts of these two letters printed by The Daily News bear no relation to the texts of notes addressed to his wife and Mr. Eng, the originals of which are in the possession of the Canadian department of external affairs.

"The original notes to Mrs. Norman and Mr. Eng were purely personal in character. The only conclusion which can be drawn is that the texts of the letters printed by The Daily News are complete fabrications."

The Daily News commented as follows:

"The Norman suicide letters, which were published last Thursday in The News, were cabled from Cairo. They were translations of Arabic copies made of the letters while the Cairo police were holding them during their investigation.

"They were obtained by The News correspondent in Cairo, Reynolds Packard.

"In his cable containing the letters, Packard said: 'The following texts are translations back into English from the Arabic translation of the original English of Norman's letters.'

"Minor errors, but onlly minor, might arise from a double translation.

"The Canadian government has not seen fit to offer its own version of Norman's letters in support of its claim of fabrication."

As published in the New York News the letters read:

To Mrs. Norman:

"Dear Wife: Farewell to you, my beloved, and to my family. I wanted so much to tell you all about my troubles during these last few days of my life because I think of you as my spiritual partner but I finally decided to bear them alone and not distress you.

"NO MORE FUTURE"

"I also wanted to tell you before going out this morning of my intention to commit suicide but I changed my mind at the last minute feeling it would be better for you to learn of my death—afterwards. I have no more hope in life, no more future. Please forgive me my love, for ending my life like this. I feel I don't deserve even to kiss your feet.

"Farewell my beloved. Best wishes to my family.

"Herbert"

To Eng:

"I wanted to spend some time with you during these last few days of my life and tell you what has been worrying me but am afraid that even in this letter I cannot bring myself to tell you true reasons that impel me to commit suicide.

"I have decided to die near your home. I know this may cause you some trouble and I am sorry but you are my best friend. Farewell.

"Sincerely,
"Norman"

Mad Bomber Ruled Insane

NEW YORK (AP) — Judge Samuel Liebowitz Thursday committed George Metesky, the "mad bomber," to a hospital for the criminally insane. Leibowitz ruled, however, that if Matesky should recover his sanity he must be returned to Brooklyn to stand trial on charges of attempted murder and other counts.

MOVIE-GOER FALLS OUT AT DRIVE-IN

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) —The Movie must have been good, because Robert Palmer, 41, fell out of his seat watching it. Two companions had to rescue hif.

It happened when Palmer and his friends were perched on a bridge rail near a drive-in theatre. He fell some 40 feet into a creek and was hauled out by companions.

B.C. Chamber Meeting May 2-4

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual meeting here May 2-4, Howard N. Walters, president, said today.

Guest speakers will be William C. Mainwaring, vice-president of the B.C. Power Corp., and Professor Frederick H. Soward, head of the department of history at the University of B.C.

P. A. Gaglardi and Evan S. Jones, minister and deputy minister of highways, will discuss Government road plans May 2.

FAMOUS SAILOR

Admiral Lord Rodney, who died in 1792, reached captain's rank in the Royal Navy after 10 years' service.

NEW WALSH CHARGE

Two Other Top Diplomats 'Linked' to Reds

LABRIEVILLE, Que. (BUP) — Former Communist labor leader Pat Walsh flatly stated Friday Herbert Norman was a Communist, and so are two other high-ranking Canadian diplomats.

Walsh said that Canada's ambassador to Egypt, who killed himself April 4, and the two other diplomats are known to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police as "the unholy three."

"External affairs minister Lester Pearson calls them 'my Asiatic advisers' and has been defending all three for years in spite of pressure from (justice minister Stuart) Garson," Walsh charged.

He said he got his proof while working as a paid undercover agent for the RCMP and claimed Norman committed suicide because Pearson wired him that Walsh was bringing out the RCMP file on Norman.

"Norman jumped just a week after I had written to Pearson about the file," Walsh said.

Walsh added that he is now going to press for the recall of the two other diplomats to face a public investigation. He said if the men were not recalled he would "reluctantly bring out my files for the public to see."

Quebec Law On Newsprint Being Ignored

Board Never Established

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec's newsprint control law, framed to protect the province's newspapers against higher prices or pinched supply, appears to be almost a dead letter.

The control board whose appointment would have made its key provisions effective has never been set up.

The legislation, attacked in some quarters as a threat to freedom of the press, was so shaped in its final form that Quebec's newspapers could take advantage of it or disregard it as they saw fit. The general disposition, since its passage last Feb. 3, seems to have been to disregard it.

ON STATUTE BOOKS

Meantime, it remains on the statute books and could be made operative at any time by appointment of a control board if the Quebec government felt there was some demand for it on the part of the newspapers.

There has been no sign of such demand. Soon after the law was passed two Montreal newspapers announced they had decided not to a all themselves of its provisions. A Quebec City newspaper said editorially that it had always had good relations with its supplies and intended that this situation should continue.

There has been no announcement by any newspaper that it intends to avail itself of the act.

The control bill followed announcement by newsprint companies last December of a price increase. It was reported as being $4 a ton to Quebec newspapers, but there has never been any announced basic Canadian or provincial basic price.

The only announced basic price is that of newsprint delivered in New York. Currently it is $130 a ton, including freight to New York. Prices in different zones in the United States would vary because of freight rates.

DG BUSINESS DIRECT

In Canada newspapers deal directly with newsprint companies. The cost would be a matter for each newspaper. The cost would include freight charge and this could vary considerably, according to distance from mills. Particularly in Quebec and Ontario some newspapers are close to their source of supply.

The control legislation, applying only to Quebec producers and consumers, provided that retroactively to Sept. 1, 1955, and until March 1, 1957, "no newsprint producer shall ask or exact, directly or indirectly, from consumers or h newsprint a higher price than that in force at that date."

It was also provided that for December, 1955, and each month thereafter "every newspaper publisher shall be entitled to obtain from his supplier at least the quantity of newsprint sold to him in November, 1955."

The bill further provided that within 30 days after appointment of control-board members "every consumer shall inform the board of the quantity of newsprint supplied in November, 1955, and of his needs in excess of or less than such quantity."

Under the bill the board members would have wide powers and also a semi-judicial position.

Several years ago Premier Duplessis, stating Quebec is Canada's big newsprint producer, decl red:

"It (newsprint) is made out of our timber and belongs to the people. Newspapers represent the people and are an essential agent of freedom.

"When newsprint companies fix prices they should remember the vital role played by newspapers a should give them in Canada and especially in Quebec a treatment based on justice."

Some centipedes have as many as 200 legs, but the average number is between 60 and 80.

Easter Rituals Nearing Climax For World Pilgrims in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — Pilgrims of all Christian faiths converged on the Church of the Holy Sepulchre in the Old City of Jerusalem today as the Easter Holy Week approached its climax.

Some of Christianity's most ancient rituals will be observed within the walls of this ancient city when events in the life of Christ are re-enacted by Roman Catholics, Greek Orthodox believers, Protestants, Copts, Armenians, Syrians and Ethiopians.

The greatest tension in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre is usually felt on Holy Saturday during the "holy fire" services conducted by Greek Orthodox and Armenian rites.

The appearance of fire spurting from two openings on either side of the chapel over the Holy Sepulchre touches off exuberant emotions and wild cheering and excitement.

The patriarchs of these two rites enter the tomb, which is then sealed by the Moslem warden of the church.

The two prelates spend hours in prayer inside the sealed tomb while the congregation in the unlighted church watches with growing intensity the two openings where the fire is to emerge.

Suddenly the cry "He is risen" pierces the air at the sight of the fire.

Within a few seconds lights glow and the rotunda is soon ablaze with the flickering "resurrection fire" in nooks and crannies of the church.

BLESSES FIRE

Near the stone of unction where Christ's body was prepared for burial Roman Catholics hold their service in the course of which the Latin patriarch of Jerusalem blesses the holy fire.

On Good Friday thousands of persons packed the courtyard in front of the church where the scene of Jesus washing his disciples' feet was repeated.

Benedictus the First, new Greek Orthodox prelate in the Middle East, officiated at the service for the first time.

not open enough of Russia to the inspectors.

Zorin hinted in London Thursday that the limits of the zone might be expanded through "negotiations" between East and West.

Experts here called the remark "encouraging." They said it could lead to an agreement after the London talks resume Wednesday, but they pointed out that this would be only a first step on the long road toward effetcive disarmament.

American authorities said one basic reason for thinking Russia may at last be ready to make concessions to end the arms race is that Russia is suffering too heavy a burden in attempting to match U.S. nuclear weapons production.

U.S. officials believe Russia's bosses would prefer to spend the money on non-military projects that would help calm any discontent among Russians with their standard of living.

In addition, officials said, the Soviets have indicated that they know they are lagging behind the United States in nuclear weapons production and therefore are sincerely fearful of getting into a nuclear war.

Draws Protest

LONDON (AP) — Governor Averell Harriman of New York State was accused today by a member of Parliament of "making mischief" in the Mediterranean by inviting Archbishop Makarios, Greek Orthodox leader of the Cyprus union-with-Greece movement, to visit New York.

Paul Williams, leader in the right-wing bloc of Prime Minister Macmillan's Conservative party, said the invitation "casts doubt on the wisdom of the Makarios release."

U.S. Star Wins Boston Marathon

BOSTON (UP) — Skinny schoolteacher Johnny Kelley won the 61st annual Boston A.A. marathon today, the first American victory in 12 years.

The 26-year-old Kelley of Groton, Conn., plodded the 26 miles 385 yards from Hopkinton to Boston in 2.20.05.

were not intended as an attack either on Mr. Norman's memory or on Mr. Pearson's integrity.

He said they were written "for the primary purpose of drawing public attention to the fact that for a period of some six years Parliament had been deceived and misled with respect to the accuracy or otherwise of statements which a U.S. senate sub-committee had made about Mr. Norman's Communist associations and sympathies."

Another development Friday in the fast-moving Norman case was an interim reply by the U.S. state department to Canada's diplomatic note of last week.

Canada's note said the Canadian government would reserve the right to withhold the customary supplying of security information on Canadians to United States agencies unless the United States administration could give assurances that the information would not be given to congressional groups.

The United States state department replied that the matter "will be pursued vigorously." A state department press officer said that the FBI, among other executive agencies, had been notified of Canada's request.

DISCREDIT LETTERS

The external affairs department issued another statement here and in Washington dealing with a side issue: publication by the New York Daily News of the purported texts of two notes written by Mr. Norman just before his suicide.

The department described the published texts as "complete fabrications" which bore no relation to the notes written by Mr. Norman. It said it holds the original notes and declined to make them public. They were "purely personal in character."

Mr. Pearson said Wednesday he had concluded, on the basis of a 1950-51 Canadian security investigation, that Mr. Norman as a student in the 1930s had had "ideological beliefs which were close to some brand of communism" but had voluntarily abandoned them by the time he entered the external affairs department in 1939.

ANIMALS AROUND US

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL

A crab is a highly-specialized animal designed to fill a certain place in nature with a high degree of efficiency. Though it appears to be burdened with a cumbersome coat of armor the shell is a help rather than a hindrance in that it enables the animal to exist where no other creature can. It should be no surprise to find that nature has experimented with the crab's shell in many ways turning out some weird and wondrous designs.

Dr. Carl

Basically the shell covering the body itself is fused into a solid covering over the back. Below, there are openings to provide attachments for the legs and mouthparts and in the true crabs the lower surface is designed to give protection to the abdomen which is carried folded against the body. Above the base of the legs on each side there is a chamber to house the gills and on the leading edge of the shell are recesses into which antennae and eyes may be pulled for protection. The legs, too, are encased in a shelly covering with ingeniously designed joints to allow for movement. In effect the animals is completely enclosed in a suit of armor so that it is safe from attack by most predators.

NOT ENOUGH

A coat of mail is apparently not enough protection for some of the kelp crabs. These in general are slow-moving creatures colored much like the sea weeds they climb upon. They are made more inconspicuous by a thick growth of plant and animal life which they deliberately attach to their backs. The surface of the shell is provided with a series of short curved bristles which serve as anchors for sprigs of sea weed, hydroids and sponges placed there by the crab itself. These eventually grow to convert their host into a walking marine garden to the advantage of both parties. The crab profits by the camouflage and the "free-riders" get a constantly changing scene.

The shell of the horse crab, an inhabitant of shallow water, is also modified to help mask the occupant. Both the back and the legs are covered with a great number of stiff hairs and bristle-like scales. The body outline is further broken up by a series of pointed projections all of which make the animal difficult to see so long as it remains motionless.

Another successful design along different lines is found in the flat-topped crab. In this crustacean the shell of the body as well as the pincers are greatly flattened so that the creature can slip easily into narrow cracks for protection. On rocky shores open to the action of heavy surf this crab has a distinct advantage in being able to find shelter in retreats too narrow for other animals to enter.

FLATTENED

Another approach to this problem of protection against surf is found in the turtle crab which has a shell that extends well beyond the body to cover the legs as well. When the crab clings closely to the rock all the appendages are covered and only a smooth rounded surface is presented to the force of the water. In addition such a crab is most difficult to see because the shell is often blotched with color giving it the appearance of a pebble or small stone. Turtle crabs are present along Dallas Road beach but few collectors ever see them.

SOLID CITIZEN

The box crab is a solid citizen of the deeper water. It depends upon sheer weight of the shell for protection. The body is massive and heavy and the legs are well covered with a knobby shell. Moreover the appendages are shaped so that when they are at rest they all fit together to form a compact box-like structure, capable of discouraging any but the largest predator. So tightly do the limbs fit together that a special channel is provided on each side behind the pincer to allow for the passage of water to the gills.

Crabs as a group have met with considerable success in life judging by the fact that they are found in all oceans of the world, and some have even become adapted to fresh water and to dry land. Part of their achievement is due to the great diversification found in the design of the shell, the most characteristic structure in this group of animals.

Helicopter Directs Los Angeles Traffic

LOS ANGELES (CP)—A police helicopter, hovering in the afternoon sun over this sprawling city's congested freeways, is the automobile's best friend.

PORTLAND TEAMSTERS' PROBE

Jury Indicts D-A, Newsman

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—District Attorney William Langley and two other men were indicted by a county grand jury

The others indicted are Sheriff's Deputy George Minielly and an Oregon Journal reporter, Arthur (Brad) Williams.

Meanwhile, the trial of Portland gambler Big Jim Elkins and his employee, Raymond Clark, on charges of wire tapping was to resume today in federal court here. They are accused of making the tapes that the other three men are accused of illegally obtaining.

The indictment against Langley was the eighth returned against him in the year-long Portland vice investigation. He has been convicted on one charge, failing to prosecute gamblers, and is awaiting sentence.

ILLEGAL RAID

Friday's indictment accuses him of conspiracy with Portland Mayor Terry Schrunk, executives and reporters of the Oregon Journal and others to set up an illegal raid to obtain and make copies of the tapes.

Named as conspirators were William W. Knight, publisher of The Journal, and Arden X. Pangborn, editor. Also named were reporters Williams, Rolla Crick and Doug Baker, Deputy District Attorney Howard Lonergan and Clyde C. Crosby, international representative for the teamsters union in Oregon.

There was no indication that the persons named as conspirators would be indicted. The Journal has denied any wrongdoing.

Al Plunkett, Of Dumbell Fame, Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Al Plunkett, youngest of the three brothers who starred in the First World War Dumbells troupe, died Friday at 58.

His death further diminished the remaining ranks of the all-soldier revue that staged scores of shows amidst the trenches and later went on highly-successful peacetime tours.

TWO NOW DEAD

Morley, the other Plunkett brother who toured with the troupe, died three years ago.

Albert William Plunkett was born in Orillia, Ont. He lied about his age and went overseas with the machine gun section of the 58th Battalion in 1919 when he was only 17. Wounded at the battle of Vimy Ridge, he later joined the group his brother was forming under YMCA sponsorship to entertain the troops.

The Dumbells' first show went on in a ramshackle shed near Vimy Ridge. It was a howling success from the start and Al, a light baritone, was one of its stars.

Prospectors Protest B.C. Mining Tax

VANCOUVER (CP)—A group of British Columbia prospectors Thursday asked the Ontario Prospectors' and Developers' Association to protest to British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett against mining legislation passed recently by the legislature which provides for taxing iron ore in the ground and gives leasing and discretionary powers to the minister of mines.

Readers Digest Sued For Non Tax Payment

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has filed suit against Reader's Digest for non-payment of the special 20 per cent advertising tax on special Canadian editions of foreign magazines.

Reader's Digest also had not made the required $5,000 deposit with the revenue department or had taken out a $2 licence as required by the law.

but Reader's Digest did not.

The suit has been filed with the exchequer court of Canada, but the case is not likely to come up for hearing until next fall, court officials said.

The special tax went into effect this year and is aimed, the government has stated, at arresting the inroads of the special editions on advertising revenues available to Canadian magazines.

Some foreign magazines suspended their Canadian editions wh. the tax went into effect. Only two magazines which remained appeared to be affected—Time and Reader's Digest.

Federal officials said Time magazine paid its tax installments.

Hypnosis Fails To Find Clue To Car Slaying

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — First attempts by a psychiatrist to question witnesses under hypnosis have failed to yield any new clues to the brutal car-slaying of a San Francisco man.

The doctor, who insisted he remain unnamed as a condition for doing the work, Friday told police further efforts "might produce better results."

Lloyd V. Stephens, 62, was struck down at a San Francisco intersection and dragged 1,200 feet by a car. The car's path was traced in blood as the driver sought to dislodge the body by alternately speeding up and slamming on the brakes.

Some fifty horrified persons saw the grisly episode.

One witness, Bonifacio Silverio, gave police a partial licence number. He was one of four persons questioned under hypnosis by the doctor, who sought to discover the entire number from Silverio's subconscious mind.

Police lieutenant Edward Moody said the questioning revealed "no significant new information."

SALVATION ARMY CHIEF HERE

Moral Progress Lagging in Canada

Moral shortcomings of Canadians were scored here Thursday by Commissioner W. W. Booth, leader of the Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda.

Canada's moral progress trails far behind its present standards of material wealth and physical well-being, he told a meeting at the Pandora Avenue citadel.

He based his charge on these facts:

"The average age of unmarried mothers that come to us is three years lower than before the war.

MORE CRIME

Canada's population of 16,000,000 commits more crimes than Great Britain's 60,000,000 persons.

"There are 250,000 known alcoholics in Canada.

"I have seen a figure for the whole continent, including the United States and Canada, indicating that one out of four marriages ends in divorce."

Commissioner Booth said the Army is attempting to cure this moral sickness with more summer camps for children and a stepped-up Harbor Lights Corps program.

The Army is now negotiating for property near Qualicum Beach for a large camp, he reported.

2-Day Rescue Of 150 Scouts Completed

WRIGHTWOOD, Calif. (AP)—Mountaineers led 36 Boy Scouts down an ice-glazed trail Friday, completing a mammoth rescue of snowbound youngsters and their adult leaders.

Over a two-day period more than 150 scouts were brought out of Angeles National Forest, where they were trapped Wednesday by a snowstorm.

The last group of 37 boys and five adult leaders made their way six miles over a treacherous trail from their camp at the 8,500-foot level of Mount Baden-Powell. The area is 30 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

The scouts, who spent two nights and a day on the frozen mountain, were in generally good condition at the end of their trek.

The hike, staged annually the week before Easter, was to qualify the scouts for a merit badge.

London Mayor Sends Message To Lieut.-Gov.

A letter from the Lord Mayor of London (Eng.), marked "urgent delivery," has been delivered to Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross at the Empress Hotel. It reads:

"On behalf of many citizens of London and myself I tender you and the people of British Columbia my deep sympathy on the severe loss you have sustained in the destruction of Government House.

"But I rejoice there was no loss of life. . . . Sir Cullum Welch, Lord Mayor of London."

Since Government House burned last Monday Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Ross have received hundreds of letters and telegrams from all parts of Canada and the Commonwealth.

Every one is being acknowledged with a letter bearing Mr. Ross' signature, which reads:

"In the loss of Government House and the inconvenience my wife and I have been put to, and I can almost say tragedy, one of the great comforts has been the sympathy we have received from all directions.

"I can assure you that both Phyllis and I were deeply touched by your message. . . ."

CROSSED GULF 28 TIMES

Vancouver Funeral For Famed Canoeist

Funeral services for Walter Henry Lambert, 64, famed B.C. canoeist, who died in Victoria last Tuesday, were held in Vancouver today followed by burial at West Vancouver cemetery.

Mr. Lambert crossed the Gulf of Georgia 28 times alone in his 16-foot canoe. He usually made the journey at night and once did it with his leg in a cast.

On seven occasions he made the crossing in dense fog. He logged more than 5,000 miles in his canoe without serious accident.

Mr. Lambert also founded the Radio Electronic Centre at King Edward high school, Vancouver, in 1926 and trained hundreds of men until his retirement in 1954.

FINE CLASSES

During the Second World War he taught as many as five classes at once in an effort to meet the demand for radio technicians.

Born in England, he began his career as a schoolmaster at Porcher Island, near Prince Rupert, in 1912.

After four years' war service with the Royal Canadian Volunteer Reserve, he joined the Vancouver school system in 1918. He served as a wireless operator and logged 750,000 miles at sea.

His widow, Muriel, will continue to reside at Mr. Lambert's home at Milnes Landing near Sooke.

Planner Bucks Used Car Lot At Cook, Yates

City council gave a special hearing Thursday to Capital Region Planning director Brahm Wiesman who expressed Town Planning Commission opposition to proposed rezoning to permit an additional used car lot near the southeast corner of Cook and Yates.

A public hearing on the plan will take place April 25 at City Hall.

Application is from Roaf Motors and is backed by Victoria Automotive Dealers' Association.

Town planners say the business area is extending too far from the city centre and other suitable lots are available closer to the store area.

A by-law authorizing the zoning change has been given first reading.

Tenders are requested for the laying of a 4-inch concrete slab 100'x100' with proper grading, at Oak and Tolmie.

Officer Acquitted On Bribery Charge

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Supreme Court jury Thursday night acquitted a police sergeant of charges that he demanded a bribe in return for not charging a driver with speeding.

Sergeant Cecil McIntosh had pleaded not guilty to charges of intent to interfere with the administration of justice, protecting a person from punishment, and extorting money by threatening to accuse.

Gow Foon Gun, 19, took an oath by fire during the trial to testify that McIntosh stopped his car and said he would forget about the speeding infringement if he gave him $25. Gow, who said he is a Taoist, wrote his name on a piece of paper and burnt it before testifying. Mr. Justice A. M. Manson accepted the oath.

Gow said he was told to take out his wallet. It contained only $9 and he said McIntosh took that.

Superintendents Fred Dougherty and Ben Jelley were called by the defence. Superintendent Dougherty said McIntosh was "shocked" when Gow and three other youths who had been in the car identified him in a line-up. McIntosh had sworn that no money was taken, the superintendent said.

Mr. Justice Manson criticized superintendent Jelley for not taking notes of a conversation with McIntosh. Jelley said in cross-examination McIntosh had denied being offered money as a bribe when he stopped the car for speeding.

The judge asked why he had omitted giving that evidence in his original testimony. "What's the matter with you anyway? You're a senior police officer."

Superintendent Jelley said when he first spoke to McIntosh about the accusations, he "wasn't in a position" to take notes.
